Alsdorf captures Expo's top honors

BY SYLVIA COOPER

UNIVERSITY PARK — The 58th Annual Penn State Dairy Expo, held here last week at the dairy barns, was a huge success as 65 student exhibitors put their cows through their paces.

The day-long event wrapped up six weeks of hard work at halter-breaking, brushing and scrubbing cows that students had picked previously in a random drawing. To polish off the day, a banquet was held to honor Expo winners, followed by a square dance at Alpha Zeta Fraternity.

Melanie Alsdorf, Spartansburg, was the unanimous choice of both Showmanship Judge Gary Baxter and Fitting Judge Jim Bates, for the All-Around Champion Fitter and Showman.

The twelfth term dairy production major also collected the Champion Holstein Fitter and Champion Holstein Showman titles. Alsdorf was named the outstanding dairy production senior, receiving the William R. Davey award and in addition received the Dairy Shrine Award at the evening banquet.

Named Reserve Champion Fitter and Showman overall was Doug Hershberger, Lancaster, who was second in his class to Alsdorf. Hershberger was also the Reserve Champion Holstein Showman and Fitter.

In close contention for Reserve Champion honors overall, was Michele Braund of Fayetteville, N.Y., with her Brown Swiss cow. Braund, the Champion Brown Swiss Fitter, is a sixth term dairy production major who is no stranger to showing "big brown" cows.

Winning the Champion Brown Swiss Showman and Reserve Fitter title was Karen Hornbaker,

It's mixed bag of news for potato industry

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HANOVER — Pennsylvania's potato industry, which has been conducting an aggressive program to regain earlier levels of prominence, has received some mixed news.

First, Utz Quality Foods, Inc. observed the opening of a $12 million expansion in Hanover this week.

And, that means parallel expansion of the demand for more potatoes to chip and possible bigger markets for Commonwealth growers.

But, on the other side of the coin, growers are losing their potato breeder at Penn State, who has spearheaded a grower-sponsored effort over the past seven years to get better varieties for both chipping and the fresh market.

David R. MacKenzie, whose new potato variities are still coming onto the grower scene out of the potato seed research farm at Black Moshannon State Forest, is leaving at the end of June to become head of the Plant Pathology and Crop Physiology Department at Louisiana State University.

And thus, the mixed news is inter-ralated. Pennsylvania strengthens its hold on the Number One position as top potato chip producer in the nation, but over the years has slipped from third to 12th in the nation in the production of potatoes. And, it has been the Penn State breeding program using clones that is at the forefront of the effort to get utilization of home-grown potatoes back in better balance with state production.

Take, Utz as an example. With

County names 1st Ag Board head

Alan Musselman

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Commissioners officially named Alan R. Musselman the first full-time administator of the county's Agricultural Preservation Board.

Musselman's appointment was made Wednesday at the regular meeting of the comissioners. Creation of the new position, that will pay Musselman $20,000, signifies a sincere commitment by county officials to actively work toward preserving the county's agricultural land base.

Although Musselman will be part of the agricultural preservation board, he will probably spend most of his time working closely with the county planning commission. His office will be in the county planning commission's suite in the county courthouse.

Prior to accepting the position, Musselman, 35, had served for five years as the executive director of Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation.

Amos Funk, president of the ag preserve board, made the introduction at Wednesday's

Two Ways To Improve Your Profit Picture

XL & DK

Two layers with distinctly different characteristics... From two separate research programs.

If you're a feeder pig producer, you want to get top performance out of your operation.

Producing feeder pigs takes good management, and the ability to make the most of every part of your operation. You've got to use your breeding stock and buildings to their maximum potential. A big part of getting maximum output is the right nutrition program. It can make the difference in maintaining sows in good condition and producing large, healthy feeder pigs that are able to withstand the stress of being moved from your operation to another location for finishing.

You want to maximize your sows reproductive potential and produce large, healthy litters.

Pennfield has specially formulated two sow feeds that do just that. Our 642 Sow Prep is a complete feed formulated to nourish the sow during gestation. This feed provides all the energy and protein required for building large healthier litters.

We developed 648 Sow Power to provide sows with a unique blend of energy, amino acids, and other nutrients needed for optimum milk production. This results in maximum 21-day baby pig weights. Heavier pigs mean healthier pigs after weaning. This new improved feed enables the sows to finish the lactation period in good condition for the beginning of the next breeding cycle.

You want faster weight gains and optimum feed efficiency for your feeder pigs

Pennfield offers two complete feeds for this purpose. 603 Pig Power was developed specifically for successful three week weaning. Pigs weaned at three weeks need special care and nutrition to minimize the stress of going from a whole milk diet to dry feed. 603 Pig Power was developed to provide better digestibility, palatability, and nutrition. The results are exellent gains, super feed conversion, and more uniform pigs. This feed will keep weaned pigs growing when rapid gains are the most important.

616 Pork Power I is an excellent high density feed, formulated with supplementary lysine to give optimum balance of essential amino acids. It also has added fat to assure good weight gain and feed efficiency.

If you're a feeder pig producer, you want Pennfield's specially formulated hog feeds.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

MAY 16-22, 1983

We'll be croaking in this soaking.

Apply bone meal or wood ashes to peonies now. Racial segregation in public schools ruled unconstitutional by Supreme Court May 17, 1954. . First quarter of the moon May 19 (Thurs.) Average length of days for the week, 14 hours, 44 minutes . Charles Lindbergh made solo nonstop flight from New York to Paris, May 20-21, 1927 First Kentucky Derby held May 17, 1875, at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky . Once uttered, words run faster than horses

Ask the Old Farmer: In talking about old times and customs with a friend the other day, he kept telling me about "bog-shoes." What are they? J.M., Chicago

Customs, names of things, and so-on differ with locations, but what used to be known as "bog-shoes" in our section was a chunk of oak board, rigged with a loop of iron, and made to fit on a horse's foot so he wouldn't settle too deep when used to haul off marsh hay. They made the critter walk like a man on snowshoes and they did all right too. But I never figured out how they taught the animal to walk with them in the first place

Home Hints: To keep a pitcher from dripping, place a small piece of butter beneath the lip

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Sunny, cool all week, rain for weekend.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Rain, cool start of week; sunny, warm, with sprinkles to weekend, rainy and cool end of week

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Week's beginning is cool, intermittent showers, scattered showers, hot to week's end, then rainy and cool

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Very beginning of week is rainy, unseasonably cool; clearing and warm through midweek, showers then clear and warm weekend

Save the farmer; preserve the land

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Farmland preservation efforts in Lancaster County took a significant step forward this week. The first full-time director of the Preservation Board was named by the County Commissioners. He will begin work later this month. The rest of rural Pennsylvania will be keeping a close eye on the Garden Spot to monitor further progress in its continuing effort to save the land from which all agriculture springs.

With a full-time director, the Preservation Board can get down to the nitty-gritty of getting its shoes muddy and its fingernails dirty in its farmland preservation program.

At the top of its list in this effort must be a communications program aimed at two audiences -- farmers and the non-farm public. The cooperation of both is vital to the success of any preservation effort and both have an equal stake in its outcome. Farmers must make the ultimate decision to save their land and the non-farm public must help foot any bill.

And any such communication effort must include a down-to-earth, dollars-and-cents approach of telling why the farmers must first be saved before their land can ever hope to be preserved. Eliminating misunderstandings the non-farm public has about modern-day agriculture and its practices can go a long way toward creating a better atmosphere for the continued existence of farmers, farming and their land. The one basic thing that's going to help preserve farmland more than anything else is to get all segments of agriculture back on a secure and profitable footing.

Just a few days ago, the Lancaster New Era carried a graphic account of twin calves being born on a local dairy farm. The heifer was retained as a replacement, but her brother was soon shipped off as a vealer. A subsequent letter to the editor criticized this "sacrifice of a baby animal for food."

This is just one misunderstanding of modern agriculture and its economics. The need for strict economic decisions in order to survive in farming through such measures as culling bull calves escapes the comprehension of non-farm readers. And, there are many other examples.

My pet peeve is the criticism of confinement housing. The accompanying cartoon expresses my feelings. I often wondered what two chickens would say if they traveled to an urban tenament district.

As the Preservation Board communicates its program and efforts, we hope the modern economic message of saving farmers along with their land is featured. It's a message that must be told over and over again.

The Lancaster County Commissioners action of also naming the second FFA member to the Preservation Board suggests a way to help get this message across. I've attended and judged at FFA public speaking contests at which the new FFA member, Tim Pfautz, of the Cloister Chapter at Ephrata, has participated. Already, he's an accomplished speaker.

Why can't he and fellow FFA'ers from other chapters carry this Farmland Preservation message to civic clubs and groups across the county? Annually, FFA'ers compete in public speaking contests and some very good "talkers" emerge here in Lancaster County. To name just a few, there are Greg Musser at Elizabethtown, Gail Ginder at Manheim, Deb Martin at Penn Manor and Carolyn Witmer at New Holland.

The Preservation Board could set up an FFA Speakers Bureau and offer volunteer speakers in blue and gold to service clubs and groups throughout the county.

If I was sitting in an audience hearing an appeal to save farmers and their land, it would have a lot more impact if it came from the lips of an FFA member whose whole life in farming lies ahead of him or her.

After all, who is the opportunity to farm and the land on which to farm being saved for?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHEN MONEY SPEAKS

May 15, 1983

Background Scripture: Acts 19 through 20.
Devotional Reading: John 17:20-26.

Last year, when I visited the ruins of Ephesus, I made a point of leaving the guided tour of which I was a apart, so that I could take some time to cross the road and wander around the ruins of what had once been the Temple of Diana, one of the seven wonders of ancient world. From the accounts that have come down to us, it was once a massive structure with a gigantic statue of the goddess Diana. Today, however, there is hardly anything left of it but a single, solitary column that stands like a sentinel over a grave.

"GREAT IS ARTEMIS!"

As I stood and viewed this pitful remnant of the past, I couldn't help but remember what the crowd had roared when Paul visited this city: "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians" (Artemis is another name for Diana). Apparently Artemis had not been so "great" as the Ephesians had proclaimed. By comparison, the Gospel Paul preached in Ephesus now spans the globe.

Why was it that these two faiths clashed? Was it inevitable? Could they not have found some way of co-existing? One answer is surely that Christianity and the cult of Diana were bound to clash because the Good News of Jesus Christ couldn't help but be a threat to the cult of Diana, including those who stood to profit most from the cult's continuance and growth.

Although it was on the grounds of wrong teaching that Demetrius and his silversmiths opposed Paul and his preaching, it is easily apparent that it was money, not conscience that was speaking. The men he assembled to oppose Paul were highly motivated by their vested interests in the cult of Diana: "Men, you know that from this business we have our wealth. And you see and hear that not only at Ephesus but almost throughout all Asia this Paul has persuaded and turned away a considerable company of people, saying that gods made with hands are not gods. The bottom line was that Paul was bad for business - their business. Later, Demetrius would also worry about Artemis' loss of adherents, but it was obvious that his profits were speaking loudest of all.

THE COURTS ARE OPEN

Paul's experience with the silversmiths in Ephesus was not the last time that the Gospel was found to be "bad for business." For, whenever business or profit are dependent upon the exploitation of other people, whenever it is founded upon values that are contrary to the Good News of Jesus Christ, the collision is inevitable.

There is a kind of postscript to this incident. Just when it seems the whole city is about to riot, the town clerk confronts them and manages to quell the disturbance before it gets out of hand. Nothing has happened to justify such an uproar, he tells them. If Demetrius and his associates have a worthwhile complaint, "the courts are open." Violence and passion will not settle this dispute for either side.

Too bad we don't know this town clerk's name, for he is worthy of being remembered. Even more, he is worthy of being emulated whenever money speaks louder than our God-given consciences.

To Check Weevil in Alfalfa

We are right into the decision-making period for alfalfa weevil control. The question comes up, should I spray or cut it? This depends on the degree of damage and just how far your alfalfa is along. If your stand is getting along in maturity, then it would pay you to cut it early. If you decide to spray, then it should be applied only when 60 to 70 percent of the plants show slight feeding damage at the tips. In most cases, spray application will not be necessary. The economic threshold line is based on a loss of 1/10 ton of alfalfa hay per acre. At $100 per ton of hay, a loss of 1/10 ton equals $10. If the cost of spraying is $9.50 - $10 per acre, you are at the break even level.

The two major problems with spraying is the physical damage by running the tractor over the growing plants, and secondly, the tolerance time from the time of application until the residue is "off" the plants. Be sure to read the label for the tolerance periods for the different chemicals and follow the directions.

To Control Flies

Flies are a continual problem to keep under control in most poultry laying houses. Well, we received some good news this week. Our egg producers have been granted an emergency exemption from the State Department of Agriculture to use the insecticide Larvadex to control fly problems in their poultry houses. The exemption, granted last year, had expired. There is a minor change in the exemption this year, which states that the poultry manure from houses where Larvadex was used may not be applied in excess of 5 ton per acre and it may not be used on small grains.

Considerable research has been conducted over the past several years on this feed through pesticide. All tests have shown it to be a very safe and effective fly control material.

To Be Alert For Gypsy Moth

We have seen the first appearance of gypsy moth worms in the southern part of Lancaster County. Other property owners will see them appearing most any time. Mid-May is the normal time for them to start blowing around and eating foliage. We suggest that you get prepared to protect your favorite shade trees because gypsy moths like them all. Spray materials such as Sevin or Imidan will kill the worms that are present. Repeated sprays are needed at about a week to ten days intervals, in order to give any length of protection. Owners with large woodlots may want to secure commercial sprayers that operate from the air. Eradication of gypsy moths is very difficult; however, some protection to private shade trees is possible with repeat applications.

GLASS-LINED STORAGE SYSTEMS

NOW AVAILABLE TO FARMERS IN THIS AREA THROUGH HERSHEY EQUIPMENT CO. of LANCASTER

(1) CORRUGLASS™ BINS:

For high moisture grain Long incorporates the strength of corrugated steel with a protective glass-fused-to-steel coating to produce the lowest cost, glass-lined, oxygen limiting storage system for high moisture grain that you can buy. Breather bags and choice of bottom unloader with tapered, power-driven sweep augers, or standard 6" auger unloader with clean-out sweep arm, complete this outstanding storage system.

(2) OXYGEN LIMITING, GLASS-LINED SILOS:

These smooth wall silos are constructed of heavy gauge steel with a glass-fused-to-steel coating permanently bonded to both sides of the sheets to give maximum protection against acids inside the silo and elements outside. Long's glass-lined silos are designed for both high-moisture grain and medium-moisture forages. Breather bags and bottom unloader with tapered, power-driven sweep auger for grain storage or heavy duty chain unloader for forage and grain storage complete this system.

OTHER FEATURES:

Both storage systems feature glass-fused-to-steel wall and roof panels for maximum feed protection, and radius drawn roofs with 30.5 degree pitch for extra strength. Breather bags, suspended in the roof, provide an oxygen limiting environment for feed. The feed stays fresher longer and is more digestible, more palatable, and more nutritious. These systems are designed to cut feed losses —both quality and quantity, and allow growers to carry more animals on the same number of acres.

(3) STOR-LIX® LIQUID MANURE STORAGE SYSTEMS:

Stor-Lix tanks are constructed of glass-fused-to-steel walls sheets for protection and durability. Long's Stor-Lix system helps to preserve the nutrient value of manure; helps to protect the environment; and affords livestock growers better management of their time, labor, and equipment.

Now is the Time

To Inspect Lightning Rod System

The thunderstorm season is at hand and buildings that have rods should be protected; that is, if the rods are connected and free of obstructions. We urge owners of rodded buildings, especially barns, to inspect them closely and remove all items that will stop the flow of the electrical bolt. In many cases straw, hay, bags, or bird nests might be between the rod and the building and cause a fire. Also, be sure the rods go into moist soil and are well grounded. A close inspection of the rod systems will assure the protection that is needed.

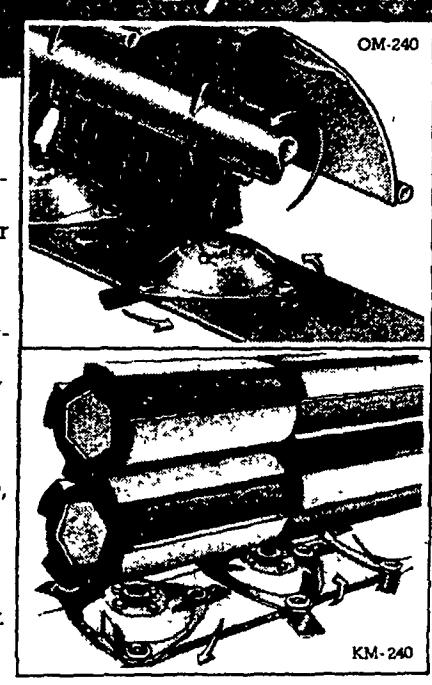
Vicon mower/conditioners help you make hay whether the sun shines or not. Two hardworking models tackle the heaviest standing grass or wet, tangled forage without plugging...and cut faster than any mower on the market.

Vicon uses heavy duty triangular discs that rotate at 3000 rpm for a clean cut — even in marginal weather. Then the hay or grass is conditioned to help it dry fast and even throughout the swath.

Vicon gives you a choice:

For coastal bermuda, fescue, rye and other southern grasses, use the Vicon OM-240. Durable nylon flails strip away the waxy grass stem coating. This ensures that both stem and leaf dry evenly. Results are less leaf loss when turning, tedding and picking up.



For alfalfa, clover and other forage crops, use the Vicon KM-240. It features interlocking rubber rollers that crimp and bruise stems to speed evaporation and save valuable nutrients.

Each has adjustable swath doors for wide or narrow windrows. You can bail directly behind either and eliminate raking.

No chains, sprockets, belts or reel on either model means less maintenance and downtime.

For the grower who only needs a mower, get the fast cutting Vicon CM-165 or CM-240.

See your Vicon dealer today. He has the choice of mower/conditioners you need. Challenge him to make good on Vicon's Fast Drying, No Plugging Promise. The proof is cut and dried.

Adams County farmers: We're all in this together

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

YORK SPRINGS — "We're all farmers first and second we're in beef, poultry, dairy or whatever."

With this common realization, a group of Adams County farmers representing all kinds of commodities met last Monday night and agreed to continue to meet to attempt to get a better handle on problems that affect all of them.

Meeting in the Bermudian Springs High School cafeteria, the group singled out four priorities of concern they want to look into initially. They are:

–Foreign investment and how it appears to make all kinds of financial investments in agricultural areas without concern for immediate return, seemingly tring to wait out the smaller independent producers who will fall by the wayside.

–More farmer input into product marketing and distribution of commodities after they leave the farm, particularly in the area of contracts.

–Having a hand in improving the competitive position of U.S. farm products in world markets.

–And, exerting pressure on Washington to devise a sound, long-range farm policy instead of trying to move from crisis to crisis with every-changing ag programs.

Moderator of the farmer forum discussion at Bermudian Spring High School Monday night was Barry Oswald, vo-ag teacher. Also present was Bill Murray, of the Adams County Extension Office, a couple of Penn State representatives, as well as Farm Credit and about 20 or so farmers.

The forum grew out of continuing concerns in Adams County about the future of agriculture, beginning with German investment in poultry and culminating in the difficulties with the Milk Security Fund and Mandata Poultry Processing, which has economically hit some area farmers very deeply.

The group set up some subcommittees to look into each of their areas of major concern and set the groundwork of continuing discussion at later meetings. They group will next get together on Monday, June 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bermudian Springs High School cafeteria.

A lot of frustration was expressed at the session at the German investment in the poultry industry in the county.

"They have enough money to last six years and it seems like they're trying to push the little guy out," one farmer said.

"And then, they'll have control of everything."

Discussion also included reference to production controls, with farmers getting together to determine what can be produced at a fair profit and then getting the government to set controls accordingly.

Bitterness was expressed at ag imports which are subsidized by other countries and then undercut domestic production costs.

PIK was singled out by the group as another of the federal government's last-minute ag crisis programs that will likely backfire at a cost of many billions of dollars.

The farmers want more say in the contracts they enter and expressed disfavor with such things as price fixing in the egg industry.

The group stressed that farmers themselves must get involved and take the lead in attempting solutions to their problems.

They invited farmers from other parts of the state to similarly get involved.

As one farmer who's a former Mandata grower said:

"Until farmers learn to work together, they're going to have problems.

"Why two weeks before Mandata canceled their contracts, you couldn't get the growers together.

"Until farmers start sticking together, there will be more Mandata's."

Cooper joins ABC

LANCASTER — Staff writer Sylvia Cooper will be leaving Lancaster Farming to join Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, effective Monday. She will be visiting dairymen throughout the state to evaluate cattle under ABC's Linear Mate Program.

Under this program, cows are evaluated on 15 traits, on a scale of one to 50 and mating suggestions are given using ABC's bulls. The information about each bull's daughters is then compiled on a computer so that comparisons can be made on different sires within the same herd.

Ms. Cooper received a B.S. degree in dairy production from Penn State in 1982 and was an active member in the Dairy Science Club. She was raised on a registered Holstein farm near Slippery Rock.

Expanded potato market emerges & breeder to leave

the brand new facilities, which bring current potato chip manufacturing to its best state-of-the-art excellence, that firm alone will utilize some 55 million pounds of potatoes annually. Only about one-eighth of that amount comes out of Pennsylvania as Utz imports spuds from Florida to North Dakota to get the right varieties with the proper specific gravity – proper amount of solids to water content – to make good chips.

But, even as breeder MacKenzie is leaving, his legacy of new varieties to get a better chipping potato is going out to seed growers.

A new experimental variety, called Pa.-1, is going out to seed growers and should be ready to go to commercial growers next year.

"It's specifically designed for the chipping industry," MacKenzie explains.

"It's a good chipping potato and has resistance to Verticillium Wilt.

"It has done well in trials in the Allegheny Plateau areas of Cambria and Somorset counties and also up in Luzerne County.

"But down in Lancaster and York counties, the long, hot summers have given some trouble.

"It tends to refoliate after beetles hit it and then develops a new set of tubers.

"But it has a big advantage of doing extremely well at lower rates of nitrogen fertilizer. We've used about 75 lbs. of N per acre as compared to 125 to 160 lbs. normally."

In addition to development of better chipping varieties, the Penn State program, which has been sponsored by grower checkoff and from other sources, has also been directed at improved table stock.

Pennrose, a new Redskin, of medium maturity and good cooking quality is going fully commercial this year.

Also, the research effort has just received a $57,500 federal grant

Beat blight with There's a better in store for you.

Plus better storage out of your yield.

That's why more and more potato growers rely on a full season schedule of Bravo 500 fungicide.

Nothing equals Bravo 500 when it comes to preventing early and late blight infections that defoliate plants. And Bravo 500 is just as effective against Botrytis vine rot.

It's first-rate control like this, along with proper vine kill, that delivers a better yield at harvest. A healthier crop going into storage.

What's more, Bravo 500 has a built-in spreader/sticker that insures full and even coverage for maximum disease protection that keeps right on working, even during wet conditions.

And Bravo 500 can be applied by ground, air or through sprinkler irrigation systems.

For unequalled disease control that helps you store a better yield, make it Bravo 500 all season.

through the efforts of Sen. Arlen Specter for continued Russet breeding research at Penn State.

"Our program has been well supported by the growers and it will continue forward," MacKenzie explained.

The College of Agriculture has launched a nationwide search for a potato breeder to take over and continue the program.

The new Utz potato chip facility at Hanover covers a 250,000-square-foot expansion that includes potato receiving and handling, raw material storage, potato chip frying and packaging operations, warehousing, offices, and loading area.

Total Utz facilities in Hanover now include some 600,000 square feet. Potato chip manufacturing capacity now totals some 10,000 lbs. of chips per hour, over 100,000 lbs. a day and 15 million lbs. a year.

The new facility includes 65,000 square feet of climate controlled storage area for potatoes. In all, Utz has some 185,000 sq. ft. of potato storage.

The total storage facilities can hold 35 million pounds of potatoes and provides enough raw potatoes to carry the firm throughout the entire winter months.

The new Utz facility has been designed to be energy efficient and heat is recovered from potato chip cookers to provide all the plant's hot water needs and most of its winter heating needs.

"We're also looking at using some of the heat to dry our wet discards for better use as livestock feed," explains Joseph W. Sullivan Jr., vice president and general manager.

In addition to potato chips, Utz is into pretzels, popcorn and corn-based products, as well as a full-line of allied snacks. Its marketing area includes Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

Clean and green amendment ready for Gov. signature

HARRISBURG — The amendment to the Clean and Green Act permitting a one-time split-off use of up to two acres of farmland for ag-related commercial purposes, which passed the House last week, was awaiting the Governor's signature this week.

Senate Bill 380, which amends the Clean and Green Act, permits the split-off of land enrolled in the Preferential Tax Assessment Program for commercial marketing of ag products without the penalty of rollback taxes on the entire farm.

The two-acre commercial split-off is still subject to local zoning ordinances and use-related taxes though.

The commercial development of marketing facilities is limited to the farm owners.

In other ag-related legislative matters in Harrisburg:

–Senate Bill 402 dealing with oil and gas leases has been reported out of the Senate Environmental Resources and Energy Committee. Some minor amendments were added to the bill.

–Interest is being shown among a number of House members in a bill being advanced by the State Grange to require the bonding of poultry processors and brokers. It has resulted from the recent Mandata Poultry bankruptcy, which has affected some 60 broiler growers in the state.

–A meeting was also scheduled for this week with the PUC concerning aerial spraying along utility rights-of-way.

The Grange reports that recommendations concerning the resumption of aerial spraying by West Penn Power Company in Fayette County have been favorably received by the company, PDA and the consumer advocate.

The spraying would be resumed under certain guidelines, which give land owners the option to perform the work along utility rights-of-way themselves and then be reimbursed by the utility. Also, there would be guidelines concerning spraying in the vicinity of certrain areas, such as ponds and crops.

Del. holds spring dairy goat show

HARRINGTON, DE — The second officially ADGA sancioned Dairy Goat Spring Show drew exhibitors from a large area. The show sponsored by the Delaware Dairy Goat Association attracted many exhibitors from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and Virginia.

One little doe was picked up in New York at the airport, where she was just flown in from California. She traveled well and showed even better, according to Debbie Vickers, show secretary.

Another little buck shown was representing a California breeder. The buck had recently been purchased for over $2000.

Mr. Howard Deakyne of Rolla, Missouri, said he was very surprised at the excellent quality of animals on the Eastern Shore. He was also surprised at the approximately 250 animal turnout for the show.

Ms. Vickers reported that Judge Deakyne did an excellent job, his reasons were easy to follow as were his placings. The Judge took time after the show to discuss animals and what could be improved on with each one. She said the exhibitors were pleased with the state fairground facilities, being well suited for the show, with all the pens and the show under one roof.

Speaking on behalf of the Delaware Dairy Goat Association, Ms. Vickers said that they were very pleased with the success of the show and plan to continue holding the show in May every year. The association is pleased that all the exhibitors wanted to be put on the entry list for next years spring show.

N.Y. bull sale sets records

ITHACA — Records were broken at the New York Performance Tested Bull Sale May 6 at the Livestock Pavilion on the Cornell University campus.

The sale was topped at a record $4,000 when ShiRaLoKen Farm of Deposit purchased an Angus bull, Gallagher's Progression 742 L consigned by Gallagher's Farm Inc. of Ghent.

A second record for a New York Bull Test Sale was the average of $1,606 on the 39 bulls consigned.

A third record was the enthusiasm and acceptance of the concept of performance tested bulls. Bidding was spirited throughout the fast paced sale and no bull sold for less than $1,000.

The Simmental bulls had the highest sale average $2,100 for the four in the sale. The highest selling Simmental bull was Simme Valley Mercury consigned by Simme Valley Ranch of Groton and purchased at $2,200 by SunRise Farm of Auburn.

The seven Polled Hereford bulls averaged $1,707 with a Marshall Farm of Port Byron consignment, MF Rockman 2012, as the second highest bull in the sale. The buyer at $3,000 was Hector Hernandez of Analomich, Pa.

The five Charolais bulls averaged $1,660. The highest selling Charolais bulls was Meadow View David consigned by Meadow View Farm of Frankfort and the buyer at $1,800 was Maynard Hall of Penn Yan.

The 22 Angus bulls averaged $1,464 and the single Shorthorn entry sold at $1,500.

Charles and Joann Srebnik of New City donated the proceeds from their Simmental consignment to the Cornell Beef Producers Extension Research Fund. The buyer of this bull at $2,000 was Ralph Timmerman of LaFargeville.

Melinda Christoferson, 17, of Cortland was the youngest consignor and her Shorthorn bull, Springtime Dividend MLC was purchased by the Angelica Feeder Sales Inc. of Angelica. The bull will be used in the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association Southwestern Division's "Lease-A-Bull" program.

The South Central Resource Conservation and Development Area purchased three Angus bulls and one Polled Hereford bull to use in its livestock program. A committee of RC&D, Cornell University, and Department of Agriculture and Markets personnel will select cattlemen in the nine county area to receive these bulls. Each will be given three years to pay back the purchase price (without interest) and each will be expected to participate in the state Performance Testing Program.

The 39 bulls represented the "cream of the crop" of 80 bulls that completed the 140 day uniform performance testing program at Cornell's Livestock Teaching and Research Center at Harford. The total average daily gain for the 80 bulls on test was 3.50 pounds. All of the bulls that were consigned to the sale had to meet certification standards as to frame score, rate of gain, efficiency ratio, and breeding and structural soundness.

The acceptance of performance testing was evident throughout the 1982-83 Bull Test program and sale. Dr. Ralph Vaneema of ShiRaLoKen Farm who purchased the top selling bull said, "I believe in performance testing and I liked the pedigree and the performance of this bull since the start of the test. His performance record of an average daily gain of 3.36 pounds, his frame score of six, and his conformation made him the bull we wanted to add to our herd."

The New York Bull Test Sale and Bull Test program are jointly sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, Cornell University, Cooperative Extension, and the New York Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Dairymen, Inc. pays dividend

BALTIMORE, MD — On April 30 Dairymen, Inc. mailed notices of allocation totaling $13.7 million to its 8,000-plus dairy farmer members. The allocations represented net retained margins from the marketing of member milk during fiscal year 1982 together with net margins from non-patronage sources.

The April 30 Dairymen allocations of retained marketing margins and non-patronage margins represent 18.5 cents for each hundred pounds of milk marketed during the fiscal year. Dairymen checks mailed with the allocation notices amounted to $2.5 million or 3.7 cents per hundred pounds of milk.

The allocation notices also included credits to member equity accounts totaling $6.6 million, representing the 10 cents per cwt capital retains. This is capital invested by members in their association during the fiscal year. It has been the consistent practice of Dairymen, Inc. to revolve or pay to members both the retained marketing and non-patronage margins as well as capital retains on a five-year revolving cycle.

For example, a Dairymen member who shipped 90,770 pounds of milk in fiscal year 1982 was credited with a total patronage dividend of $1,683.51. Of this amount, $336.70 was destributed by check and the remaining $1,346.81 was credited to the member's account. Additionally, the member's equity account was credited with $165.60, representing margins from non-patronage sources and $907.70 in capital retains.

In addition to the above allocation, Dairymen members were also issued investment tax credits totaling $900 thousand, equal to 1.3 cents per cwt of milk marketed. Generally, investment tax credits can be used as a direct dollar-for-dollar offset against federal income taxes in the year in which the member received the notice.

An additional 1.8 cents in non-patronage dividends was credited to each member's equity which brings the total to 21.6 cents per cwt for patronage, non-patronage and investment tax credit allocations.

Dairymen, Inc. members marketed more than 6 billion pounds of milk through their association in fiscal year 1982. Total assets of the milk producers' marketing cooperative amounted to almost $250 million, an increase of 8% over the previous year. Member equity amounted to a record $83 million, an increase of over $11 million from a year earlier.

Manheim couple tells why

Making the move from bigger to better

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

MANHEIM — It seems strange for a young couple starting out in dairy farming and trying to build a future for their growing family, to suddenly cut their herd size in half. When you considers the difficultly involved in enlarging a herd and building up a base in order to etch a place for one's self in a competitive market, it makes you wonder why anyone would take such a dramatic step back in size.

For Darryl and Ruby Bollinger of Manheim the decision was an easy one, one they are happy they made. Without question the change was rather dramatic, but so was the end result. One year later the rolling herd average had increased by over 4500 pounds of milk and 138 pounds of fat, not bad for a couple with small beginnings.

Ruby bought her first registered heifer from Darryl's father, Elam Bollinger, for her FFA dairy project. She first met and started dating Darryl the following year when they both were showing Holsteins at local shows.

They now have two children, David, five, and Denise, two. Ruby who is expecting a third child lends credence to sayings about the beauty of expecting mothers.

When they first married they worked for Darryl's father. Darryl had a few of his own cows in the herd that had been his 4-H projects and likewise Ruby had cows in the herd that had been her FFA projects.

Having a good eye for cattle and a strong desire to build a herd, Ruby had soon acquired more cattle. With both herds combined, the work schedule began to get hectic, especially in late summer while Darryl was away from the farm doing custom silo filling. When their oldest child, David, was born, the work was a little too much for Ruby and her father-in-law to handle comfortably. At that time the father had a partial dispersal to make more room for the growing herd of the up and coming couple.

Darryl Bollinger at the controls of the silo system, where he mixes the TMR.

Having more time with the children is one advantage of a smaller herd.

Moving On

After working for Darryl's father for two years, the couple accepted an offer by Ruby's father to come back to the farm where she had grown up, outside of Elizabethtown. Her father, Robert Ginder, still operating the farm made room for their herd in the barns along side of his grade Holsteins.

Since they were married the couple has rented 200 acres of farmland north of Hershey. The move put them closer to this rented land.

"At Elizabethtown we were milking around 70 cows," said Ruby. "At one time we were up to 80. Of those 70 cows, generally 25 to 30 were registered, the rest were grades.

"At my father's farm," explained Ruby, "the cows were housed in a stall barn that would hold 40 head and a steer stable large enough for another 40. We had to switch them around all the time. In the winter the cows had to stand outside in the freezing weather. It just wasn't the way I wanted to take care of a herd of cows."

Making a Move Back

"We decided to move back down to the Bollinger farm in Manheim," Ruby said. Why? "We wanted to concentrate more on each individual cow. With a large herd you just can't give them that individual attention.

There were other reasons as well. Darryl's father was ready to enjoy a little more free time, and the company of his two grandchildren. This would give Darryl and Ruby the opportunity to be their own bosses, they would be able to rent the farm and run it according to the needs of their operation.

But just watching the enthusiasm come into Ruby's eyes as she talks about the herd, one quickly gets a feel for the deep seeded reasons why they were willing to take a chance and cut back the herd size.

When they made the move back, they carefully reviewed the records on the cows in herd owned by Darryl's father. Picking out the foundation cows from the herd, the ones Darryl had grown up with, the other cows were sold to make room for Ruby and Darryl's herd.

The Payoff

"It's very interesting," Ruby said in a pleased tone, "we had three cows that had DHIA tests of 80 to 90 pounds at Elizabethtown just before we moved. We moved down here on the March 12 last year, on our first test in the beginning of April, three weeks later, those three cows were milking around 100 pounds. The one was milking 114 pounds. We could hardly believe the difference. I knew the move would effect them, because we were going from a set up where we had 80 cows that were being switched all the time, and then we come to a set up where each cow has their own individual stall.

It wasn't until September or October that they were able to realize just how much of an increase they were experiencing, according to Darryl. After completing a year on test in their new operation the effects became very evident.

According to the last test at Elizabethtown, the herd had a rolling herd average of 14,711 pounds of milk and 553 pounds of fat for 1981. One-year after the move, the DHIA test showed the herd's 1982 rolling herd average at 19,250 pounds of milk and 691 pounds of fat, an increase of 4539 pounds of milk and 138 pounds of fat.

Who needs playground equipment when you have all these calf hutches around?

What do they attribute this sizable increase to?

"I think it's because the cows are more of an individual here, they all have their own stall and when they come in the barn that's the stall they go into," said Ruby. "They all feel they have their place."

Changes were made in the ration too. Previouslyy the cows had to compete more at the bunk feeder for silage and haylage, with grain fed in the barn. Now a total mixed ration is fed year round for consistency. Cows are fed more in the stall barn, and as Ruby smugly puts it, "Here we are feeding haylage out of 'blue silo', I think that makes a difference."

Soybeans grown on the farm are exchanged for flaked soybeans that are used to top dress the ration.

"The cows really love the flaked soybeans," Ruby laughed. "So do the kids, Denise helps herself to a few when she is out in the barn."

A Time and Place for Everything

"We now have 38 cows on test," explained Ruby, "and we are not going to get any bigger. There's room to tie 39 in the barn, and we will keep it full. We don't want to have more cows than we have stalls. The thing now is are we going to be able to hold the line on that 19,000 average."

Off the farm activities and organizational work are important to them as well. They are active in the Lancaster County Farmers Association, Ruby is chairman of the women's committee. Last year she was in charge of of the dairy mall exhibit at Park City Mall as part of the farm-city promotion put on by the county association. She plans to again assume responsibility for the dairy mall exhibit this year.

Both are also active in the Manheim Young Farmers, Ruby is in charge of making arrangements for its annual banquet. They are also members of the Holstein Association, not to mention Lancaster DHIA.

Reducing the herd size definitely has its rewards. Their father, Elam, has more time to travel with his wife. They recently went out to Detroit with a local Ford dealer to tour the Ford factory, and enjoy being able to attend the state and national Holstein conventions.

Ruby has more time to spend with David and Denise. Another little Bollinger is due to arrive on July 4, if like brother David, the newborn will be a real little firecracker. Then Ruby will really have her hands full, but she'll probably be too busy to notice. Without a doubt Darryl has a real gem.

Ruby gives a little TLC to one of the cows they started their herd with, this old gal was originally one of Darryl's 4-H projects.

PFA cites farm income loss from export shipping

CAMP HILL — Proposed requirements that a large portion of U.S. farm exports move on higher-cost American vessels have the potential to reduce farm income by $6 billion, according to a study released by American Farm Bureau Federation economists.

The study finds that, if cargo preference requirements are enacted by Congress, inflated labor costs and non-competitive features of U.S. shipping will work a significant hardship on the U.S. farm economy. Anticipating increases in shipping costs of from $40 to $80 a ton, the study concludes that farmers could expect reduced foreign trade and lower farm prices that are strongly influenced by export sales.

Current proposals before Congress would direct that five percent of U.S. farm exports be carried on American flagships in 1984—rising one percent a year until a minimum of twenty percent is reached on all shipments. Computed on the basis of the 1982/83 crop year, Farm Bureau economist Bruce J. Blanton finds that a five percent cargo preference directive would have required almost six million metric tons of grain and soybeans to have been shipped in higher-cost U.S. vessels. A twenty percent cargo preference would have figured out to some 24 million metric tons of those commodities shipped under those conditions.

"Plainly, the U.S. farm economy faces serious export difficulties under such proposals," Blanton said.

The study noted substantial ripple effects of the cargo preference formula, which — in a loss of export markets — would increase farm cost closely tied to export sales, as well as increase the cost of federal farm programs to make up a share of income lost from deficiencies in foreign trade. A significant disappearance of jobs in the export trade is seen.

"Certain casualties" under cargo preference requirements are the U.S. Department of Agriculture's new blended credit program for exports and the proposed export PIK program — both promising new ideas to reduce surplus stocks and government farm program costs to taxpayers.

The study concluded that, "in a competitive world market, artificially high shipping costs of cargo preference could not be passed on to foreign buyers, who would simply buy at lower world prices without paying additional transportation charges. These would be transferred back down the marketing chain to U.S. farmers in the form of reduced exports, and lower farm income."

Diamond Grove sale

RICHMOND, VA — The Diamond-Grove Opportunity sale attracted some 250 buyers to this first time sale. The sale set a good precedent with cows selling well for a sale total of $249,000.

There were 118 head sold for a sale average of $2110. Consigments came from some of Virginia's top herds including, Diamond-Grove, Premier Hidgh Test Syndicate, Park Forest Farm, Blalock and Child, Oak-Green Farm, Rocby Holsteins, Windswept Holsteins, and many other top-notch herds.

The top-selling cow, Mid Rock Nugget Gypsy Hee, brought $17,000 from her buyer Mark Goode of Huddleson, Va. This outstanding individual has seven AI studs interested in contracts for her calves. She is ready to be superovulated in the near future. She was consigned by Cave Hill Dairy, McGaheysville, Va. Out of three generations of Very Good dams, her first dam is an Elevation daughter, her second dam is out of Performer, and her third dam is an Ivanhoe daughter.

The second high seller was an ET calf by Straight-Pine Elevation Pete. Consigned by Rocby Holsteins, Bridgewater, Va., and bringing $7400 from the buyer Bayville Holstein Associates, Norfolk, Va. The National Holstein Convention Sale this June will be held at the Bayville Holstein farm.

Eleven embryos were also sold. The embryos came with a live calf guarentee. The embryos sold for an average of $3964.

Sale manager, Douglas Child, reported that he believed this first time sale to be a success and said Diamond-Grove is tentatively planning to have another sale in about two years. — TW

A Solution For Pit Build-Up

PIT POWER PLUS

What is PPP? What will it do for my hogs? Why should I buy PPP? The above are some of the questions being asked about PPP. PPP is a product which has been designed to do two basic things. First if applied in the right concentrates PPP will substantially reduce pit odors. The second thing PPP does is to break down the hog manure into small sand like particles which makes it possible to pump out the solids. Again, PPP does two things - reduces pit odors and breaks down solids into pumpable material. What does PPP do for me and my hogs? If you reduce the odors you will be reducing the harmful pit gasses in which the hogs are living 24 hours a day, this can lead to health problems for you and your hogs. You can say, "I have pit fans to take care of the pit gasses and odors." The fans do an adequate job of keeping the pit gasses at an acceptable level but they are still there. If you could substantially reduce the odors you could turn off or slow down your pit fan. Think of the money you could save on electricity and winter heating costs.

Would you like to try PPP? Our initial offer of PPP comes with a money back guarantee, if application is followed per instructions. If you are not satisfied after sixty days the guarantee will be honored in full. Call Us Today.

Linear classification subject of barn meetings

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

EPHRATA — Holstein breeders had the opportunity to learn about the new Linear Classification Program at two barn meetings held this week. Information came straight from the source as Holstein Association classifier, Fred Piekenbrock, explained the new system for classifying Holsteins.

Considering the good weather on Tuesday, the meeting was well attended with over forty Holstein breeders coming out to the Carl Martin farm for the meeting. Nelson Wenger, barn meeting committee chairman, said he was glad to see so many of the farmers got their priorities straight and came out for the meeting.

Piekenbrock of New Jersey, is one of eight classifiers presently in Lancaster County. The group will classify over 14,000 Holsteins over the next two months. Classification in this area occurs on a 15 month interval.

Most herds will be classified in May, but some will not be classified until June, said Peikenbrock. That was welcomed news to farmers in attendence who are hurriedly working ground and planting corn.

Piekenbrock reviewed the new system. He went over each category a cow is scored on, and explained the points given for each category. Then he went through the scoring process on one of Martin's cows, giving reasons why he scored her as he did.

According to Piekenbrock the linear classification system is more objective than the old system. It is based more on measurements and less on the opinion of the classifier.

HFA classifier, Fred Piekenbrock, points out some of the features of linear classification system to area farmers.

The Holstein Association developed the individual trait classification program to: measure single biological traits from one observed extreme to the other, to include traits of potential economic and functional importance, and to provide a system of measurement that can be applied uniformly for all traits on a scale of 1 to 50 points.

The Association's classification program has twenty-nine primary and secondary linear descriptive traits that measure functional conformation. To these, have been added management traits. Four management conditions have also been included in the program.

Linear classification is designed to provide dairymen with more evidence on the dominance and recessiveness of certain traits, with ties to specific traits and their impact on production.

Herd owners will be given a separate form to complete for evaluating management traits prior to the day of classification.

Temperament, milking speed, mastitis resistance and reproductive performance are considered management traits. Udder edema, general health and calving ease are also seen as influences of management.

Codes for four management conditions, housing system, milking system, feeding stystem and herd health are also noted. These traits will not be used in evaluating the linear type traits, but will be used for future research benefit for the breeder.

Piekenbrock said, the linear system has a larger point scale to provide the association with more exact numbers. This enables the association to make greater use of available computer programs and will aid in developing computer programs for making mating recommendations

A second similar meeting was held Thursday evening at the Glen Burkholder farme near Washington Boro.

Milk restraining order lauded by Pa. Farmers

LANCASTER — Dairy farmers have scored at least another temporary victory against U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block in their struggle to ward off a 50 cents per hundredweight gross receipts tax, according to Penna. Farmers Union's Executive Director, Carl L. Kaufman.

Judge Matthew Perry of the U.S. District Court in Columbia, South Carolina, last week issued a new 20 day Temporary Restraining Order against Block's collection of the tax. The tax would be subtracted directly from payments farmers receive from their milk buyers. The first milk checks from which the tax was scheduled to be deducted are due mid-May.

The average Pennsylvania dairy farmer will have $400.00 a month taken out of his milk checks, if the 50 cents is collected. A substantial number do not now receive net milk checks equal to $400. a month, according to Kaufman, because of deductions for capital and operating loan payments.

It is assumed that Judge Perry's Restraining Order will stop USDA from collecting the tax anywhere in the U.S., although this jurisdictional question has not been definitively decided. The Judge's Order indicates he will issue a full Opinion by May 25th, at which time he will presumably either issue a further injunction or lift the Temporary Restraining Order.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union's Kaufman said that this development may strengthen Pennsylvania Farmers Union's case here against USDA. Kaufman said it is his understanding that, although Judge Perry turned the South Carolina plaintiffs down two weeks ago on their request for a second injunction, he changed his mind after further reflection on the alleged irregularities in USDA's action.

In a separate news release, Keith W. Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA), said his organization had opposed the assessment, because it would do nothing to bring the supply and demand of dairy production into balance.

"We firmly believe that in order to improve the dairy production imbalance," Eckel said, "We must reward those farmers who cut back production and penalize those dairymen who fail to cutback or increase production."

The farm spokesman reported that U.S. Representative Bill Clinger (R., 23rd District) has introduced legislation (H.R. 2812) which would carry out these objectives.

Rep. Clinger's legislation, called the Milk Producers Equity Act, would repeal USDA's authority to collect the 50 cents/cwt. assessments; establish a temporary incentive program that will pay farmers to reduce production and begin an automatic indexing of dairy support level to government purchases in order to keep supply in line with demand.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union has also expressed support of the legislation introduced by Rep. Clinger.

Officials of the Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation (NEDCO) are also elated with the news that Judge Perry has issued a temporary restraining order.

Deductions would have begun with NEDCO's May 25th check mailing to farmers, said NEDCO President Edward McNamara. "Our farmers have really been uptight about the assessment," he said. "This will give them another reprieve and a very welcome one."

McNamara added that this will also allow the dairy industry more time to work through the National Milk Producers Federation with Congress on incentive legislation now before the House Agriculture Committee in bill form as HR2253 and in the Senate as S1045.

National Milk's Dairy Compliance Plan is funded from producer dollars, he said. And, besides encouraging farmers to cut back on production, it will cost the government only about one half of what it is spending now on Commodity Credit Corporation price support program purchases of dairy products. The 50 cents deduction would have stimulated production. In no way would farmers have cut production, he said.

The NEDCO executive said he doesn't know what will finally come out of the House and Senate regarding dairy legislation but the judge's decision to halt the levy will buy more time for farmers at a time when "we though there were no more legal options," he said.

Michael Donovan General Manager of Eastern Milk Producers and Eastern President, Stanley Korona, agree the action is positive for dairy farmers, they believe it has the potential to disturb development of a longer-term solution now under discussion in the Congress.

Eastern has strongly opposed the assessment specifically supporting the legal review occurring in Matthew Perry's courtroom. "Our objections to this approach, and to possible procedural violations will again receive legal scrutiny," Korona said. Judge Perry's restraining order temporarily halts USDA from collecting the assessment, and further, requires that any monies already collected by refunded to producers.

Donovan added "Dairy farmers can appreciate this reprieve from the assessment, but should also hope for quick resolution of the legal issue. If the challenge drags on too long, it could jeopardize delicate congressional negotiations now underway which appear to be leading to a more equitable and effective dairy program."

A compromise based on the Dairy Compliance Program, developed by the National Milk Producers Federation, is beginning to emerge in agriculture committees of the Congress. Eastern supports this incentive approach over either assessments or straight reductions in the support price.

Another possibility, if the legal wrangling hinders congressional progress, is a USDA and congressional move to significantly reduce the support level. This last eventuality, Eastern fears, might result in a higher actual cost to dairy farmers than would have resulted from the $.50 cent assessment.

Crawford fair colored breed exhibitors organize

By Nancy Kunick
Staff Correspondent

MEADVILLE — Twenty interested persons met May 4 in Meadville for an organizational meeting among exhibitors of colored breed dairy cattle at the Crawford County fair.

Extension Agent Blaine Schlosser sent letters to last year's open class exhibitors of colored breeds. This was done to provide early organization needed for show day.

Last year, approximately 600 dairy cattle were shown at the fair. Schlosser pointed out there are "not near this many dairy cattle at the Farm Show."

The five colored breeds made up half of the total at the Crawford County Fair. Since these breeds seem to be gaining popularity the numbers are there to back a group of this type. The breeds decided to band together since any one of the colored breeds would have little influence. Each breed was represented at the meeting, as well as four counties, including Butler, Crawford, Erie and Venango.

Several items were mentioned to improve the quality of the show. Overall appearance of showmen and cattle, arena decorations, more recognition in each breed and more publicity were among those discussed.

It was determined that to adapt and enact these ideas the exhibitors would have to form an organization. The group decided to meet June 7 at 8 p.m. at the Crawford County courthouse. A committee volunteered to select the most important matters to discussed at that time.

Banvel® herbicide is your best choice to stamp out lambsquarter on Set-Aside/PIK acres.

Maintain weed control now for better cropland next season.

Banvel® herbicide gives you more control of lambsquarter on your Set-Aside/PIK acres than any other mechanical or chemical choice you can make. And that means better cropland when you put those acres back into production.

Banvel eliminates annual broadleaf weeds like pigweed or lambsquarter that could leave more seeds in your fields to germinate next season. And a fall application of Banvel wipes out stubborn perennials like Canada thistle or bindweed, the ones you simply haven't been able to kill any other way.

Banvel gives you maximum control because it penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves throughout the entire plant for a complete weed kill ...leaf-tip to root-tip.

By the end of the week 19 percent of the state's peaches were in the pink stage and 73 percent were in full bloom or past compared with 32 percent in the pink stage and 61 percent in full bloom or past last year. Cherries were reported as 19 percent pink and 73 percent in full bloom or past compared with 30 percent pink and 64 percent in full bloom or past last year. Statewide, 34 percent of the apple trees were in the pink stage, and 34 percent were in full bloom or past compared with 37 percent in the pink stage and 49 percent in full bloom or past at this time last year. Frost damage was still reported as minimal.

meeting. Funk has known Musselman for five years.

"I am pleased that Alan Musselman contacted me and asked to be considered, and that the personnel committee after considering 17 people for the postion, thought Musselman was the most qualified," said Funk.

Speaking of agricultural preservation, Funk said, "I think we are the only county that has implemented a comprehensive plan by designating farm boundries and indicating them on a map where those boundries are that we want to preserve.

"I envision Alan going out to individual farmers, visiting them in their homes and meeting places and encouraging them to put deed restriction on their properties, in those areas where the townships have seen fit to designate the land as agricultural."

Funk said that he was appreciative to the commissioners for providing the board the opportunity to hire someone of Musselman's caliber.

Musselman said, that he brings a great deal of enthusiasm to the position, and is happy that there is already a great deal of enthusiasm in Lancaster County in preserving agriculture.

"Lancaster County has a treasure," said Musselman. "Without a doubt its agricultural land base is beautiful, it is economically important, and it is a way of life. I hope to contribute to its preservation."

"Initially in Maryland there was alot of doubt and skepticism among farmers about deed restrictions," said Musselman. "The skepticism and doubts have diminished. I think land owners here will realize that deed restrictions are a means to make a very personnel, heart felt commitment to keeping the land in agriculture. It is a sign to neighbors and the community that there is a permanence in agriculture."

FFA Representative

At the same meeting Timothy D. Pfautz was named as the FFA representative to sit on the preserve board this year. Pfautz is the second FFA representative to serve a one year term on the board and replaces outgoing representative Mike Pflieger.

Pflieger said his year on the board was a great learning experience, and he felt he was able to fulfill the responsibilities of the position. He expressed a sincere interest that the FFA representation continue as long as the board exists, which he hoped would be a long time.

Commissioner Huber personally thanked Pflieger for his service and commended him on the job he did. He further said that Pflieger was of great value. The whole purpose of preserving agricultural land is to ensure farming's future, so it is very important to have input from these young people and get their thinking on these matters, the commissioner said.

One student is chosen from the county by a selection committee of FFA advisors. Dick Yencer, vice president of the county ag teachers, said Pfautz had demonstrated to the selection committee that he was the best suited for the position, with the greatest interest and willingness to spend alot of time on it.

Pfautz, 16, is a junior from Ephrata. He is secretary of his local FFA chapter and vice president of the county chapter.

LVF membership campaign

A videotape film on Lehigh Valley Farmers is being shown this month to various groups in the agricultural community as part of the Lansdale dairy cooperative's steeped-up membership campaign.

The film depicts the day-to-day activities of the typical milk producer and highlights his importance to the community.

"It's not an easy job," the narrator says. "Being a dairy farmer means long hours and hard work. And it never stops. This businessman can't shut his factory down over the week-end.

Entitled "The Guaranteed Market," the movie shifts from the farms to the various milk and manufacturing plants of Atlantic Processing, Inc., with whom Lehigh Valley Farmers have a 15-year contract guaranteeing the purchase of all Lehigh shippers milk.

Scenes of processing and packaging of milk, the packaging of ice cream, and the production of cheddar cheese are included in the 23-minute videotape.

It concludes with a review of the quality bonus plan and other benefits of membership.

Alpheus L. Ruth, president of Lehigh Valley Farmers, concludes the film with an on-camera statement that his cooperative is "plowing new ground and seeding for the future. Come grow with us."

The audiences for the videotape showings include personnel involved in the financial aspects of dairy farming, extension service personnel, and farm business leaders.

Lehigh Valley Farmers also plans to show the film directly to groups of dairy farmers seeking a new market.

Pa. gets pesticide ok

HARRISBURG — An emergency exemption has been declared by the Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture permitting the use of Ethephon (Ethrel) as a growth regulator to prevent lodging in wheat and barley.

The emergency exemption was declared because of the critical time limitation for still using the pesticide in order to reduce lodging in crops that are nearing ripening and harvesting.

The PDA has also received an exemption from the Environmental Protective Agency for the use of Nemacur in peach, apple and cherry orchards to control nematodes, particularly the dagger nematode.

The Ethrel product, made by Union Carbide, has been used for many years as a ripening agent in certain fruits and vegetables. It is identical to the product, Cerone, for which Union Carbide is seeking national labeling from EPA as an anti-lodging agent. Presently, Cerone is only labeled for experimental use.

Ethrel can be applied at one to two pints per acre from the time that the last leaf (flag leaf) becomes just visible until the time that the seed head emerges from the boot. When the seed head becomes visible, application should be halted. The product works by reducing plant height and increasing straw strength. By avoiding lodging, better harvesting yields are possible and crop quality is improved.

However, if rust is present, Ethrel may enhance the disease.

Ethrel should be considered for use where lodging prone varieties are planted in areas of high nitrogen fertility.

Farm machinery dealers show signs of hard times

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With U.S. farm machinery sales devastated by high interest rates and depressed farm income, manufactures and retailers are struggling to emerge from a recession that has crippled many dealerships and even threatened the survival of giant manufacturers, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

During 1982, unit sales of farm equipment fell precipitously from already depressed year-earlier levels: tractor sales fell 26 percent; combines, 40 percent; balers, 35 percent; and forage harvesters, 32 percent. Overall, the industry is now operating at about 50 percent of capacity.

Many manufacturers, suppliers, and dealers have taken drastic measures to survive, including freezing salaries, canceling employee benefits, slashing capital spending, and encouraging early retirements, according to an article by economist Paul Andrilenas in USDA's FARMLINE magazine.

These tactics appear to be paying off for most dealers: The Farm Equipment Manufacturers Association reports that only 880 of approximately 10,000 dealerships have gone out of business since January 1, 1981, despite the lean times. In the last half of 1982, an association survey found that only 42 dealers closed their doors because of bankruptcy.

Manufacturers also appear to be weathering the economic storm. Andrilenas notes. Industry analysts predict that nearly all major manufacturers will survive — although some major firms may have to reorganize, perhaps in bankruptcy court. Many firms may become smaller, more specialized companies that produce fewer products more efficiently.

Given this restructuring, the U.S. farm machinery industry isn't expected to return to its old form or its former robust strength. And, as the U.S. industry is becoming less centralized, it is bracing itself for an onslaught of competition from foreign firms.

The financial footing of many U.S. firms has been severely weakened, making them vulnerable. Further, the loyalty and confidence of dealers and customers of many U.S. firms have been badly shaken.

While the more earth shaking economic plunge of giant manufacturers has been widely reported, the teeth-rattling reverberations on dealers have received relatively little attention. For farmers, the fate of local dealerships which supply and service essential equipment is probably as important as the survival of major manufacturers.

Dealers have struggled to maintain their share of sales in the depressed market. This difficulty was compounded if they handled products from a firm that appeared on the verge of bankruptcy. Customers worry about warranty and service on equipment should the manufacturer go out of business.

Even dealers selling equipment from stronger firms have suffered from depressed sales and high interest rates. To reduce inventories and maintain sales, many dealers have slashed prices, adding pressure on marginal dealerships. Further, used equipment prices — particularly items manufactured by financially troubled firms—have declined.

How bad has business been lately? According to 1981 data from an industry study, average sales per dealership increased only 6 percent from over $2.3 million in 1979 to just under $2.5 million in 1981. When a 10-percent annual rate of inflation is taken into account — when sales are expressed in constant 1972 dollars—the average sales value for 1981 slipped from $2.5 million to $1.5 million, indicating that 40 percent of the dealers' current volume of sales is due to inflation. The slippage continued through last August as per-unit sales of new equipment fell at least a fourth from year-earlier levels.

Meanwhile, expenses soared, chewing away dealers' profits. Average dealership expenses rose $44,835—13.4 percent—from $335,566 in 1980 to $380,401 in 1981. Overall, expenses as a percentage of gross sales rose from 13.2 percent in 1979 to 15.3 percent in 1981.

High interest charges are a major factor in rising expenses, since dealers usually borrow funds to maintain their inventories of equipment for sale. Interest charges in 1979 were about 0.76 percent of sales, representing about $18,000 in average annual costs for dealers. In 1981, these average dealer charges more than doubled to 1.53 percent of total sales, with an average cost of $37,996.

Interest rates, then, created a spiraling problem for dealers. As they rose, they pushed up the expense of maintaining inventories while depressing sales and slowing the inventory turnover. As the inventory increased due partly to interest rate-depressed sales, debt financing costs were jacked up several more notches.

Hard figures underline this predicament.

Average dealer's inventories of new and used equipment grew about 42 percent, from $628,498 in 1979 to $890,304 in 1981, Andrilenas notes. Pushing up the inventories was a decline in equipment turnover as the annual number of times total inventory was bought and sold declined from 2.36 in 1979 to 1.62.

A related cost in maintaing dealer inventories was average

Dairy seniors discuss 50 cent deduction

BY SYLVIA COOPER

UNIVERSITY PARK — Many people are wondering what impact the 50 cent per hundred-weight deduction will have on the state's dairymen. More than this, many are concerned for the future of young dairymen who are getting a start in the business.

To get some idea of young farmers concerns we spoke with three seniors, all of whom majored in dairy production at Penn State. Of the three, two are planning to return to their home farms and the third plans a career working with registered Holsteins.

Let me introduce them to you:

Melanie Alsdorf grew up on a 120 cow registered Holstein farm in Crawford County, was active in 4-H and the Junior Holstein Association. Her father, Marion, is the current president of the Pa. Holstein Association.

Melanie's plans include getting married and returning to her home farm with her husband, who will eventually work into the partnership. She may also do some free-lance writing on the side.

Lisa Cooper comes from a registered Holstein farm near Slippery Rock, spent ten years participating in 4-H activities and has been showing her own cattle since she was nine-years old.

She plans to work for either a state Holstein Association or the National Holstein Association, perhaps in the journalism field.

Finally, Don Bowman, from Paradise, Lancaster County, comes from a 50 cow Holstein herd that is partially registered.

Don is planning to return to his home farm and work into a partnership with his father. He already owns cattle and intends to expand his herd.

Here are their comments on some selected questions.

What impact will the 50 cent deduction have on the dairy industry or on you as a dairy farmer?

Melanie Alsdorf - The situation will be a little different for us. We will be young dairy farmers yet we will be going into an established herd, so we will be a lot better off than if we were starting on our own.

We won't be experiencing a lot of debt. Even as we work into the partnership, we won't have to go in over our heads.

As far as other dairymen are concerned, if deductions stay at 50 cents, it may not cause a great impact, but if it gets up to $2.00, eventually that is going to hurt a lot of dairy farmers, more than just the marginal ones.

It's cruel to say that maybe the marginal, inefficient farmers should be out of the dairy business, but yet I think it will wipe out more than the marginal ones. When you figure the dollars lost, even for people who are well off now, its going to restrict our cash flow.

Lisa Cooper - There will be lots of dairymen that go out of business and plenty more that will be strapped for money. They won't be expanding as much as they had in the past or spend as much on improvements.

Eventually some of the more questionable operations, those who have large debt loads, will go out of business.

I can understand exactly why the 50 cent program was put into effect, but I wish legislators would find an alternative because this program hurts everyone, both good producers and poor producers. But, something needs to be done to cut the surplus.

Don Bowman - It's going to affect us and I'm sure it's going to affect everyone. It will make things tougher, force us to be a little more efficient. We'll have to watch where we spend our money.

We don't want to get into debt any more than we are because we're still paying off on our farm. That's the only debt load we are carrying and once it is gone, we can make a few improvements as time goes on.

I don't think the 50 cents is too much, but if they go any more than the 50, it is going to start cutting back on our living expenses. I wouldn't want to go any more than the 50 cents or it will hurt us a lot more.

If they go to $1.00, that will be cutting it close. My dad may have to sell more seed corn for DeKalb for some added income.

Would you be in favor of a program which would take a substantial deduction from the milk check to go toward advertising?

Returning to the home dairy is one of Melanie Alsdorf's plans as she prepares for graduation. The daughter of Pa. Holstein Association president Marion Alsdorf, she comes from a 120 cow herd in Crawford County.

Melanie Alsdorf - Definitely. I was highly disappointed when the referendum was defeated by such a great margin. We are producing a product and it is our responsibility to sell it. The Coke and Pepsie people don't expect other people to sell their product and I think it's our job to sell ours.

I think the national check ought to be the best idea because that way everyone, regardless of where they are, can contribute and the advertising would be national and more effective than localized advertising. It would make a more effective program.

Lisa Cooper - I believe we all have to advertise our product since we are the ones that help make it. We are all contributing to the surplus.

Milk consumption has gone down in the past so it is our responsibility to inform consumers about our product if we want to sell milk.

Don Bowman - Yes, definitely. Interstate, that's where we ship now, is doing that now. I'm sure there will probably be an increase in advertising in the future.

I can't see a farmer argue not to take that (money) out for advertising, because it will help in the long run. We definitely have to increase our advertising.

How would you feel about a program that would reward dairymen who are producing a high quality product and make deductions on those who produce a low quality product?

Melanie Alsdorf - I think there is a need for that with the change in consumer demands and their consciousness of milk quality. It has to start out good at the dairy farm.

Producing quality milk is our responsibility and we should look at how it is treated at the farm. I would favor a program based on somatic cell count, in fact I think some milk companies are going to a bonus program.

Quality pricing is needed because we have to include the consumers thoughts and how they look at our product. If they don't drink it, then there is no use producing it. If they look at our farms and they are clean, they may buy milk, if they are dirty, maybe they won't want to.

I definitely think the ones causing the milk quality problems should be pentalized.

Lisa Cooper - I'd say that would be a very good idea. One of the consumers problems is that they can't get a uniform product. They have a lot of complaints about not having uniform taste in milk and if you could guarantee a quality product, it would help promotion quite a bit.

Since there is a surplus, there is no reason why we have to have a low quality product.

Don Bowman - It's a good idea. I don't think it will bother us because we don't have high bacteria counts. I can't see it hurting us any in the future.

What kind of predictions do you have for the dairy industry in the next five years?

Melanie Alsdorf - It's going to be rough, no question about it. Farmers cash flow will be restricted and I'm sure there will be many sales held by people that can't make it.

For people that can survive, it's going to turn around eventually, but it's going to take longer than is comfortable. Everyone is going to feel the pinch.

I guess the only way dairy farmers have survived to this point is that they have been optimistic. We've got a product the consumer wants and needs. If we put some effort to advertising and if the 50 cent deduction was going for this, I think we would see some change.

Lisa Cooper - I would say that things will be getting better in the next five years, but I think they will get worse before they get better.

Don Bowman - There will be at least ten percent of our dairymen that will go out of business. They just won't be able to make it, especially if deductions go higher.

These farmers wouldn't be able to carry the debt load because it has been building up over too many years. I'm sure milk prices are going to come down and some farmers will think they have to milk more cows to pay their debts.

I hope the dairy business gets much better than it is now. It really seems grim now but we should be able to work it out.

Dr. Lawrence Muller, professor of dairy and animal science at Penn State offered these predictions.

"I guess I would concur with what other people say. We're going to lose up to 20 percent of our dairymen. If we don't increase utilization, we will have to produce less.

"Unfortunately, it's some of our younger people that will be hit hardest by it, those that have the big debt load and can't take the 50 cent or $1.00 less. Some of the established dairymen that do not have much debt load, their cost of producing milk is about eight to nine dollars per hundred-weight.

"Some of the younger folks that have 25 to 30 percent of their expenses in debt payment or interest may still have that nine dollar production cost, but you add on another three dollars for fixed cost for principle and interest and even if they get more efficient, its going to be pretty tough.

"If you do a little economic calculating, the 50 cent accessment will not likely decrease production, but most people feel will actually increase it. People will just add a few more cows. When we get to the dollar, then that will start hitting some people."

Don Bowman intends to return to his home dairy farm to work into a partnership with his father after graduation. Bowman comes from a 50 cow Holstein herd at Paradise.

Lisa Cooper, from a 34 cow Registered Holstein herd at Slippery Rock, is not quite sure what lies ahead in her future. Of one thing she is certain, she wants to work with RX registered Holsteins.

occupancy expenses—the cost of land and facilities—which jumped from 1.24 percent of sales in 1979 to 1.42 percent in 1981.

Other rising expenses also pressed dealers. Salaries comprised 35 percent of total dealership expenses in 1981, the largest cost element. The figure would be even higher, but salaries of mechanics and servicemen are charged to their sales accounts.

Dealers' efforts to restrain rising costs are evident in developments concerning salary expenses. Although salaries as a percent of total sales increased from 5.1 to 5.4 percent from 1979 to 1981, average dealership personnel dropped 7 percent from 14.1 to 13.1 persons, reflecting the sluggish market. From 1970 to 1981, sales per employee more than tripled from about $58,000 to over $188,000.

The net effect of all of these rising expenses and sluggish sales has been an erosion of profits. In the early 1970's, average net operating profit was $24,250, rising to $86,190 in 1979, but declining to $55,596 in 1981. Net profit on sales alone dropped from about $30,000 in 1979 to a net loss of almost $7,000 in 1981.

Weighing heavily on farm machinery sales and profits is the anemic farm income performance of the past few years. When farmers are in a financial bind, they defer expensive equipment purchases as much as possible, making do with equipment on hand. Cheaper used equipment and parts and service sales, which provide less profit, become a larger portion of a dealer's total business.

The slump in equipment sales has created a buyers' market which forced down the average profit margin on new and used equipment from 9.9 percent in 1979 to 8.6 percent in 1981—about a 13-percent drop. From 1980 to 1981, the profit margin for parts was almost flat at about 31 percent, but the profit margin on service labor increased over 1 percent to almost 38 percent.

While profit margins tightened, the dealers' assets, as stacked against liabilities, declined in 1981. Faced with growing inventories and slow sales turnover, dealers have seen average ownership equity—assets minus liabilities—decline from 29.3 in 1979 to 24.6 in 1981.

HFA files complaint against cattle shipment group

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has filed a complaint in the United States District Court, Eastern District of California, against Brent K. Fisher, Trans-Global Air Transport, Inc., Trans International Services, Inc., Choon H. Jhoun, Yoon Sup Lee (also known as Joseph Y.S. Lee), Overseas Metals Corporation and Western Products, Inc., all of California.

In the complaint, the Holstein Association has charged that those cited have falsely and fraudulently misrepresented animals with counterfeit documents.

The complaint named those who allegedly shipped 207 dairy animals in June 1982 to Korea for purchase by Korean buyers. These animals were said to be accompanied by false representations, false descriptions and false designations of origin, procured, prepared and inserted on certificate of registry forms, official pedigree forms and application for transfer forms, which those cited had allegedly caused to be counterfeited from the authentic forms of the Association.

Additionally, the complaint asserts that the same parties sought to ship additional cattle under similar conditions in July, 1982, but the shipment was halted.

As a result of the alleged fraud and deceit, the Koreans who purchased the cattle were said to be dissatisfied and defrauded, and the Association suffered an integrity loss to its official documents.

Claim Filed

The Association is seeking relief in the matter by asking for damages suffered by the Association and expenses for investigation costs and other expenditures to restore goodwill with the Korean Animal Improvement Association, agencies of the United States Government and others.

The Association has also asked the court to require the parties named to account and pay over to the Association all profits derived by them from the June, 1982 sale of cattle to the Korean purchasers and to deliver for destruction all counterfeits of Association documents.

And finally, the Association has asked for an order enjoining the parties involved from continuing to counterfeit certificates of registry, official pedigrees and other documents of the Association.

April base price

ORDER No. 4 BASE MILK PRICE $13.82 FOR APRIL

Alexandria, VA, — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced an April 1983 base milk price of $13.82 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $12.30. The weighted average April price is $13.80 and the butterfat differential for the month is 16.9 cents. The base milk price was down 11 cents from the previous month but is 8 cents higher than last April.

The advertising withholding rate, which is deducted from the base and excess milk prices but not the weighted average price, was 14 cents a hundredweight. A total of $731.2 thousand was deducted for advertising in April compared to $716.5 thousand a year ago. The gross value of April producer milk was $72.0 million, compared to $70.0 million last year. The transportation credit, which was effective April 15 through April 30, totaled $74,579.97.

Mr. Shine said that producer receipts totaled 522.3 million pounds during April, an increase of 10.5 million pounds or 2.1 percent over last April. The average daily delivery per producer increased 74 pounds or 3.1 percent from April 1982. Class I producer milk totaled 239.4 million pounds and accounted for 45.83 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, almost exactly the same percentage as last April.

Base milk accounted for 89.80 percent of total producer milk receipts in April compared to 89.20 percent a year ago. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.69 percent in April compared to 3.66 percent a year earlier. This is the first time in over a year that the butterfat test has been higher than the previous year.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 205.6 million pounds during April, an increase of 6.3 million pounds or 3.2 percent over a year earlier.

U.S. speeds bacon testing

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Beginning June 6, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will use a new laboratory procedure that reduces from eight to four working days the time needed to confirm nitrosamine levels in bacon.

"The new procedure reduces cost by speeding the test procedure and using less labor than the present method, but it provides comparable results," said Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

Houston said the new procedure, called the "low temperature vacuum distillation method," is used to extrace nitrosamines from fried bacon samples prior to confirmation testing.

USDA inspectors at meat plants collect samples of the most common type of bacon produced—that made by "pumping" liquid cures into pork bellies. Samples are sent to an agency field laboratory to be tested for nitrosamines, which are cancer-causing compounds that can form when bacon cured with nitrites is fried. Nitrosamines have been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

According to Houston, when the presence of nitrosamines is confirmed all bacon in the plant is retained. Each individual lot must be tested before the bacon can be sold; or, it may be used as an ingredient in other products in which no nitrosamines will form.

"In testing the bacon, USDA laboratories perform a preliminary analysis of nitrosamine levels using the thermal energy analyzer. If this test indicates potential violative levels, the department is required to collect and analyze additional samples. Confirmation testing is done by the combined methods of gas chromatography and mass spectrometry 21 days after sample collection to approximate the time lag between bacon production and consumption." Houston said.

For a description of the new method and additional information, contact Richard L. Ellis, Director, Chemistry Division, Science Program, FSIS, USDA, Room 404 Annex, Washington, DC 20250, phone (202) 447-7623.

These shelves at the "Rustic Rooster" are laden with beautifully hand crafted items, all consigned to the shop. Quality is one of the most important considerations in taking on consignments to be handled there.

Denise plays with her two Nubian goats, Millie and Lucy, who presented her with four kids and now give plenty of milk. The Baers are drinking the milk and trying to stay ahead of the flow.

This is the newest consignment shop in the southern York area, named the Rustic Rooster and featuring fine hand crafted items.

Gardening + needlework = "Rustic Rooster"

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

Gardening and needlework are not necessarily complimentary activities, though many women successfully combine the two.

Denise Baer, Craley (York County), not only enjoys both and is good at them, but is also fulfilling an ambition by developing both into a business.

Beginning with asparagus and ending with zucchini, gardening is Denise's pride and joy. She says, "I enjoy taking care of my garden." She likes preserving the harvest; she likes working in the garden; and she now enjoys selling her bounty to neighbors and friends.

Her favorite crops are asparagus and black raspberries, but she grows most of the other garden crops common to the area, including a lot of sweer corn and sugar peas.

Everything is grown organically, and Denise says she controls garden pests by using a natural disease organism on worm-like pests. Other bugs she picks off by hand, and tries to avoid some problems by planting things like green beans very early.

The Baers have lived on their 20-acre farm for the last four years, and have steadily expanded the gardens each year. So far, Denise picks all the produce she sells because she feels her hillside location is not ideal for 'pick-your-own'. She often takes orders for vegetables and said she feels people like to use her produce even when they have their own garden because they can get a large quanitity of food at one time for freezing.

Having grown up on her grandparents' 13-acre general farm in New Jersey, Denise feels at home with her garden. Her grandparents had a truck garden and she says, "Just being around it had to rub off. My parents are still good gardeners."

Denise's latest venture is far removed from gardening, but fits in perfectly with her country setting. "The Rustic Rooster" is a consignment shop located in the summer kitchen adjacent to the Baers' farmhouse, and is operated by Denise and two friends, Vicki Howard and Charles Howard, cousins.

The grand opening was held in April and it is now open regularly. So far there is plenty of time for Denise to work in the garden between helping customers, but the opening was scheduled to take advantage of the summer traffic.

Located one mile south of Craley on Route 425, the shop is located along a very busy road, according to Denise. "It is one of the major roads from the southern end of the county. We get a lot of summer traffic." It is certainly rural, however, and Denise says "We definitely have to advertise. That has been one of our biggest expenses."

The shop evolved from a group of friends who got involved in Craley Days, held every summer in the small town, featuring food and craft bazaars. The friends donated craft items to the event and decided that if they could sell them there, they could sell them in other locations. Last fall they rented a stand at York Central Market, with their own and consignment items.

Three of the six decided to keep the idea going. They considered attending craft shows and sales, and then they investigated rents for a permanent shop, but eventually decided the summer house might just be the answer.

Since Denise's husband Gary works with Susquehanna Developers in Columbia, the major remodeling was undertaken by him. "Gary did just about everything," Denise says. There is a new first floor and new stairs to the second floor, but we tried to keep everything else original." An attractive feature of the first floor is the brick fireplace and hearth. The plaster walls were also retained and patched. The painting was undertaken by the three partners.

The main farmhouse dates to the early 1800s or late 1700s according to Denise, and is all log. The foundation and the beams in the summer kitchen are the same as the ones in the house, although it is a frame building, perhaps having been rebuilt.

Presently the shop has fifty consignors. The merchandise is selected by the three proprietors by looking at samples, something they do at the regular meetings they hold. They invite consignments and make their final selection on the basis of the quality of the item, the suggested price range, and if the person can keep the shop supplied as needed.

There is "everything you can think of," Denise says. Denise herself does sewing for the shop, including baby clothes and christening clothes, along with cross stitch and needlepoint. Denise says, "I got the sewing from my mother who does alterations." Her mother was also a seamstress. "I got my experience from my mom and home ec in school."

She is well equipped for sewing, having filled one bedroom with her sewing machine and the closet full of supplies, neatly arranged for easy access.

Vicki, one of the other proprietors, "does a little of everything." She makes machine applique quilts, dolls and pressed flower pictures.

Denise says, "We have a lot of men with consignments." Most of these do woodworking, but the exception is Charles, one of the partners, who does quilling.

As a general rule, Denise said she feels the people who have given them consignments have been happy. "Some couldn't believe they could sell their stuff. Many were just giving their things as gifts, and older people, especially, couldn't believe they could sell it."

Labeling of sulfiting agents required

LANCASTER — According to a new ruling, consumers must be informed if sulfiting agents have been used on foods in a retail establishment says Greta C. Vairo, Extension home economist with the Penn State Extension Service.

FDA has issued an interpretation of the model codes for food service, food store, and food vending operations, declaring that fruits and vegetables or other foods for raw consumption to which the retail operator has added sulfiting agents without advising consumers are to be considered unsafe and a violation of the codes. Consumers are to be notified of the use of the sulfiting agents by means of a conspicuous, easily readable label, sign, placard or menu statement.

Six sulfiting agents are approved for food use: sulfur dioxide, sodium sulfite, sodium and potassium bisulfite, and sodium and potassium metabisulfite, all of which are generally recognized as safe. The agency said these agents have been used in markets on fresh fruits and vegetables for display and on shrimp and other seafood for display; in bakeries as a dough conditioner; in restaurants on fresh fruits and vegetables (particularly for salad bars), an avocados for guacamole and on peeled or cut raw potatoes before cooking, and by caterers on fresh fruits and vegetables for display.

Sulfites can remain in or on the food, despite washing, because they bind to food constituents. The agency noted recent medical findings linking ingestion of sulfiting agents to severe adverse reaction among sensitive individuals, FDA added that: "Preliminary estimates based on available information suggest that fresh green vegetables salads may be a source of acute exposure to sulfiting agents among persons ingesting average servings of food." If a sensitive person is aware that foods have been sulfited, they should avoid eating those foods.

"Rustic Rooster"

The consignors range in age from teenagers to someone in her seventies.

Denise is there on a daily basis, acting as manager, and she says it doesn't bother her when people visit the shop just to look and get ideas. "They might tell someone and get someone else to come here."

She feels the interest in crafts began in the seventies during the Bicentennial when people began to be interested in getting back to their roots. "They want to learn old crafts," Denise observes. She adds, however, that she feels modern crafts sometimes get overlooked, noting, "Modern crafts are just as good as the old ones." Nevertheless, they don't seem to sell as well in this area.

She said one of their biggest doubts before opening the store was that "there are craft shops all over the place." Nevertheless, response has been good, and she said the closest similar shop is in Red Lion.

The winter was devoted completely to getting the summer kitchen open and ready for business, and for Denise, it is a relief that it is actually underway. She says, "Now I can get back to business as usual. My garden's my first love."

Getting back to the garden is not her only work away from the shop, however. Denise is also largely responsible for their two Nubian goats, four steers, 100 broilers and 100 layers, along with an assortment of geese and other farm animals.

When asked why she got the goats, Denise says with a laugh, "Because a cow is too big." The two goats produced four kids and are now filling the Baers' refrigerator with nearly two gallons of milk a day. Fortunately Denise says, "We like the taste of it. Ever since I started milking we've been drinking it." She would be glad to find a few customers for the goat milk, along with the vegetables and the consignments for the shop."

She is experienced in dairying, having worked for a dairy in New Jersey before moving to Pennsylvania. "They had a milking parlor - it was fun," she states. She is not planning to expand her goat dairy to that extent.

With all their produce and animals, the Baers are nearly self-sufficient when it comes to food, something Denise is proud of. She enjoys the preserving necessary to ensure a year-long supply of food, fresh from their farm.

As for the shop, she says, "We are always looking for more consignment people. We hope to outgrow the building. We are limited on space here." The shop is presently open from 12-5 on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; 12-9 on Friday and 10-4 on Saturdays.

Between the gardens and the shop, Denise has plenty to do to fill her days, and that's just the way she likes it.

.. VARIETY OF CHOICES IN BED LINENS

After a long day, nothing is more relaxing than curling up in a clean, neatly-made bed. A clean bed can always be yours, if you have at least three sets of sheets and pillowcases for every bed: one on your bed, one in the laundry, and one set in the linen closet so a quick change of linens can be made at any time.

Always note the care instructions on the package when you purchase sheets. In general, sheets should be washed on the permanent press cycle in warm or hot water. Follow usage instructions on the package of detergent and bleach or other laundry additives for best results. Wash two sheets at a time, filling out the load with pillowcases and other items that can be washed and dried together. Tumble dry on the permanent press setting. Remove as soon as the cycle is finished. Then fold, since little or no ironing is necessary.

Sheets come in a choice of two basic types: muslin and percale. The fabrics differ in thread count (number of threads per square inch) and the type and size of yarn used. Muslin sheets have lower thread counts and heavier weights than percales because of their coarser yarns. However, a good muslin is durable and economical. Percale is generally made of combed as well as carded yarns that are finer, smoother and lighter in weight than muslin. Consequently, the sheets have a lighter, more luxurious feel. A percale thread count can vary from 170 to 200.

The majority of bed linens today are blends of cotton and polyester. The combination offers durability, wrinkle resistance and easy maintenance.

Bed sheets, both flat and fitted, come in standard sizes to fit standard-sized mattresses. The most common are twin, double, queen and king sizes. Crib, cot or youth bed sizes may also be available. Mattresses vary in thickness so the size sheet (particularly the fitted type) needed must be determined after measuring the length, width and depth of the mattress.

Pillowcases are sized for regular, queen or king size pillows.

Most manufacturers label sizes by the torn length, before the sheet or pillowcase is hemmed. Top sheets should be approximately ten inches larger than the mattress size so they can be comfortably tucked in on all sides.

PREVENT POISON IVY

An easy solution to prevent a poison ivy rash is to stay away from the plant completely. But the problem is that poison ivy can grow almost anywhere and a rash can occur if one is exposed to the irritating oil from the plants. Poison oak and sumac also contain the same ingredient. Touching the plant is not the only way a rash can develop. The oil can be on the fur of a dog, garden tools or play toys. To avoid a troublesome rash when walking through the woods, don't let your hands touch anything. Wear a long-sleeved shirt, long pants and boots. Also, use gloves when you work in the garden. Undress as soon as you come inside and wash the clothes immediately. Clean boots or shoes with an all-purpose cleaning product. Then take a shower. The sooner you wash an area that has been exposed to poison ivy, the better. The first few hours after contact, poison ivy oil can be washed off the skin with soap and water. But if you wait too long, the oil will become locked within the skin and cause problems.

May is EGG-citing!

As you probably noticed from last week's issue of L.F., this is Egg Month!

The Pa. Department of Agriculture kicked off Egg Month in country club style with a golf tournament and egg putt.

Now, L.F. would like to recognize egg month with recipes that will tempt any taste buds.

With today's food prices, eggs make 'cents.' Eggs are a bargain when you compare their price by the pound to the prices of other protein foods.

All you need is a little imagination to create egg-citing, economical epicurean delights. Begin your quest with our recipes below. And Happy Egg Month!

CHEESY SKILLET SUPPER

1 can condensed Cheddar cheese soup, undiluted
1/4 c. milk
1 1/2 T. chopped chives or green onions with tops
1/8 to 1/4 t. Tabasco
2 c. uncooked egg noodles, cooked and drained
8 hard-cooked eggs, wedged
12 cherry tomatoes, halved

In large skillet over medium heat, blend together soup, milk, chives and Tabasco. Cook, stirring occasionally, until bubbly. Stir in noodles. Gently fold in eggs and tomatoes. Cover and simmer until hot, about 4 to 5 minutes.

REUBEN FRITTATA

1 pkg. sliced corned beef, cut in bite-size pieces
1/2 c. sauerkraut, well-drained
1/4 t. caraway seeds
8 eggs, beaten
2 T. butter
1/2 c. shredded Swiss cheese

In large bowl, combine corned beef, sauerkraut, caraway seeds, and eggs. Heat butter in large ovenproof skillet until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are set, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Broil about 6 inches from heat until cheese is melted, 2 to 3 minutes.

TEXAS BAKED EGGS

1 can chili with beans
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese, divided
1/4 c. chopped green pepper
4 eggs

Combine chili, 1/2 c. of the cheese and green pepper. Press into bottom and sides of two individual baking dishes or large custard cups. Break two eggs into each chili-lined dish. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup cheese. Bake in preheated 350 degrees oven until eggs are set, 30 to 35 minutes.

RICE PUDDING

2 eggs
1 c. of milk
1/4 c. sugar
1 t. butter, melted
1/2 t. vanilla
dash of salt
1 c. cooked rice
1/4 c. raisins, optional

In medium bowl, beat eggs. Blend in milk, sugar, butter, vanilla and salt. Stir in rice and raisins, if desired. Pour into greased 3 or 4 cup baking dish or casserole.

Bake in preheated 325 degree oven 25 minutes. Gently stir rice up from bottom of dish. Continue baking until knife inserted halfway between center and outside edge comes out clean, 15 to 20 minutes longer.

Sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg, if desired.

Is your file of quick supper recipes ready for the upcoming season? Cheesy Skillet Supper is a good candidate for that file. Besides being easy, this dish is good for you. The eggs provide the complete protein needed in a main dish, and add a bonus of vitamins and minerals.

CHEDDAR CREAMED EGGS

8 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
2 T. butter
2 T. flour
1 1/2 c. milk
2 t. parsley flakes
1 t. prepared mustard
1/4 t. seasoned salt
1/3 c. shredded Cheddar cheese
biscuits, muffins or toast

In medium saucepan over medium heat melt butter. Blend in flour. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium-high heat until smooth and bubbly. Stir in milk all at once. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and boils. Remove from heat. Stir in parsley flakes, mustard, seasoned salt and cheese until cheese is melted. Add sliced egg. Cook over low heat just until thoroughly heated. To serve, spoon over biscuits, muffins or toast.

PICKLED EGGS
Canadian Style

2 c. white vinegar
1 t. mixed pickling spice
1 med.-sized lemon, peeled and sliced
2 T. sugar
1 t. salt
12 hard-cooked eggs, shelled

Combine first 5 ingredients and simmer 8 minutes. Place the shelled eggs in a wide-mouthed 1 1/2-quart jar. Strain in the hot vinegar.

Cover and chill in refrigerator for several hours before using. The eggs will keep in the pickling solution for several days.

SMOKEHOUSE EGGS

1/4 c. cooked ham and bacon handful of watercress
6 eggs
1/4 c. thick buttermilk

Dice the cooked ham and bacon.

May is egg month and June is picnic month. Get ready for both now with Pickled Eggs. Canadian Style.

While this is browning lightly over medium heat, take scissors and snip up the watercress.

Beat eggs and add the thick buttermilk or cream. Pour into well buttered pan on low heat. When bottom has just set, toss in the browned minced ham, bacon and cress. With fork, gently fold in these and stir egg only enough to work into inch-long flakes — not whipped and frazzled into fine, overcooked crumbs. Cook only until set throughout.

And for your microwave cooks, we have the following two recipes:

SAUSAGE SCRAMBLE

1/4 lb. bulk pork sausage
6 eggs
1/3 c. milk
1/2 t. salt
1/8 t. pepper
17-oz. can whole kernel corn, drained
1/4 c. green onion slices

Line 8-inch square baking dish with double layer of paper towels; cover with additional paper towel. Cook 2 1/2 to 3 minutes on full power. Remove paper towels. Beat together eggs, milk and seasonings. Add egg mixture, corn and onion to sausage; mix well. Cover; cook 5 minutes on full power, stirring after 3 minutes of cooking. Stir; cover. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

1 t. salt
2 med. zucchini, diced
1/4 c. chopped onion
2 T. flour
6 eggs
1 c. milk
1/2 t. basil, crushed
1/2 t. oregano, crushed
2 c. shredded mozzarella cheese
3 crisply cooked bacon slices, crumbled

Sprinkle salt over zucchini; let stand 10 minutes. Combine zucchini and onion in 8-inch square baking dish; cover. Cook 6 minutes on full power or until crisp-tender. Drain. Sprinkle flour over zucchini; toss lightly. Beat together eggs, milk and seasonings. Add egg mixture and 1 1/2 c. cheese to zucchini; cover. Cook 6 minutes on full power; stir, moving cooked portions to center after 3 minutes of cooking. Stir; sprinkle remaining cheese and bacon over top. Cook 1 to 2 minutes on full power or until cheese melts. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

ANSWER — in response to Mrs. Harold Cherrington's request for dandelion flowers, I am submitting Blossom Fritters:

Pick fresh yellow dandelion blossoms in the morning. Wash carefully and turn upside down on a paper towel. Cut the stem as short as possible. Dip each blossom into batter and fry in about 1 inch of fat in fry pan (395 degrees for skillet) until golden brown. Drain on paper towel. Serve immediately.

Batter

1 1/3 c. flour
2 t. baking powder
¼ t. salt
⅔ c. milk
1 egg, well beaten

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add milk gradually, then stir in egg.

Inner Strength

New 18- and 20-hp tractors have heavy-duty engines and beefed-up drivetrains for rugged, reliable performance

John Deere 318 and 420 Tractors are designed from the inside out, with greater strength and reliability than any lawn and garden tractors we've ever offered.

New heavy-duty 2-cylinder engines — 18-hp on the 318 and 20-hp on the 420 — have an aluminum block and cast-iron cylinder liners for lightweight strength. Stellite exhaust valves and seats, valve rotators for longer life. And a full-flow pressure oil system for lubrication of vital engine parts.

Rugged beveled steel gears in the differential mean greater durability. Welded steel frame with full-length siderails provides superb strength.

You also get hydrostatic drive for fingertip control of speed and direction. Power steering. Tight 26-inch turning radius. Hydraulic lift. Mid and front PTOs. And a reserve fuel system. Category "0" 3-pt. hitch and 2000-rpm rear PTO are available for both tractors.

Center-mounted mowers, rear-mounted grooming mower, tiller, front blade, single-stage snow thrower and 2-stage snow blower head up the list of available equipment.

To break a record, you gotta break an egg!

By Mildred Spear

To break a record you have to break a few eggs and Doris Doster has broken both!

Six hundred and twelve eggs to be "eggs-act" went onto the grill in Bingy's kitchen in Lititz, Pa., on a recent Saturday, breaking Doris' own previous record of "five hundred something..." as she recalls it. "That's a lot of eggs!" and all cooked between the morning hours of 6 and 11.

"I came with the business when Bingy bought it," Doris confided. "He always says he never hired me. I've been here for 20 years (Bingeman's Restaurant will celebrate 20 years in business this month).

In addition to her record breaking egg-breaking, Doris breaded the 72,000 oysters that customers ordered at Bingy's over the winter "R months" when that house specialty topped the favorites list among the customers. And when eggs are the order, Doris is also responsible for all the extras that make breakfast such a treat — the bacon, home fries, toast and such.

She also prepares the general breakfast menu which includes French toast, pancakes, and eggs fixed different ways.

Doris arrives at work at 5 a.m. (Bingy says she is the first one in the door after he unlocks it) and works as short order lunch cook, finishing her day at 1 p.m.

"I like to get up in the morning," Doris smiled. "I enjoy people and this is a fun place. Everybody is so nice and it's all like one family."

She laughed and looked at the crowd in the kitchen watching the interview and giving her a hard time about it. "They're a good bunch and we get along good."

At that point the gals in the kitchen came forward and explained that they were afraid Doris wouldn't "tell everything!"

"Not only does she cook," they laughed, "she sings, too!"

Doris admitted to singing. "They always say I'm waiting to be discovered...32 years waiting to be discovered..." she shook her head and chuckled. "I do. I like to sing and I whistle. I like Country and western OF COURSE.

"They don't sing along with me. In fact they frown on it, but I keep singing."

"She makes up her own words," they added.

Doris says she likes to cook at home, too...well perhaps not eggs and certainly not when she is on vacation.

When she's giving the eggs at Bingy's her special touch, Doris says, it isn't the frying, it's the turning that counts. "You pray they don't break!"

She likes using the well-seasoned grill and explained that when customers say that her eggs are better than at home that it's cooking on the grill that makes the difference. "It's a handy gadget and the eggs really taste good." She figures she can fry 30 eggs in half an hour.

"Bingy's is a fun place," she said. One of the reasons seems to be that Doris keeps it humming...or singing country and western perhaps. It's hard not to be happy around a person who is as happy as she is.

Doris Doster fried 612 eggs on a recent Saturday morning breaking her previous record of more than 500 as customers ordered breakfast at Bingy's (or Bingeman's Restaurant as it says on the sign out front), in Lititz, Pa.

4-H Center mortgage to be burned

BAIR — Another dream is about to come true for the 4-H Clubs of York County, Inc.

On Sunday, May 22, the mortgage on the 4-H Center near Bair will be burned during ceremonies in the Center's large auditorium. The program, which begins at 2 p.m., will feature a historic slide and film presentation of the Center's development. An open house with refreshments follows the ceremonies.

A $5 donation, given in 1958 by York Production Credit manager Robert Stover, sparked the flame that will culminate in the mortgage burning.

Although the implementation of the Center idea was postponed for several years, land was deeded in 1967 to the 4-H Clubs by Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Gentzler and Mr. and Mrs. John Shearer.

After reaching the initial building fund goal of $100,000 in 1970, ground was broken and actual construction began. On August 29, 1971, the Center was officially dedicated.

Total cost of the structure was $139,000, with the final mortgage payment made in December, 1982. The Center's value today is over $400,000.

Stencil summer fashions

Summer dresses, T-shirts, and tote bags are as easy to stencil as the party sandwiches described in last week's column. With acrylic paints, brushes and stencils you can turn simple, inexpensive items into professional-looking, hand-decorated fashions.

Stenciling has been popular for centuries. Over the years people have stenciled decorations on silks in the Far East, manuscripts in medieval Europe, flocked wallpaper in France and almost everything in colonial America.

In colonial times craftspeople wandered the countryside with stencils and paints, exchanging their skills for room, board and occasionally some cash. Itinerant stencilers painted floors, walls, furniture, and anything else their hosts commissioned.

Today an adventurous stenciler can still make stencils for painting floors, walls, furniture and other projects. Summer fashions are a simple way for anyone to start.

Here are stenciling directions:

MATERIALS: Washable, inexpensive, T-shirt, T-shirt dress, tote bag or other fashion; illustration board; stencil paper from an art supply or craft shop; cardboard; acrylic paints; brushes; utility knife; masking tape; newspaper.

DRAWING DESIGN: 1. On illustration board, draw your own design or copy a design from a book. 2. If your design is simple — for example, a daisy — just leave spaces between center and each petal. 3. If your design has large shapes, draw 1/8 inch wide "bridges" to divide shapes into sections.

CUTTING STENCIL: 1. Tape stencil paper over design. 2. Carefully cut design from stencil paper. Note: Take care when using utility knife. It is recommended that children and teenagers have parental supervision.

PREPARATION: 1. Cover work surface with newspapers. 2. Lay T-shirt, dress, tote bag or other fashion right side up over newspaper. 3. Slide cardboard between front and back, trimming cardboard to fit if necessary. This will prevent the back from being painted by accident. 4. Tape stencil onto fashion.

PAINTING: 1. Dip brush in paint, remove excess and apply color through cut-outs in stencil. Note: Use too little rather than too much paint. Otherwise paint may run under stencil openings. 2. If necessary, apply two coats of paint. 3. Apply paint by dabbing, rather than brushing it on. 4. To keep stencil as close as possible, gently press down with free hand as you paint. Hold down skinny bridges with a pencil.

REPEAT DESIGN: 1. Paint one area of fashion. let paint dry. 2. Move stencil and board to another area of fashion. Paint through stencil again. 3. Keep moving stencil and board until the design is painted as desired. 4. Turn fashion over and stencil back.

Cultural cooking for girls and boys

Everybody agrees there's nothing like a home cooked meal. But home cooking means very different things in different parts of the world.

Trying different foods is fun and can help girls and boys learn about the customs of people around the world.

Geography and climate have a big influence on food preferences. People grow up eating — and liking best — what grows best where they live. In Japan, an island country, seafood is a big part of everyone's diet. A home cooked meal there might include seaweed, raw fish and rice.

Wheat and sheep were first domesticated in the Middle East, where foods made from wheat and lamb or mutton are still important parts of people's diets.

Historical influences also affect what people eat. In Hawaii, for example, the first settlers came fro Tahiti and other Polynesian islands, bringing with them taro, bread fruit and coconuts. Later settlers introduced their favorite foods. New England whalers brought corned beef; Scottish sugar technicians brought shortbread; Japanese sugarcane workers brought seaweed. Today, all those foods are common in Hawaii.

When you try new foods, remember that it's okay not to like certain things. A taste for some foods may have to be acquired over a period of time.

Chinese visitors to America may become physically ill at the thought of drinking cow's milk. On the other hand, food common to the Chinese, such as soy bean curd and bamboo shoots, may not seem particularly appetizing to Americans.

Here are some activities that are fun for kids and adults and can help families explore their own

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Nowadays we hear so much about exercise to keep our bodies in shape. Some recommended practices are jogging, swimming, aerobic exercises and walking. Sometimes it really bothers me to think of all of that wasted energy.

Now if these health enthusiasts would be a farm wife with a large garden to tend, there would be no need for a planned exercise program. Simply carrying their share of the work would be enough to send them to bed quite tired.

With a big yard to mow, and an ample supply of rain this spring, it has been a struggle to mow it often enough. Then there is the job of crawling around weeding all the flower beds and rail fence posts that surround the yard. When I get to my wild flower bed that I planted last year, I'm quite pleased with it as six different kinds are blooming.

As for hiking, It get plenty of that when I go to a far corner of the farm to check on a summer cottage that is owned by a Philadelphia resident. I'd been told that someone broke all the windows but found instead that some had been shot directly in the center of each pane. To get there I had to climb a hill, force myself under two fences (as I'd rather not climb the barb wire topped ones) and skirt a lot of fallen trees.

Then there is always a furnace hungry for the buckets of coal that I feed it daily, posts to be pounded in for a pea fence and other posts to make a fence that will protect my cabbage patch from the rabbits. And don't forget the heifers that occasionally get out and must be chased.

Maybe I'm exercising the wrong muscles, but at least I think that I'm producing some worthwhile results.

Put some light on the farm

LANCASTER — Give your farm a lighting safety check. Are all high risk areas well lighted?

Pay particular attention to entrances leading to front and back barn entrances, and stairways between floors.

Are there light switches at each entrance to prevent fumbling and running into objects?

Have you installed nightlights to illuminate the paths between barn and house?

Is there a good source of light wherever you store emergency equipment?

Does your farm invite or discourage burglars? Exterior lights help prevent break-ins, especially if they allow an entrance to be seen from the road.

When a house is unoccupied at night, leaving a few lights on gives the impression someone is home. To make it even more convincing, particularly while you're away on vacation, use automatic timers to turn on lights, radios and television sets at intervals.

While it pays to conserve in various ways — for example, by using fluorescent instead of incandescent light — it makes little sense to skimp on lighting that could prevent the greater costs of accidents and break-ins.

Cultural cooking

food preferences and those of other cultures.

Mealtime Memories

Draw a picture of the dinner table at your house. The pictures can show where everyone sits and include the kinds of food your family eats. At the bottom of the drawing write a story about a meal with your family. You may enjoy sharing this activity with friends in the neighborhood and comparing drawings and stories. They'll see how the eating customs in your family compare with those of others.

Ethnic Eating

Visit an ethnic grocery store of a supermarket with an ethnic food section. Try making a dish from another country with what you find at the ethnic grocery. Involve the whole family. Try making tamales from Mexico, stuffed grape leaves from Greece, or sauerbraten from Germany. Keep in mind other customs of that culture during your meal. For example, many Japanese dinners are made with simple foods, arranged in a beautiful manner and prepared so that all flavors balance each other. And, of course, the meal is eaten with chopsticks!

Ventures with Vegetables

Add some variety to next summer's vegetable garden. Grow a vegetable common in another country, one that you've never eaten before. You might try growing snow peas, bean sprouts, leeks or kale. Find recipes and try fixing the vegetable in ways common in another culture. Or try growing an herb garden and add some new spices to your family's favorite home cooked foods.

At the annual Ladies Day Out

Lower attendance doesn't stop the fun

Michelle Rodgers, Lancaster County Extension home economist, discovered that businesses and families have six traits in common. Her conclusion? "Your family is your number business."

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — Despite a drop in attendance at the Lancaster County Farmers Association's annual Ladies' Day Out, held at the Landis Valley Inn last Thursday, members and friends enjoyed a day-long session of tours to local homes and educational seminars.

Last year, more than 400 attendants met for the annual event, as compared to this year's attendance of fewer than 300.

The day began with tours of four farm homes, including the homes of Barbara and Harold Frey and Lucy and Herb Frey, all of Marietta; Lois and Robert Brubaker, R1 Mt. Joy; and Thelma and John Wolgemuth, Rheems.

The Brubakers operate a 160-acre farm of 150,000 broilers and 1200 hogs and also raise corn and tobacco. Their farmhouse dates back to 1870.

The Wolgemuth farm was bought by John's grandfather in 1898. The home dates back to 1780. The farm consists of almost 300 acres, mostly corn used to feed the 97,000 layer chickens, and hogs and beef cattle.

The Freys' homes were featured in the April 30 issue of Lancaster Farming. In 1963, the twin Frey brothers, Harold and Herb, bought two farms and today have enlarged them to include 250 head of steers, 60,000 layers and 1000 acres of corn, wheat, tobacco, barley and soybeans.

Following the tours, the participants met for a luncheon at the Landis Valley Resort Inn and an afternoon of two seminars geared toward farm life.

"Dangers in the Air" was presented by Jeanne Bender Davis and Shirley Garner, both with Pa. Farmers Association.

Advising the audience to "be aware that farming is a dangerous occupation" and is "near the top of the list of most dangerous occupations," Ms. Davis listed eight 'reasons' to practice farm safety: 1. to avoid loss of life and limb; 2. to boost morale among workers; 3. to avoid replacing lost labor; 4. to avoid more OSHA inspections; 5. to relieve pain and suffering; 6. to avoid rate increases in worker's compensation and 7 . health costs; and 8. to save production time.

Ms. Davis also warned the audience not to fall into the mold of those farmers who 1. follow the "It's not going to happen to me" syndrome; and 2. suffer occupational stress.

In conjunction with Ms. Davis' talk, Mrs. Garner presented the slide presentation, "Dangers in the Air when Handling Livestock."

"Your family is your number one business" according to Lancaster Co. Home Economist Michelle Rodgers, final afternoon speaker on the agenda.

"Everyone wants to be number one," Mrs. Rodgers explained. "Everywhere you look, everyone is trying to be number one."

Mrs. Rodgers pointed out that both a business and a family have six traits: 1. manages time, energy and money; 2. communicates well; 3. shares responsibilities; 4. adapts to change; 5. deals with conflicts; and 6. has flexible roles.

These six traits were discovered as the result of a family study conducted recently by Penn State University. Of the 100 families which participated, 20 were from Lancaster County, according to Mrs. Rodgers. This study also reported that communication, commitment, appreciation and traditions and values create a strong family.

The Ladies Day Out Committee consisted of Linda Kreider, chairperson; Ginny Ranck, Doris Zanders, Ginny Hess, Becky Wivell, Ruby Bollinger, Joyce Eby, and Janet Habecker.

Shirley Garner, PFA member, attempted to make the audience more aware of farm safety by presenting a slide presentation, "Dangers in the Air."

Automatic Micro-Mist Sprayer Controls Droplet Size

The Automatic Micro-Mist Concentrate Sprayer can be powered by the tractor pto for use on rowcrops, vegetables and orchards.

The Automatic Micro-Mist Concentrate Sprayer is a faster, more efficient, economical alternative to conventional boom and aerial spraying of rowcrops, vegetables and orchards.

It takes mist blowing techniques a step further by giving the operator the ability to control the diameter of the spray droplets and choose the diameter best for each particular spraying application.

Controlling droplet diameter results in increased effectiveness and reduced materials cost.

The smaller droplets of the Micro-Mister coat all sides of the target evenly, due to the powerful turbulence produced by the unit. The Micro-Mister effectively coats the undersides of leaves, reaches inside trees, even coats the back sides of fruit.

The compact size and the utilization of chemical concentrates by the Micro-Mister offers many advantages. The unit comes in models that can be powered by PTO on small tractors, or a gasoline powered skid unit that slides into the bed of any pickup. Because the Micro-Mister eliminates the need for cumbersome water hauling equipment that requires additional manpower and time-consuming stops for refilling, the Automatic Micro-Mister saves both time and money.

The Automatic Micro-Mister can offer effective coverage up to 250 feet, depending on application, and can operate at speeds up to 12 m.p.h., with no dangerous overspray or drift.

Country Acres Catering sets the mood and the table

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

MOHNTON — Country Acres Catering.

What does the name suggest to you?

Do you picture mounds of delicious and colorful homemade foods?

Can you envision succulent slices of meats and cheeses and sweet memories of food the way your mother used to cook them?

Can't you just smell the aroma of those dishes, so pleasingly mixed with the fresh scent of wildflowers which so lovingly serve as a centerpiece?

The name, like the business, derived in the rural area, (some may call it 'boondocks' since the most predominant features are hills and lush greenery) of R2 Mohnton — an area full of country acres.

Country Acres Catering is the creation, passion, and business of Lucy Weber, mother of three boys; wife of Glenn Weber, president of his own group of four Country Acres convenience stores; and a former home economics teacher.

Lucy, a thin, pleasant and poised brunette, defies the laws of reason when it comes to the rudiments of the catering business: lugging heavy pots and pans, cooking for hundreds, attending to meticulous details, staying disgustingly organized, and being surprised with unscheduled and untimely accidents.

Instead Lucy is relaxed and smiling as she declares, "There's absolutley nothing I'd rather do. I love it."

Lucy operates her catering business through the four Country Acres Stores, all located near Reading, and all the brainstorm of Lucy and Glenn. The first store was opened in 1974 after Glenn quit teaching vocational agriculture at Manheim Central.

"We decided we would like to start some little business enterprise, so we started Country Acres Farm Stores," she remembers.

Lucy, who had been teaching home economics at the time, kept her job until the business was established. Today, Glenn's three brothers, Floyd, Leon, and John, are involved in the business also. Leon and Floyd, however, kept their chicken operations and Floyd, his dairy farm.

"Out of all this came the catering business. I wondered what I could do to still spend time with my children and yet do something related with the business. I really didn't want to manage one of the stores and I wanted to use my home economics background," Lucy relates.

So, in May of 1979, Lucy began Country Acres Catering.

With no food-serving experience behind her other than her home economics degree and a short stint as a salad girl at Holiday Inn, she began creating menus and, before long, had them printed into brochures.

Now, if all this sounds too simple. . .well, it's because for Lucy it was. Even her first catering job was a success. "It went well. I thought of everything," she says proudly.

Her brochure which describes the tempting dishes and lists prices, was distributed in the Country Acres Stores. Before long the orders grew in numbers and Lucy was a 'bona fide' caterer.

Lucy offers buffets as a specialty. Her cold buffet will include such delicacies as roast beef, turkey breast, ham, and ring bologna cold cuts; Swiss, American, Longhorn, and Muenster cheeses; homemade macaroni and potato salad — both recipes concocted by Lucy; breads, and even centerpieces and complete place settings.

Her hot menu will include dishes such as Swedish meatballs, fried chicken, roast beef, meat loaf and ham loaf.

Always enthusiastic, Lucy decided she wanted to include a cheese ball on this menu. But instead of buying them, she created her own from various cheeses and spices.

The business, which she described as "pretty profitable from the start," handled more than 50 weddings last year and about two dozen company picnics.

But it's the large groups that Lucy enjoys catering. Now, if you're thinking that most weddings are large groups, consider that Lucy catered a college group of more than 900 once, and enjoyed every minute of it.

"I love to cater to large groups. I like to see their reactions to the food. People enjoy a variety of choices and we give it to them," she says.

Despite the fun, Lucy says you must be ready to handle the unexpected. She relates the time she catered to a group of more than 500. Because it was a picnic, no kitchen facilities were available and the group ordered hot foods. "It was a challenge," is how Lucy describes the occasion.

Another difficulty in the catering business is carrying dishes. "You sometimes may have to carry things for extended distances. . down hallways, up steps. . .You have to ready for the unexpected," she laughs.

This young caterer, reared on a beef farm in Elverson, says she has always enjoyed the country life and will often pick wild flowers to serve as centerpieces for her meals. When weather doesn't permit, she arranges silk flowers.

This personal touch and the comination of good food, good service and a good buy for the money, is the reason Country Acres Catering has been a success, according to Lucy.

This industrious businesswoman estimates that 50 percent of her business is brought to her by word of mouth.

And for you farm readers, Lucy says that if she knows a group is going to be all men, or farmers and their wives, she will add a little extra to the standard serving.

Apparently farmers' appetites — like Lucy's catering business — have built quite a solid reputation for themselves.

Trim, pleasant Lucy Weber says there's nothing she'd rather be doing than operating her own catering business. "I love it," she declares.

In addition to the Country Acres Farm Stores and the Catering business, the Weber brothers own and operate this Kings Potato Chips plant in R2 Mohnton. Lucy confides that a new plant is in the planning stages now.

Clad in red and white gingham-her hostess uniform-Lucy Weber says her services even include cutting and serving the wedding cake.

If the sight of this food makes your mouth water, then Lucy's catering business has achieved their goal. This is her buffet of cold dishes.

Berks Co. crowns new dairy princess

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT — "So please, help milk, have a glass today," was the plea of Constance Ohlinger, newly crowned 1983 Berks County Dairy Princess, as she acted the part of Dorothy with her dog, Toto, from the play, "The Wizard of Oz."

The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Ohlinger of Mohrsville topped the field of six contestants based on her appearance, speaking ability, poise, personality, and intelligence.

The banquet room at the Berks County Agricultural Center, Leesport was filled as Berks dairymen gathered, May 7, to crown their new diary spokesperson.

In addition to serving on the National Honor Society, FBLA Club, and as editor of the school newspaper at Schuylkill Valley High School, 'Connie' is also active in the Northern Berks 4-H Dairy Club, Berks County Junior Holstein Club, Pa. Junior Holstein Executive Committee, Ontelaunee Grange, the Lutheran Church, 4-H dairy bowl and judging teams, and as an exhibitor of her 23 dairy animals at county, state, and national levels.

Connie also takes an active part on her family's farm, helping to milk and care for the 49 registered Holsteins on their R2, Mohrsville, farm. When asked by Dick Bailey, Extension director from Bucks County and toastmaster for the evening, how she manages to juggle her home responsibilities with her numerous activities, Connie replied, "You make time for what you want to do."

Connie is listed in "Who's Who Among American Seniors," and has hopes of attending Penn State to study dairy production.

Chosen as the alternate dairy princess was Deborah Ann Price, the 18 year-old-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jere Price, R2, Douglassville. Debbie owns two Guernsey cows and is very active in the Berks County 4-H County Council, Poultry Club, Dairy Goat Club, Horse Club, and the Berks Agri-Speakers Bureau.

Enrolled as a pre-vet student at Penn State this fall, Debbie showed her pride in the cow with her song, "The Twelve Days of Dairying." Currently serving as the 1982 Alternate Princess, Debbie stated that one of the greatest strengths of the dairy industry is the people behind it.

The other contestants included: Susan Shaak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Shaak, R1, Hamburg; Lynette Dawn Beiler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Beiler, R1, Morgantown; Lori Ann Lesher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lesher, R1, Bernville; and Laura Lee Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Miller, R2, Bernville.

The girls were escorted to the stage by their fathers and presented to the audience by Dick Bailey. Also on hand to give greetings and farewell remarks was the 1982 Dairy Princess, Helen Seidel. Described as "very impressive" and a "cracker jack of a dairy princess" by Donald Duncan, president of the Berks County Dairy Farmers Association, Helen was honored with a monetary award for her extensive service to the county's dairy farmers this past year.

Attending more than 60 functions to promote dairy products, during her reign, Helen extended the "greatest thanks" to her employers, the veterinarians of Willow Creek Animal Hospital for allowing her so much time off, and to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Seidel. "When I was out promoting milk, they were home doing the milking," Helen stated. Helen also related to the audience that whenever she promoted, and the dairy products were made available free of charge, they were well accepted and asked that perhaps more farmers and dairy people could get together and sponsor their products at a function to let people know how good they can be.

The judges for the evening were: Sheila Miller, from the Senate Agricultural Committee; Lynn Rogers, and Newt Bair, dairy farmer and author of a column in Lancaster Farming.

The chairperson for the event was Anne Duncan.

Gifts were given to each of the contestants donated by several Berks County businesses. The winner of this contest is eligible to compete for the state title at the 27th annual State Dairy Princess Contest in September in Harrisburg.

For her skit, Connie Ohlinger acted the part of Dorothy from the "Wizard of Oz" when she found a lost carton of milk. "So please, help milk, have a glass today," she pleaded.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

With the annual race on, we seem to have taken an early lead in the great American Farm Cat Sweepstakes.

First to the maternity finish line this year was Tigger, who far outdistanced the field of swollen-belly contenders when she curled up a couple of weeks ago in an empty calf pen to deliver three kittens.

One runner in. Three coming down the homestretch.

Making the move from the pack to finish second by a length, was Mom, the farm's most hard-working, mice-and-rat-hating, career-oriented barn cat.

Last year, Mom was so preoccupied with her professional duties-eliminating rodents-that she completely lost her first litter. Lugging the infants from feed cart, to silage cart, to the baler twine box, to the row of hay bales, and to wherever it was that she finally lost them, Mom simply was not prepared for the responsibilities of children.

Older and wiser by a year, Mom temporarily abandoned her dairy barn haunt for a soft-straw nest in the heifer-pen alleyway. Results: six striped babies.

Meanwhile, Tigger, who had become noticeably crippled and thin, permanently disappeared. Her trio of kittens, their eyes just opening, cried in the lonely calf barn nest.

Finally, after two days of trying to feed the infants warm milk from a syringe, the teenager took matters into her own hands. Against adult skepticism, she moved the three orphans in with Mom's brood of six.

Whatever Mom cat does, she does right. All nine step-siblings are growing fat and round. What do parents know anyway?

And, by now, still another calf pen boasted babies. Socks, tripling last year's output of the lone kitten, lay curled up around a matching set of three, solid black furry bodies.

Dragging in to last place in the maternity marathon ws Mustache. This high-production tabby mother annually presents us with at least two litters, no less than five babies each time.

True to her classic form, she arrived after a period of absence from the farm, tummy waddling and so low that we threatened to put a skateboard beneath her.

When she crawled into the nest and stretched out beside Socks and her three kittens, we growled at the old mother cat to go find her own spot.

She did. Next morning, the only remaining vacant calf pen had been taken over.

But only three? Old age must be catching up with Mustache.

Hours later, I happened to peek in at Sock's family. There, curled up among the black fur were bundles of gray stripes. One, two, three, four of 'em.

Those could only belong to one owner. Again, the teenager played match-the-cat-with-the-kittens.

Reunited with her full complement of seven offspring, Mustache stretched out to nurse the brood, purring with a dull roar in her contentment.

All the runners seem to have finished the race. Payoff is nearly five to one.

If this is just the first of a Triple Crown event, we're in big trouble.

Spring is an important time for indoor as well as outdoor gardening. House plants that need to be repotted will have all summer to reestablish themselves if the job is done now.

Plants that have stopped growing, that dry out very quickly, that are loosing bottom leaves may be candidates for repotting. The best way to know for certain that a plant needs a larger pot is to take a look at the roots. If roots are about all you see, the plant will probably benefit by the move to a roomier container.

It is important not to use a pot that is too large, however. Trying to save on future repotting by drastically increasing container size may permanently eliminate repotting - by killing the plant!- A good guide is to use a pot 2" larger in diameter than the old one.

Once the plant is removed from the original container, some of the old soil should be removed from the top edge of the rootball, and the root mass should be loosened somewhat.

Drainage material and some soil is placed in the new pot and a check made to ensure that the top of the soil ball will be below the pot rim. New soil should be added around the rootball gradually. It should be packed moderately as it is added to avoid leaving air spaces. Then water and make certain the pot is draining freely. A carefully repotted plant will soon begin vigorous new growth.

But, what can be done about a plant that obviously needs repotting when a larger container is not desirable because of space, handling etc? Plants already in large containers can be top dressed by removing the upper two inches of soil and replacing it with fresh soil. A more drastic treatment, used to limit pot and plant size, involves pruning the roots and top of a plant and repotting it in the same container. Plants undergoing this radical treatment (which is not suitable for all varieties) will need recuperative time in a temporary plastic bag greenhouse.

For more detailed information on repotting, ask for the Extension bulletin, "Care of House Plants," at you local Extension office.

Strive for accident-free lawn mowing

NORRISTOWN — Each year as the lawn mowing season moves into full swing, so do the personal injuries. Despite the fact that these two are related, it doesn't have to be the case.

Lawn mowing is a natural part of having a lawn, while injuries usually are the result of haste, carelessness and lack of common sense.

Observing a few basic safety rules would dramatically decrease the number of accidents.

Before mowing, check your lawn for pieces of bone left by a pet, stones, branches or any other objects that could become flying missles. The tips of the blade on most rotary-type lawn mowers travel at a speed in the range of 200 to 300 miles per hour. Objects pickup up by the blades can also be discharged at those speeds.

Keeping your lawn mower in a state of good mechanical repair can also help reduce the likelihood of accidents. A mower with a sharp blade and an engine that is running properly will do a better cutting job and you will be less tempted to take chances with your safety. For example, pulling a mower towards you and possibly over your foot is often the result of a dull blade. To prevent accidental starting while checking the tightness of a blade, remove the spark plug from the engine, or on electric mowers, be certian the mower is unplugged.

When using an electric lawn mower, keep in mind the possibility of electrical shock. The use of a three-wire extension cord with three-prong grounded plugs will reduce the risk of shock. However, grounded cords are worthless if they are plugged into non-grounded receptacles. Be sure your outdoor receptacle is grounded and never use an adapter to plug a three-prong plug into a two-prong receptacle. As an additional precaution, wait until the grass is thoroughly dry before mowing.

Similar precautions are necessary with gasoline engine-powered mowers. Prior to starting the engine, fill the fuel tank. Should refueling be necessary, stop the engine and allow it to cool. A hot muffler or an ignition system spark can explode gasoline vapors. All handling of gasoline should be done outside.

When mowing sloping lawns with a riding mower, always mow up and down the slope to prevent rolling over. A riding mower is more difficult to roll backwards than sideways. With push-type mowers, mow along the slope. This will decrease the possibility of your foot slipping under the mower and of the mower rolling back over your foot.

Soybean farmers takin' action in Nashville

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Soybean farmers and families from throughout the U.S. are invited to participate in educational programming, special entertainment and a soybean trade show at this year's Soybean Expo.

The American Soybean Association-sponsored conference includes 50 hours of programming aimed at helping farmers increase soybean income. The four-day "Takin' Action" Expo will be held July 31 to August 3 at Nashville's Opryland Hotel.

Pre-Expo activities begin Saturday, July 30, with a "foot stompin" Country Jamboree Party. Tickets to the party, featuring an evening at Nashville's Grand Ole Opry, are limited to the first one thousand registrants.

Expo officially opens Sunday afternoon with two three-hour mini-conferences. Soybean producers may select a marketing seminar presented by market analyst Rick Brock of Brock Associates or a financial planning conference featuring discussion on planning for financial survival and growth in the 80's.

Over 90 suppliers of soybean equipment and services will provide exhibits in the three-day trade show that opens Monday evening. Representatives of soybean equipment, seed, chemical, fertilizer and service companies will be on hand to show farmers the latest equipment, ideas and services available.

Twenty soy profit management seminars will be conducted Monday through Wednesday. Each Expo participant may attend eight of the 75-minute meetings. Farmers, researchers or industry experts will lead these lectures and discussions. Seminar topics include: establishing fair soybean grading standards, weed control, tillage alternatives and computers on the farm. Sessions on subjects such as managing stress, time management and improving husband-wife communications are aimed at helping farm families in coping with communications and management challenges of farming in the 80's.

The General Session features a final report on the ASA/Elanco PROJECT 2002, a 20-year look at soybean production and marketing. The report will focus on major problems and opportunities that lie ahead for soybean producers and the soybean industry. Keynote speaker for Soybean Expo is Heywood Hale Broun of CBS News.

The President's Award Luncheon on Monday will recognize soybean leaders from across the nation. Winners of the ASA/Nissan Membership contest for 1982-83 will be announced. Four top membership signers will drive home new 1983 Datsun pickup trucks.

The $95 general registration fee for Soybean Expo provides admission to all events including five meals and three receptions during the four-day meeting.

Special activities are also planned for family members. The women's program features more than 30 hours of demonstrations, seminars on farm business, tours and craft workshops. The $70 registration fee includes meals and receptions as well as sightseeing at nearby attractions, a tour of the Hermitage, plantation home of President Andrew Jackson and "Millionaire's Row" where the homes of a number of the nation's country music legends are located.

A program for youngsters age 7-16 features tours, games, and adult supervision. The $70 youth registration provides over 50 hours of adult supervision as well as meals, snacks and a variety of special activities including a day at Opryland U.S.A. amusement park, a day at Wave Country and a visit to the Country Music Hall of fame.

For more information about Soybean Expo write to Expo, American Soybean Association, Box 27300, St. Louis, MO 63141 or call 314/432-1600.

Extending June Dairy Month

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Since 1937 June Dairy Month (JDM) has become an annual salute to the dairy industry and to the cows that make its products possible. It was started by the dairy industry to remind Americans that cows were in the pastures in June and children were out of the classrooms. Because cows' production went up in summer and in-school milk-drinking ceased, mothers were urged to serve milk often during vacation months.

John F. Brooknan of United Dairy Industry Association, in his column, 'From This Corner' suggests that enthusiasm generated for dairy products during June be maintained for days and weeks afterward. JDM has become the major food promotion of the dairy industry that has been accepted by editors and broadcasters, and expected by consumers.

Wouldn't it be great if all of us could keep the momentum of June Dairy Month going and going and going? After all, it's the major dairy campaign that has put its brand on one month of the year. October Cheese Festival has been adapted by brand manufacturers and holiday butter cookies are made by everyone's mother.

Usually food editors, writers and broadcasters spend only the first few days of June promoting the nationwide campaign. They know their readers, listeners and viewers want to be kept informed about JDM and its acitivites. These may include milking contests at home plate in major league ballparks. They're fun at the old ball park and good human interest features on the news.

JDM events such as taking a cow to lunch, or walking her through a cow wash remind consumers that milk doesn't come from the corner store. Dairy farmers know that 80 percent of all dairy products are consumed in cities. Luckily for the dairy industry, food page ads feature specials on diary foods all through June. Food editors start their readers off by talking about the way the dairy industry used to be, and how it has changed in modern times. This is followed by financial writers who spend the first weekend in June putting agriculture and dairying in perspective. They emphasize that only 2.7 percent of the U.S. population is involved in agriculture, and the efficient farmer produces enough food for himself and 57 other Americans. Along the way, they may note that 4 out of 10 jobs are related to agriculture and how much machinery, equipment and supplies farmers buy each year.

Because it's June Dairy Month, it will pointed out that some 250,000 dairy farmers milking some 10.9 million cows produced 132.6 billion pounds of milk in 1982! That river of milk averaged out to an annual production per cow of 12,147 pounds, or about 5,600 quarts.

JDM began as National Milk Month in 1937. Two years later, it was titled June Dairy Month using annual themes: "Keep Youthful–Drink Milk" in 1937, "Victory Demands Healthy Americans" in 1942 and "Nature's Goodness at Its Best" in 1953.

Then "June Dairy Month" itself became the yearly theme. It has evolved into a yearly memo to editors and consumers about the importance of the diary industry to the nation's economy and to the health of its citizens.

Unfortunately, milk drinking hasn't kept up with milk production, so a surplus situation exists. However, if we could extend JDM's momentum, we will take a positive step toward using all of "nature's most nearly perfect food" every year.

From This Corner suggests that the surplus problem can be solved without curtailing production or cow herds. All we have to do, collectively, is to drink a few more glasses of milk each week, and supply and demand would soon get in balance.

Americans know by the taste of fresh milk that the country has millions of contented cows. Let's keep our cows happy by extending June Dairy Month. Then, day by day, we'll drink that surplus away.

I'll drink to that. How about you?

Del. farm market directory available

NEWARK, Del. — The Delaware Department of Agriculture has just published the 1983 Delaware Farm Markets Directory.

This year's booklet has been expanded, according to Agriculture Secretary Donald J. Lynch. "We've added nurseries to the listing of roadside markets and pick-your-owns," Lynch said. "There are almost 200 markets included in the brochure, and we detail what each market has to offer, directions on how to get to it, and phone numbers so shoppers can call ahead for availability."

Lynch says by using this guide, families can save money, enjoy the outdoors and discover the quality of Delaware grown produce.

The Delaware Farm Markets Directory is free, and available at most farm markets, several state and local agency offices or by writing to the Department of Agriculture, Drawer D, Dover, Del., 19903.

Begin garden weed control now

LANCASTER — Spring has finally arrived and plants are in vigorous growth. That includes, of course, those plants showing up in wrong places — the weeds!

Weed control is an important aspect of gardening, whatever you are raising - lawn, ornamentals, vegetables, fruits. Weeds compete for water, nutrients and light with desired plants and detract from the aesthetic aspects of landscaped areas.

Whether chemical or mechanical controls are used, it is important to identify the weed since control measures will depend on the plant characteristics. Is it an annual, biennial, perennial; a grass or broadleaf species a woody or herbaceous plant?

In using herbicides to control weeds, other important considerations include the location of the weed, (lawn, vegetable garden, shrub area, patio etc.) weather, and state of development of the weed.

Some specifics of lawn weed control exemplify these control principles. First, know the weeds you are dealing with to avoid frustration, wasted time and expense. For example, not all grassy weed problems in lawns are "crabgrass." There are many undesirable perennial grasses that infest lawns and against which crabgrass controls are useless. The great many broadleaf lawn weeds vary in their susceptibility to the different lawn herbicides and some, like grown ivy are rather resistant to all products.

Proper timing of application is important. While pre-emergence herbicides must be applied early (before seeds germinate) to obtain good control of annual grasses, broadleaf control should take place when weeds are young, lawn grasses are actively growing, and temperatures are not high.

Careful application of broadleaf herbicides is essential. Most other plantings in home gardens and landscapes are, after all, broadleaf plants and can be injured or destroyed by these herbicides. Most lawn herbicides should not be used within the driplines of trees and shrubs.

There are many other considerations in the proper use of herbicides. Weed control is a complex topic which is well summarized for the home gardener in two publications available from the Extension Service. Ask for "Weed Control Around the Home Grounds" and "Weed Control in Home Lawns."

Strawberry meeting slated

Wingert attends pork meeting

Pennsylvania delegate to National Pork Producers Council meeting is Eugene Wingert, of St. Thomas.

DES MOINES, Ia. — Eugene Wingert, St. Thomas, and 37 other Directors of the National Pork Producers Council met in Des Moines, Iowa recently to develop the 1984 program of work for the pork industry.

Wingert, who represents Pennsylvania pork producers, served on one of seven policy development groups responsible for identifying problems or areas that need attention and suggesting possible solutions.

One topic of concern discussed at the meeting was the price outlook for hogs in 1983. During an evening program by Prof. Glenn Grimes, University of Missouri-Columbia, NPPC Directors heard the outlook firsthand.

According to Wingert, Grimes said prices for the remainder of 1983 should average $50-54 in the second quarter, $49-53 in the third, and $45-49 in the fourth.

Wingert also reported that despite the optimistic price outlook for 1983, Grimes cautioned that a sow herd build-up is already taking place and that based on the uncertainty of numbers, there could be as much as a 15% increase in marketings by late 1983.

"During our meeting, Wayne Walter, NPPC's President, explained his philosophy which looks at increasing profits by increasing an operation's efficiency, not breeding herds. It seemed to make a lot of sense," said Wingert.

Wingert added that with NPPC's consumer attitude studies showing improved consumer attitudes about pork and 9 million new users, the industry could sustain 5 to 7% increase in production, but not 15%.

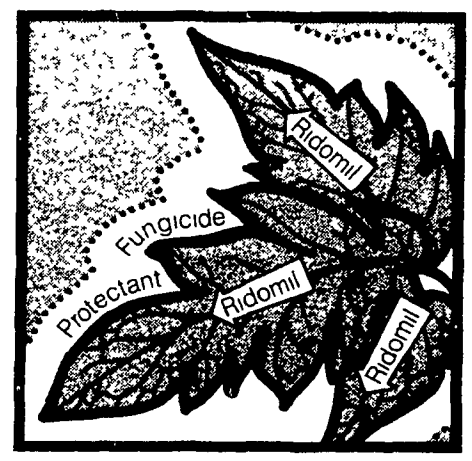
What's been added to your vegetable disease protection program?

RIDOMIL® MZ

Spraying Ridomil MZ gives you systemic and contact control of downy mildew in vegetables (and late blight in tomatoes).



You get longer residual control. Because Ridomil MZ gets inside the plant. It can't be washed off by rain or irrigation water. And it moves into the new growth as the plant matures . . .

It protects your vegetable crop over the entire period of growth.

And you spray on a 14-day schedule — instead of the usual 7-day interval between sprays. Ridomil MZ is longer lasting!

Ridomil MZ. Use it for better, longer-lasting disease control in many vegetable crops.

Penn State Dairymen's Club elects officers

UNIVERSITY PARK — Jim Bates, New Alexandria, was elected president of the Penn State Dairymen's Club at its annual meeting last week in State College, scheduled to coincide with the Dairy Exposition.

Elected vice president was Jane Pepple, R1, Oxford. Jim Dell, Boalsburg, was elected director of the organization along with Dan Spangler, McClure.

The Dairymen's Club is organized to support the dairy judging team and to help the Department of Dairy and Animal Science attract qualified students as well as help them find career opportunities in their chosen field. Alumni of the department who are members of the Club, sponsored senior dairy production students at the banquet as their guests.

Speaking to the students, Dean Sam Smith commented on the number of activities available to them, saying, "There is a tremendous opportunity to be involved. The major portion of education is working with people and learning leadership skills in order to use the concepts and ideas learned in the classroom."

Smith said one of the valuable tools they will learn is the "ability to recognize problems and recognize that you have the ability to take care of whatever comes along."

He added, "I fell very positive and I look at our students to lead, not to follow. Things keep getting better. Students in 10 years will be the leaders in the industry."

Paul Wangsness, head of the department, introduced and recognized the Dairy Exposition award recipients. The 1983 Department Alumnus Award was given to Darwin Braund, director of dairy and livestock research and development for Agway, and a 1956 graduate of Penn State.

The Dairy Exposition was dedicated to Norman Walters, supervising herdsman at the University's Dairy Production Research Center.

Wangsness added, "We ap-

Be aware: the beetles will return

LANCASTER — While Japanese beetles usually remain out of sight until July, they should not be out of mind for gardeners. The arrival of spring provides a wake-up for Japanese beetle grubs living about eight inches underground.

Every July through September, each female Japanese beetle lays about 40 to 60 eggs. The small cream-colored eggs are buried from 2 to 4 inches below ground and take from 10 to 21 days to hatch. The grubs hatch beginning in late July and continue hatching through September. They remain active in the soil until the end of October.

During the winter months - November to March - the grubs are inactive but between now and June, and during September and October, they feed on the roots and underground stems of a wide variety of grasses, garden and ornamental plants. Often this feeding will not be noticed until the plants are badly damaged, or die. If grubs are numerous, they can cause injury to the turf. This may be indicated by areas of dead grass in late summer.

Although extremely dry summer weather will kill many of the eggs and newly hatched grubs, and extremely wet summer is favorable for egg and grub development. Instead of just hoping for sun, home-owners should take steps to prevent damage to grasses and plants.

Adult beetles begin to emerge in late May through June and on the average will live 40 to 50 days. The adult beetle feeds on leaves, flowers and fruits of almost 300 plant species. In some cases damage is slight. In other cases the plant may be defoliated in a short time. Beetles feeding on the leaves chew out the veins, leaving a lace-like skeleton. Beetles rarely eat unripened fruit, but will eat ripe fruit until there is nothing edible left. They injure corn by eating the silk as fast as it grows. This keeps the kernels from forming.

One of nature's beetle controls is birds. Some of the more common bird species, among them starlings and English sparrows, feed on Japanese beetles.

Dairymen's Club

preciate the support of the Dairymen's Club." One tangible way the Club supports the department is with an endowment fund, the interest from which helps pay expenses for the dairy judging team. Wangsness reported that this year's team placed first at the All-American Judging Contest in Harrisburg; tied for first at the Eastern State Exposition; tied for third at the North American contest in Louisville, Kentucky; and placed 10th in the national contest at Madison, Wisconsin.

He also distributed a new recruiting brochure, aimed at attracting students to the department.

Tom Kelly, a director of the Club, encouraged members to contact him with suggestions and ideas to help him provide input to the animal science committee organized at the direction of Dean Smith, to evaluate the effects of the present programs and challenges to the year 2000. - S.B.

Congressmen to address conservationists

ANKENY, Ia. — Two of the nation's most conservation-minded congressman will appear on the program for the 38th annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America, July 31-August 3 in Hartford, Ct.

California Congressman George E. Brown and Vermont Congressman James M. Jeffords will discuss how natural resource information can be collected and used more effectively in making sound land and water management decisions.

Congressman Brown is scheduled to address the meeting's keynote session on Monday, Aug. 1. He will speak about technology's role in improving the delivery of information to people who make conservation decisions.

Congressman Jeffords will open the meeting's final general session on Wednesday, Aug. 3, with a presentation on the information needs for making land and water conservation policy decisions.

The theme of the meeting will be "Resource Information for Conservation Decisions." Headquarters for the event will be the Parkview Hilton Hotel.

Also appearing on the program will be Chris J. Johannsen, president of SCSA; J. Harry Haines, associate general secretary of the United Methodist Committee on Relief; Ralph McCraken, deputy administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service; Hugo F. Thomas, director of the Natural Resources Center, Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection; and Frederic Winthrop, Jr., commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture.

An internationally known soil conservationist, Norman W. Hudson of the National College of Agriculture Engineering, Siloe, England, will present the Sixth Annual H. Wayne Pritchard Lecture.

The program also includes eight concurrent sessions that will focus on the information requirements for making land and water management decisions: resource data acquisition methods; information storage, retrieval, and interpretation; and communication of information to decision-makers. More than 90 speakers are scheduled to participate in these sessions.

Program chairman for the meeting is Marion Baumgardner, director of the Laboratory for Applications of Remote Sensing at Purdue University. Elmer Offerman of Storrs, Connecticut, is in charge of local arrangements.

National Food and Ag Exposition planned

CAMP HILL — Some 500 U.S. exhibitors of the finest food and fiber products America's farmers and ranchers provide for the nation's agricultural export market, will be showing off their offerings in Atlanta, May 17-19.

This will be the first National Food and Agriculture Exposition, to be held at the Georgia World Congress Center, with the plain but not so simple objective of increasing sales abroad of our farm output that is of top value in the market place.

Even though American agriculture is already the nation's prime producer of profit realizes from the difference in balance between our exports and imports, there seems to be little question that opportunities exist to do better if we think in terms of selling high quality "finished" or processed farm products rather than the raw items in bulk.

For example, consider the $6.4-billion worth of wheat the U.S. farmer shipped out to the world in 1980. If just ten percent of that had been converted to flour before it was shipped, the value added would have been another $5.6-billion which would have provided for 122,400 more jobs in this country. All of this activity would have added $1.2-billion more to our nation's personal income.

American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert B. Delano has gone up and down the land and to our trading partners overseas promoting the concept that there is room for greater foreign purchases of U.S. farm products with value added or of high value. Just last fall (September '82) Glenn Tussey, foreign trade specialist on the AFBF's National Affairs Staff, told the Senate Agriculture Committee's sub-committee on Foreign Agricultural Policy:

"We want to see additional steps taken to capitalize on the realities of world markets that have seen major growth take place in high value commodities and products. We like the term 'high value products' (HVP) used in a recent study by the USDA because this term connotes a broader range of products than 'value added.' The high value product definition not only includes products to which value has been added by processing but also includes such items as meat, fruits and vegetables, and other consumer-ready products."

The Atlanta Exposition, being sponsored by National Association of State Departments of Agriculture in cooperation with the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, is expected to attract 1,000 to 1,500 buyers from potential foreign customers. NASDA promoters believe the exposition and an international forum to be held in conjunction with it will generate no less than $100-million worth of new business in farm exports.

The exhibits will feature fresh, frozen, canned, dried and dehydrated products with nearly every brand name seen on U.S. supermarket shelves represented. The Forum on Food, held each morning of the show, will feature talks by leading food marketers, nutrition experts and processors.

A major by-product of the exposition is the encouragement it will give individual states and more U.S. food concerns to develop international markets. It will also increase the amount of processed agricultural products which may be tied into future bilateral grain trade agreements and expand the amount of processed commodities shipped under various U.S. government programs. NASDA hopes it will also encourage the Foreign Agricultural Service representatives, in U.S. embassies abroad, to focus more attention on high value farm products in making their sales "pitches."

Topping off all the proceedings at the food expo will be a wine-tasting ceremony (American wines, of course) on May 18, to demonstrate the superior virtues of American's vineyards. Cheers!

BRING YOUR FLOCK INTO THE '80's

Through modern computer technology coupled with nutritional knowledge we can help increase your egg production at the least cost with the BAM Feed and Management System from Wayne® Feeds. We'll help you gather the necessary information, including age of birds; average body weight, daily weight gain, production, and egg weight; and average temperature in your laying house. Based upon the information you supply, our computer will design a specific feeding program that meets your flock's nutritional requirements and optimum egg-producing needs while saving you money. And, based upon the generated information, you can take advantage of the BAM System's cash flow management benefits, such as market forecasting, sales scheduling, return on investment, and income projections. So why be decades behind in your operation? Ask us for more information on how BAM can make production more efficient and profitable. We're here for the '80's.

Combine Ensilmixer® feed mixer, with scales, and a Jamesway® TMR system.

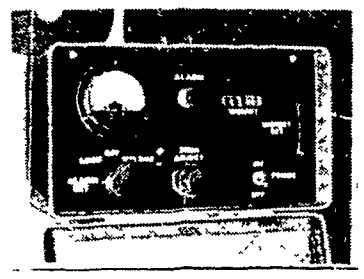
You can increase production Reduce feed costs And improve labor efficiency. All, when you use an Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, by Oswalt® to round out your Jamesway Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system (including silage distributor-unloaders, conveyors and cattle feeders) Or, use it with any mechanized feeding system Whether you prefer the stationary, trailer-mounted or truck-mounted model, it's a real profit-building management tool

Unique mixing pattern blends feed thoroughly. Three augers move feed from front to back and side to side Reverse flighting at both ends lets feed fall freely for recirculation or discharge by the bottom auger Uniformly mixes even partial loads

Precisely weighs ingredients. Accurate weighing means consistent, balanced rations, eliminates waste. Lets you calculate the amount of feed needed and mix that much. Weigh bar system is standard, electronic scales optional



That's why the Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, and TMR feeding system are right for you as well as your cattle And, can help make farming just a little bit better Ask your Jamesway Power Chorıng dealer.

That's Confidence!

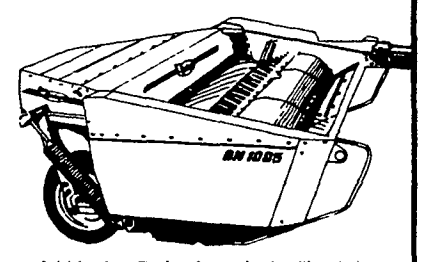
Test Drive a Badger Mower/ Conditioner and We'll Give You $200.



Badger Northland sets the standards again with the best deals on the finest Mower/ Conditioners money can buy.

Now through September, you can "try before you buy." To show you just how confident we are that you'll buy a Badger Mower/ Conditioner, we're going to offer you $100 for trying our machine, even if you purchase a competitor's mower/conditioner within a 30 day period of your demo

However, if you like our machine the best (which we know you will) we'll make a sweet deal even sweeter. We'll send you a check for $200 providing you purchase our Mower/ Conditioner within 30 days of your demonstration

Add to that Badger's exclusive "beat the clock" rebate program that will give you up to $500 more and you'll have the deal of the year

But the real reason to buy a Badger Mower/ Conditioner now is for the performance and efficiency you'll get during haying. Smooth and quiet best describes it. A machine built to cut close without over-conditioning

Ask your participating Badger Dealer about Badger's "Beat the Clock" Mower/ Conditioner Rebate Program

Owners were asked, "Would you buy another Deutz-Fahr tractor?"

88% said "Yes!"

1982 survey tells how our owners feel.

Early in 1982, Deutz Corporation mailed a two-page questionnaire to 1980 purchasers of Deutz-Fahr tractors A total of 617 surveys were returned from 29 eastern and central U S states. A primary question — "Would you buy another Deutz-Fahr tractor?" — was answered with a resounding 88% "Yes!" In addition, many owners wrote comments on their survey forms, some of which are highlighted in this folder. Most owners had logged between 500 and 1,000 hours on their 1980 tractor by the time they responded to this survey

OWNER COMMENTS:

Niagara County, N.Y., DX 90 (2WD)
"We needed a tractor to haul two + loads of manure per day, 365 days a year, also to grind 4-5 batches of feed per week, baling, tillage .. our DX 90 even started at 30°F.

Clark County, Mo., DX 140 (2WD)
"Its main purpose was to have been the 'main horse,' to do all the heavy work, but it has been perfect for everything I wouldn't buy anything but a Deutz "

Madison County, Ohio, D 4506 (2WD)
"This is our second Deutz and when we trade, we expect it will be for another Deutz

Coshocton County, Ohio, DX 90 (2WD)
"I have had no repairs and very little expense I like the tractor better every time I use it "

Green County, Wis., DX 110 (2WD)
"We fell you make an outstanding cab and hope you don't cheapen it like the other companies have "

Benton County, Iowa, D 6206 (AWD)
"The all-wheel-drive feature for a loader tractor is super "

This Farmer Equated Deutz Quality In Simple Terms:

Baxter County, Ark., D 4506 (2WD)
"After comparing many models and makes, I found the Deutz was built like a Mercedes — an air-cooled engine is a plus."

It's "SIMPLE ECONOMICS"

See your Deutz-Fahr dealer for a tractor that also saves you money after you own it. Also see the Deutz-Fahr haymaking system - it works in Pa.

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration.

250 SERIES Rotary Cutters

5/6/7 Foot Models — Available 3-Point Lift or Pull ● Tapered Rear Design — For Easy Discharge ●
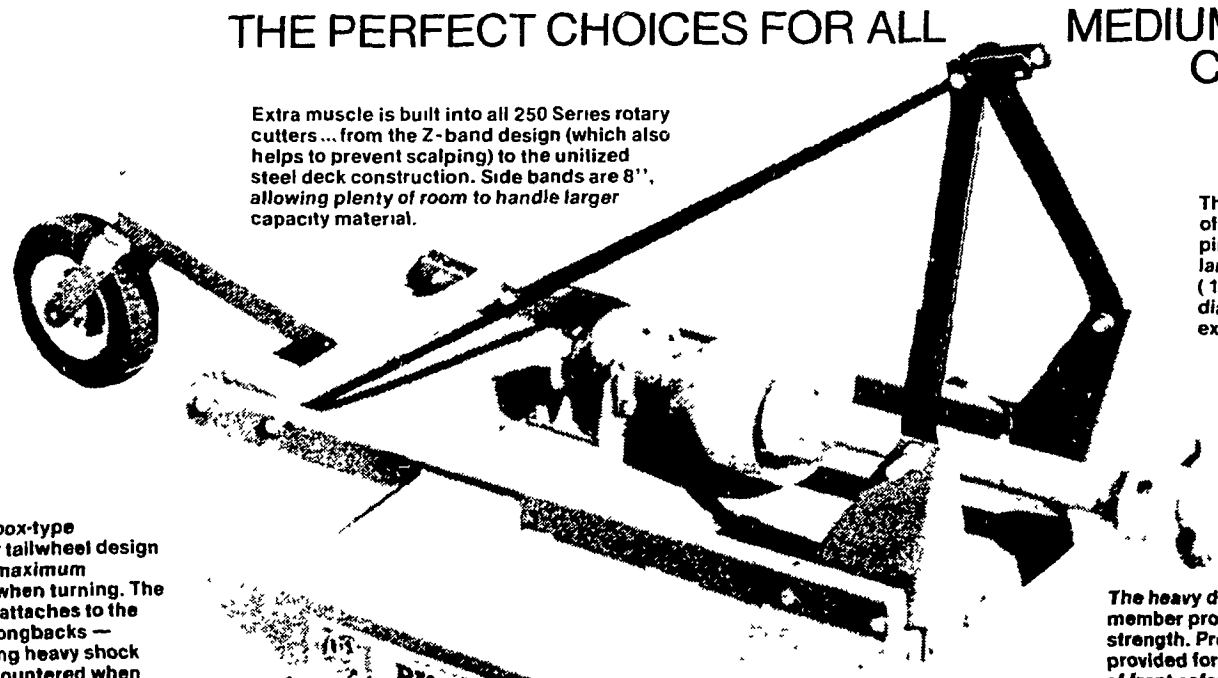
Unitized, Z-Band Deck Construction ●

THE PERFECT CHOICES FOR ALL MEDIUM-DUTY CUTTING JOBS

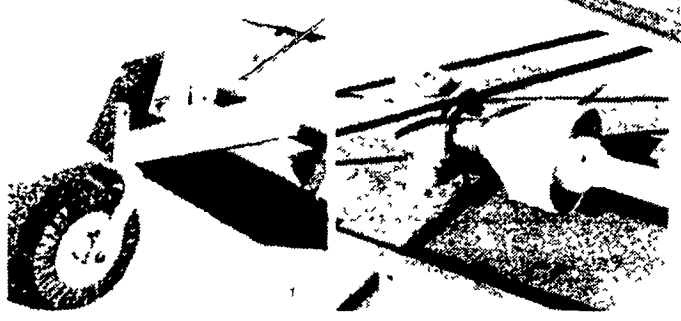
Extra muscle is built into all 250 Series rotary cutters ... from the Z-band design (which also helps to prevent scalping) to the unitized steel deck construction. Side bands are 8", allowing plenty of room to handle larger capacity material.

Threaded ends of Category 2 pins are a new, larger size (1 1/8" diameter) for extra strength.



The new box-type triangular tailwheel design provides maximum strength when turning. The tailwheel attaches to the cutter strongbacks — distributing heavy shock loads encountered when operating in rough terrain.

The heavy duty steel front member provides even more strength. Predrilled holes are provided for fast attachment of front safety chains, if desired.



A new heavy duty gearbox design on 256 and 257 models makes service fast and easy. All gearboxes are 540 rpm with 1000 rpm gearboxes available on 257 models. Heavy duty ASAE Category 4 drive shafts are standard.

A 3-point Category 1 or 2 hitch is offered for lift models. The top flex link is slotted — allowing the unit to follow ground contours. Tie rods stabilize the cutter to prevent bouncing on rough terrain during transport.

Chore-Time's Model 125 is high capacity addition to feed delivery line.

Chore-Time expands feed delivery line

MILFORD, Ind. — Chore-Time Equipment Inc., Milford, Ind., has announced the addition of a high capacity Flex-Auger feed delivery system to their product line.

The Model 125 was designed for use where sizable delivery rates are needed. The new Flex-Auger will convey most poultry and livestock feeds including corn containing 27% moisture, according to Michael Kohls, Product Manager.

Like the rest of the Flex-Auger family, the Model 125 features reliability and efficiency, requiring only 1 hp direct-drive power unit to move 220 pounds of feed per minute up to 100 feet. And, of course, the Model 125 carries the same 10-year warranty on the auger as do all other Chore-Time Flex-Auger systems, noted Kohls.

Chore-Time Equipment manufactures automated equipment for the care and feeding of poultry and livestock with worldwide distribution from its plants in Milford and Goshen, Ind.; Athens, Ga.; Decatur, Ala.; Modesto, Cal.; and Maldegem, Belgium.

DeKalb Pfizer reports new test program

DEKALB, Il. — FACT — Field Analysis Comparison Trial — is the new hybrid and variety evaluation program introduced by Dekalb-Pfizer Genetics.

"With today's investment in farming you can't afford to make costly mistakes in selecting crop inputs," points our Dick Bohling, Director Agronomic Field Services, and FACT program administrator.

"Our new program of systematically-designed field trials will help us evaluate the performance of new and existing hybrids and varieties, and will provide you with the information you need to determine products best suited for your farming operation."

FACT plots are conducted under normal growing condition — no special treatments are used. Cooperators use management practices and equipment representative of their area. In addition to yield, moisture, test weight, and other performance characteristics; management information, such as plant population, fertilizer use, crop rotation, pesticide use and planting dates are recorded.

"FACT will provide farmers with yield and crop management data on currently marketed hybrids and varieties," points out Bohling. "And the program will generate data on experimental products to determine their merit for introduction into the commercial line.

"The testing is conducted prior to release of new seed products, so you don't have to do costly experimenting on your own farm".

FACT incorporates the use of tester hybrids or varieties to help identify field variability within the plot. "A consistent-yielding, top-of-the-line, tester is planted between each of the hybrids or varieties to be evaluated," says Bohling. "This is done to more accurately measure the performance variability of the tester and the variablility of soil conditions across the field, which may distort yield data. With this information, the overall performance of the evaluated hybrids or varieties is adjusted according to the performance of the tester throughout the FACT plot".

Corn will be evaluated in 600 FACT plot locations throughout the U.S. marketing area; soybeans at 200 locations in the central and northern soybean belt; and the sorghum will be tested at 100 sites across its area of adaptability. Each FACT plot will contain approximately 15 hybrids or varieties, several of which will be key experimental numbers.

"We're combining management information gathered from eight years of on-the-farm testing into our new FACT program", concludes Bohling. "The FACT program will provide you with more informed, more accurate recommendations on our products. This allows you to devote more time to fine-tuning your crop management program."

Purina offers immediate credit for PIK entitlements

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Farmers enrolled in the government's Payment-In-Kind program can now assign their entitlements to Ralston Purina Company in exchange for availability of immediate credit for the purchase of livestock feeds under the terms of an unique program announced this week. Purina is the first company to extend credit to farmers for feed grains they will receive from the government in the fall.

In making the announcement, W.M. "Dub" Jones, president, Agri-Products Group, said the main objective of this convenient offer is to provide farmers with benefits of the government's acreage set aside program "now, when they need it most."

Under this plan, he explained, farmers work with participating local Purina dealers to arrange an assignment of their entitlement to Payment-In-Kind feed grains. Ralston Purina, in exchange, extends an immediate line of credit, enabling livestock producers to purchase the Purina products needed now for their operations.

"Quite simply, Purina's exchange plan allows farmers enrolled in the government's set aside program to take the Payment-In-Kind grain they'll receive after harvest and, in effect, feed it to their livestock today," Jones explained.

Low Interest Rate

Financing will be at 10-1/2 percent, he continued. "As a service to the farm community, we will offer the same rate of interest banks charge their best customer. Under the plan, approved farmers would be extended a credit line equal to 95 percent of the established value of their PIK grains."

Upon settlement, Purina will send the farmer a check for the full amount of the PIK assignment, less any grain quality discounts, advances made for Purina product purchases, and accrued interest. The producer, Jones emphasized, will not be subject to any handling charges for this service.

"With PIK availability dates still three to five months down the road, farmers need help meeting their immediate cash flow requirements," Jones stated. "The Purina PIK Program will help producers get access to the financing they need to run their livestock operations today."

Purina will conduct the PIK exchange program through its network of nearly 6,000 independent dealers nationwide, with individual dealers assisting with arrangements between local farmers and the Company.

In handling these arrangements, Purina dealers will secure such information as the type, quality and quantity of feed grains involved in the entitlement, and the farmer's requested delivery point and settlement date. From the local Purina plant buyer, in turn, the dealer obtains price quotes. As soon as the producer accepts Purina's price bid, executes a Purina PIK Contract confirmation and an assignment form, and clears a simplified credit check, he can begin purchasing Purina products against his credit line.

In PIK deficit areas without adequate Uniform Grain Storage Agreement (UGSA) warehouse facilities, Jones added, Purina's local plants have applied for handler's agreements to become entitlement delivery points.

Convenience, Reliability

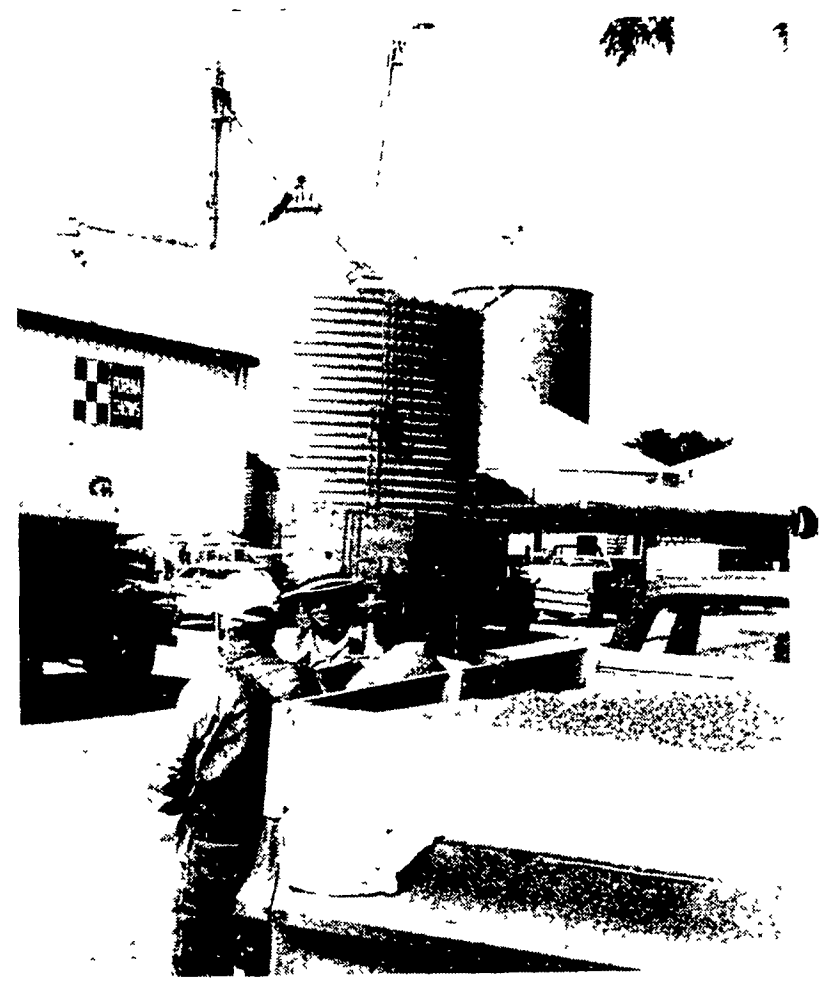
"From the farmer's standpoint, our program offers some very significant benefits," Jones stressed. "Most importantly, by offering credit at highly favorable financing rates at a time when many producers are strapped for cash, the plan provides a convenient means of using PIK entitlements to finance today's production costs. At the same time, farmers can make a forward purchase agreement with Purina through its reliable dealer organization secure in the knowledge that they're doing business with one of the premiere companies serving the needs of U.S. agriculture."

Acknowledging that there are risks inherent in sponsoring an ambitious program of this nature, Jones said Ralston Purina had determined that the opportunity to provide a significant helping hand to farmers in their time of need far outweighed the downside risks. "We like to think our commitment to agriculture is as strong when times are bad as it is when the farm economy is bullish," he contended.

"We anticipate an enthusiastic reception for this forward purchase offer among existing and prospective customers alike," Jones concluded. "It is, we believe, convincing evidence of Purina's continued commitment to developing innovative programs that respond effectively to the needs of the farm community."



Through participating Ralston Purina dealers, farmers can use PIK grain they'll be receiving after harvest and, in effect, feed it to their livestock today.

Bush Hog adds rotary cutter

SELMA, Al. — A new 42-inch "Squealer" Rotary Cutter has been added to the Bush Hog line of high quality, economically priced cutting equipment.

Like bigger models, the 48-inch and 60-inch Squealers, this new SQ42 model is outstanding for grass and pasture clipping jobs. The highly versatile SQ42, designed for smaller tractors, is ideal for general maintenance cutting.

The low-cost Squealer is built for years for dependability and performance.

Bush Hog's SQ42 offers flexible linkage to smooth out uneven terrain and reduce tractor wear. It also features a tapered rear discharge to save tractor horsepower.

Cutting height on the 42-inch model can be adjusted from 2 to 10 inches. A 3-point, Category 1 hitch attaches to 6100B Kubota and 1100 Ford tractors plus many other models.

An ASAE Category 3 universal joint is standard equipment. The gearbox is designed for 25 horsepower, driving the blade tip speed to 11,400 feet per minute for clean efficient cutting.

Recommended optional equipment includes safety chain sheilding.

More information about the 42-inch Squealer is available by writing Bush Hog, Dept. NR, P.O. Box 1039, Selma, Al. 36701.

It's not paying a feed company for high-priced commercial protein.

It's paying yourself by feeding high-producing hay and haylage.

New ProductionLine™ Dairy Feeding Programs take a hard line on costs — and a straight line to maximum milk production.

No source of protein can produce more milk, or more economical milk, than the fresh hay and haylage you produce on your own acres. However, it is important to remember that alfalfa is low in phosphorous and other essential nutrients. This is why Vigortone's new ProductionLine dairy pre-mixes can make a critical difference. Although they will amount to only 1% to 3% of the dry matter you feed, they will supply 50% or more of the major minerals, trace elements and vitamins you need to get every extra pound of milk.

Pa. joins National Wool Growers

SALT LAKE CITY, Ut. — The Pennsylvania Cooperative Sheep and Wool Growers Association has become affiliated with the National Wool Growers Association (NWGA). The NWGA is the oldest livestock organization in the United States, tracing its founding back to 1865.

The application for membership was approved by the NWGA Board of Directors at their meeting in Washington, D.C., last month. Pennsylvania became the 30th federated organization to affiliate with the national association. USDA statistics show that Pennsylvania has over 98,000 sheep and an estimated 4,900 farms with sheep on them.

NWGA Board Chairman Norman Rousselot, of Sonora, Tex., express his pleasure with the new member. Rousselot noted that Pennsylvania has 25 representatives, some of which are on key committees, and two respected senators. "We'll be able to communicate with some of these people much more effectively now," Rousselot said.

Pennsylvania was one of the charter members of the National Wool Growers Association in 1865. according to records kept in the Salt Lake City, Utah, office. They were active in wool grower affairs until the turn of the century, when the industry began to concentrate on the West.

"We're glad to have them back," Rousselot said after the unanimous vote at the April Board meeting.

Penn State gets fluid fertilizer grant

PEORIA, Ill. — A No-Till Corn Study supervised by Penn State is among 18 research projects during the coming growing season funded by the Fluid Fertilizer Foundation.

The research project entitled "Optimizing the Economic and Nitrogen Use Efficiency of Nitrogen Solutions Applied to No-Till Corn" will be directed by Penn State soils scientist R.H. Fox.

The nitrogen management of no-till corn coupled with the assessment of a starter NPK program will be undertaken. Nitrogen (UAN) use efficiency will be maximized by determining the best N application method, N rate and timing sequence. Experiments positioned in the major agricultural sectors of Pa. should provide wide-ranging recommendations for N management and the need for K in starter solutions in no-till corn.

National Fertlizer Solutions Association (NFSA) Vice President of Research & Education James T. Batchelor reports projects include "most major commodities - corn, cotton, grain sorghum, soybeans and wheat."

The Foundation was established by NFSA to sponsor research and development to advance the fluid fertilizer concept for the betterment of agriculture. NFSA Executive Vice President, CEO, David K. Murray indicated "results will supply fertilizer dealers with new research information and tools for use when providing recommendations to customers."

The 18 research programs announced will involve researchers in 16 states with 57 experimental sites. Batchelor noted "fertilizer placement will receive a great deal of attention in these projects." Much effort will be directed toward NP&K placement in both shallow and deep placement systems. Studies also involve research on started fertilizers of different compositions. Batchelor emphasized "placement beneath the row, beside the row, in strip and broadcast applications will be studied in various environments for all major crops." The management of fluid lime and multiple fertilizer compositions are included in research being conducted. Reduced tillage is a component of most of the studies.

Research results will apply to several different environments that are located around the United States. All projects are applied research that will develop into field recommendations for the use of fluid fertilizers. The Foundation will provide annual updates on each research project. Researchers will be asked to participate in the annual NFSA Round-up and Convention to discuss their projects. Batchelor announced that after completion of a research project the experimental results will be reported in the new NFSA publication entitled "Fertilizer Issues of the 80s."

When asked about future research projects, Batchelor feels "the further evaluation of timing of application of fluid fertilizers, the interaction of fluid fertilizers with various pesticides and agronomic evaluations of the placement of micronutrients and secondary nutrients in various formulations of fluid fertilizers" will receive attention. All 18 projects currently funded are expected to be completed in 1985, with published results available shortly thereafter.

NCFC names new head

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives' board of directors has officially named Wayne A. Boutwell president of NCFC.

"He has the background needed to help NCFC shape its role as a spokesman for farmers on the broad range of agricultural and cooperative issues," Baccigaluppi declared.

Md. gives gypsy moth spraying advisories

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Citizens in most of the Maryland counties targeted for aerial spraying against gypsy moths by the Maryland Department of Agriculture are able to call toll free for spray schedule advisories.

The toll free gypsy moth information number for Carroll, Howard, Montgomery, Frederick and Washington counties is 800-492-2106.

Messages will list the county, or counties, planned for work the next day and then give the spray block numbers for the areas to be treated and other pertinent information. It is important that people remember their block number which was supplied to them in the written spray notice delivered to their house by MDA personnel.

However, MDA cautions, advisories are just that, because work can be cancelled or delayed on a day-to-day basis by such factors as weather conditions, aircraft downtime, etc.

New advisories covering the next day should be put on the service equipment by 4 P.M. each day prior to planned work the following day. These are based on field evaluation of work done during the day, weather forecasts for the next day, and logistics involved in planning the next day's work.

Other counties targeted for gypsy moth spraying are: Cecil, Harford, Baltimore, Carroll, Anne Arundel, Howard, Montgomery, Frederick and Washington. A total of 110,000 acres is scheduled for treatment.

Machinery custom rates increase 3 percent

HARRISBURG — Most machinery custom rates have increased this year, up an average of nearly three percent from last year's levels, according to the Crop Reporting Service of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The three percent increase was computed by adding the rates for all custom jobs, regardless of the basis of charge, and dividing by last year's comparable total.

The custom rates reported below are averages of voluntary reports from custom operators throughout the Commonwealth. Most of the rates are stated per acre, ton, bushel or bale rather than per hour to reduce the variation due to machinery size.

Individual rates vary due to differences in working conditions, services performed and the operator's eagerness to perform the custom work. Thus, the average rates are not to be considered absolute indications of fair charges, the Crop Report Service explains.

Average rates are shown for two regions of the state — Mountain and Valley. The differences in rates for the regions reflect variances in terrain, soils and alternative opportunities for the labor and equipment used.

Figures, labeled for the state represent the straight average of all reports used regardless of geographic location.

Pork group continues radio campaign

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Pork Producers organization is continuing its campaign in behalf of pork on WCAU Radio, with sponsorships of Phillies baseball and other programs.

Theme for the effort continues to be "America, you're leaning on pork", and it is estimated the message will generate 18 million listener impressions among adults 18 to 49.

The messages will concentrate on the nutritional value of today's leaner pork—pointing out that pork is an excellent source of protein and B vitamins, yet it is not high in calories or cholesterol. The pork producers' objective in running the campaign is to correct misunderstandings many people still have about pork.

The pork campaign will consist of 90 pre-game commercials through the season; 40 commercials within the games during pitching changes (these to be on the full Phillies Network of 24 stations); 80 commercials on WCAU's "Sportsline" program Monday through Friday; and 80 commercials adjacent to Frank Jelinke's "Dining Around" feature Monday through Saturday.

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM

MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG· "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage.. Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage... a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help. I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing "

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made" . says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days "

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool" says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs. to finish.

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements "

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain."

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed .. I can guarantee at least that" . . says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging. It's just like feeding grass. I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System . "

| HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU | |
|---|---|
| 1 BAG | 150 TONS |
| 6 BAGS | 900 TONS |
| 12 BAGS | 1 800 TONS |
| 24 BAGS | 3 600 TONS |
| 48 BAGS | 7 200 TONS |

Select Sires reports optimism

PLAIN CITY, Oh. — A sense of enthusiasm and preparedness was evident at the 1983 joint annual meeting of Select Sires, Inc. and Select Embryos, Inc. Optimistic remarks were heard from the farmer-directors and management alike.

"The one key indicator of our success is the kind of product we deliver," remarked Select Sires General Manager Richard Chichester. "Last year the blend predicted difference of all proven sire semen marketed was at an alltime high of +1,548 PD Milk, +.54 PD Type, and +184 dollar value. Never before has Select Sires achieved such a level in terms of genetic value."

The beneficiaries of this genetic packageare the member-patrons of Select Sires. Sales in 1982 were again positive with dairymen and beef producers purchasing more Select Sires semen than in any previous year.

International sales made up an ever-increasing percentage of the unit sales in 1982. Robert Boese sparked the Select Sires expansion in Latin America prior to his recent retirement from A.I. and Select Sires. Jerry Fickel is continuing these positive sales in Latin America from his Miami, Florida office.

Sales in Europe, Asia and Africa were at an all-time high, thanks to World Wide Sires. Transfer Genetics of Frankfort, Ontario was responsible for sales growth in eastern Canada this past year.

The year 1982 also saw increased dollar volume sales in the Select Sires beef program. This reflects the increasing genetic pressure that individual breeders are putting on the sires they are using during these low-profit times.

This past year, Select Embryos spent a large percentage of the time establishing a reputation as one of the more competent embryo transfer companies in the country.

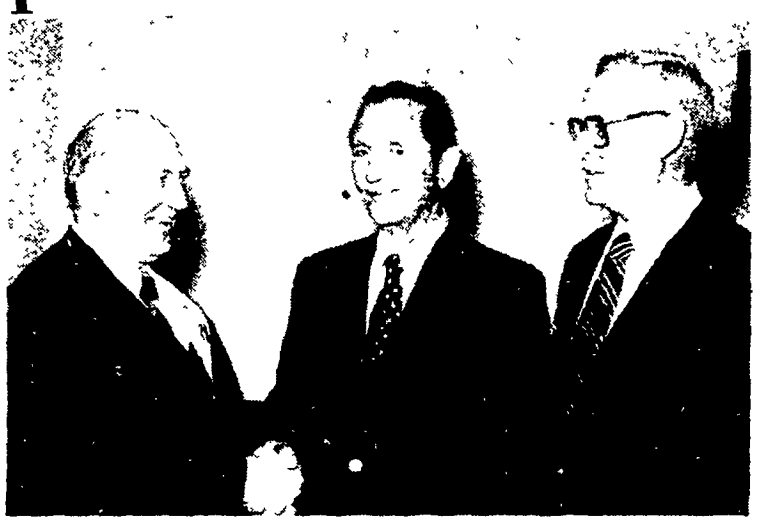
"Since mid-1982, the in-clinic facility has nearly doubled its number of donor cows. Today, the number stands at 100 and we have a waiting list of cows to come into the program," stated Dr. Type Henschen, Select Embryos General Manager,

"A significant percentage of the cows we have in-clinic are breeding problem cows," continued Henschen. "We have had ET pregnancies from 90% of the 'problem' cows that we've successfully recovered."

Henschen concluded his remarks with some positive comparisons of the first three months of 1983 with the same months last year, indicating major increases in transfers and pregnancies. He said. "I think the trend is definitely in the right direction."

Select Sires is also feeling very optimistic about 1983, with monthly semen sales from January to March at an all-time high.

As spokesman for Select Sires & Select Embryos, Chichester emphasized, "While the future of agriculture may or may not be as we would like, we intend to be a part of it. The right genetics are available. We are ready!"



President of Select Sires, Jack Dendel, left, presents Robert Boese, middle, of Crystal Lake, Il. and Nelson Gardner, of Bridgewater, Va. with service awards at 1983 annual meeting. Boese is retiring after 30 years in International Marketing and Gardner is retiring after 17 years on the Board of Directors.

Select beef cattle for weight & muscling

CLAY CENTER, Neb. — Beef cattle with ancestors selected on the basis of both yearling weight and muscling grew more rapidly and with less feed per pound of gain than cattle from ancestors selected for yearling weight alone.

Weight of steers from a fast-growing line at slaughter time has generally increased through the 18-year study in Hereford cattle. Scientists at the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, Clay Center, Neb., found that these steers weighed 100 pounds more than controls of the same slaughter age.

University of Nebraska geneticist Robert M. Koch, stationed at the Center, says cattle breeders who select on the basis of both weight and muscling score may make fewer mistakes. The study indicated this because cattle selected by giving equal emphasis to both criteria had greater yearling weights than cattle selected by yearling weight alone.

Muscling score is a visual appraisal of the thickness of muscles in relation to length of bones.

The so-called yearling weights in the study were actually 424-day-standardized weights for bulls and 500-day-standardized weights for heifers.

Another breeding line from the same foundation cattle was developed through selection for weaning weights standardized at 200 days with adjustments for age of the dams.

"We found that progress in selecting for growth at any of the different stages resulted in increased growth at the other stages," says ARS research leader Larry V. Cundiff. "Growth during the postweaning period was more highly heritable than growth to weaning."

The researchers constituted the control line in 1971 from the 225 foundation cows and semen from foundation sires that were used to begin the study in the early 1960s at the University of Nebraska's Fort Robinson Beef Cattle Research Station. Until the cattle could be moved to the larger Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, pasture for the project was limited and the scientists had to use somewhat less reliable statistical controls.

The average interval between generations of cattle in the project was 4.4 years. This short interval helped speed selection progress, says Koch.

New springs gush forth

WEST CHESTER — Water, water, everywhere—water coming out of the ground where it has never been seen before. Springs spout forth out of the hillside. Or up and out of driveways. Some folks have running streams into their basement.

"We have received numerous calls in the last few weeks from individuals who are plagued with water flowing where it never flowed before," explained Marshall Haws. As Executive Conservationist with the Chester County Conservation District, he receives calls from folks that are faced with the problems of too much water in their yards or basements.

"The heavy rains in the past few weeks have caused the underground water table to rise much closer to the surface of the ground," Haws said. "The water finds a weak spot in the ground cover. That point becomes a flowing spring. This could be compared to a rupture in a water hose that sprays water all over."

The situation will take care of itself when the rains stop. The excess water will gradually flow through underground channels to the streams. Rainfall and drainage will reach an equilibrium. The springs will then stop flowing.

In a few instances it may be possible to put in tile drainage to intercept the flow of water from the rupture. By cutting off the water channel and discharging the flow down slope, water rising in the driveway or basement may be avoided. Local earth-moving contractors, experienced in tile drainage, should be able to handle the installation where conditions permit.

Rene Cottrell, left, West Chester, points out new backyard spring to Karen Hesser, of Chester County Conservation District. Tile drainage will be installed to intercept flow of water and keep it from basement.

APHA names Gold Performance sires

Two Polled Hereford bulls and two cows have received the Gold Performance Award, according to Dr. Jim Gibb, director of education and research for the American Polled Herefold Association (APHA). The Gold Performance Award is part of the APHA's Superior Sire Program and is given to those bulls whose sons accumulate 100 points at qualified central test stations.

Cows are also eligible for Gold Performance status when their sons accumulate 35 points in the same manner and rate as sires. Points are earned on the basis of the sire's or dam's average progeny superiority for yearling weight and average daily gain on test (ADG), as well as the number of sons tested at a particular station.

One of the new Gold Performance Sires, PAF Victor 225 541, is owned by Botkin Polled Herefords, Lexington, Ky., Holly Hill Farm, Mt. Sidney Va.; William M. Lillard, Fairfax, Va.; and Pine Acre Farms, Mershon, Ga. His 32 sons tested at three different stations had an average yearling weight ration of 101.2, while their average ADG ratio was 105. He is also a Total Performance Trait Leader, as designated by the 1983 Polled Hereford Sire Summary.

The other new Gold Performance Sire is PRL 582 Ned 425 E, owned by Wooden Shoe Farms, Othello, Wash.; Ponderosa Ranch Ltd., Lloydminster, Sask,; and C&H Farms, Sandersville, Ga. His 21 sons tested at five test stations in four states and had an average yearling weight ratio of 106.1 and an average ADG ration of 107.6 Ned is a 1983 Yearling Weight Trait Leader.

CH Gypsy Anx H610, owned by Billy Clark of Barnard, Kan., is one of the new Gold Performance Dams. Her two sons tested at the Beloit, Kan., test station had an average yearling weight ratio at 113.5 and average ADG ration of 126.5

AF Miss Victor E18, owned by Arrow Farms, Athens, Oh., rounds out the list of new additions to the Gold Performance list. Her two sons tested in the Ohio Bull Test and had an average ADG ration of 119 and average yearling weight ratio of 117.

A pair of Polled Hereford bulls have achieved award-winning levels of performance in the American Polled Hereford Association's (APHA) Superior Sire Program.

BT Advancer 55J, owned by Select Sires, Inc., Plain City, Ohio, has been named a Gold Seal Sire. The Gold Seal testing program gives nation-wide comparisons of some of the country's top bulls, according to Gibb.

Birth weight, growth rate and carcass merit are measured in test herds where the calves sired by all bulls have an equal opportunity to perform. The bulls are ranked on their ability to sire calves with a greater amount of lean growth, and Gold Seal Sires have proven their ability to sire such calves. Wild Cat Sundance 7K was named to Gold Trophy Sire, based on the showering performance of his offspring.

This combination of Gold Trophy and Gold Seal status made him eligible for the Gold Standard Sire rankings. Wild Cat Sundance 7K is owned by Glenkirk Farms, Maysville, Mo.; Kal-Kota Polled Herefords, Steele, N.D.; and Wild Cat Ranch, Lipton, Sask.

Pesticide Applicators' Re-certification

A one-day training/recertification session for Pennsylvania-licensed "Public" and "Commercial" Pesticide Applicators, will be held Friday, May 27, at the Cumberland County Extension Office, according to Franklin County Agent John Shearer.

All presently-licensed Public/Commercial Applicators should check the expiration dates on their licenses. Shearer especially urges those with 9/30/83 dates, to participate in this recertification session, stating, "There probably won't be any more training sessions held prior to the expiration date".

Instruction will be given in rat and rodent control, brush and weed control on roadbanks, handling chemical spills, the new Pennsylvania noxious weed law, mosquito and biting fly (gnats) control, and safe procedures in pesticide use.

The training/recertification is open to any south-central Pennsylvania licensed applicator. It starts at 8:45 a.m. and concludes at 2:45 p.m. Pre-registration is necessary. Forms are available in the Extension Service Offices in Franklin, Cumberland, Adams, Perry, Dauphin, and York counties.

Additionally, the session will be an opportunity for anyone desiring his initial license in the Public/Commercial catagories, to take the required proctored exam to secure the license. Examinations will be administered by Bickie Greenlee, Penna. Dept. of Agriculture pesticide inspector, starting at 3:00 p.m. Pre-registration is also required for this phase of the session. Additional information and forms are available at the Extension Offices listed above.

Organic waste: more than fertilizer

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Composted sewage sludge or feedlot manure can reduce erosion and restore fertility to land disturbed by strip mining or overcropping, said Sharon B. Hornick, soil scientist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The results of Hornick's work appeared recently in Land Reclamation and Biomass Production with Muncipal Waste Water and Sludge," a publication of Pennsylvania University Press.

Hornick said that experiments show that addition of sewage sludge compost or feedlot manure to disturbed land reduces surface soil temperatures. This can help seeds germinate since the normally high afternoon temperatures of sandy soils can inhibit germination. Soil amended with added organic waste also retains more water than untreated soil, thus helping plants resist drought conditions.

To evaluate the effects of organic waste materials on crop production, Hornich established a series of test plots in an area where sand and gravel had been excavated.

Inorganic fertilizer and lime were applied to all of the control plots which were not to be treated with sewage sludge or manure. This was done to provide plants in the test plots with equal amounts of nutrients whether they received organic material or not, she said.

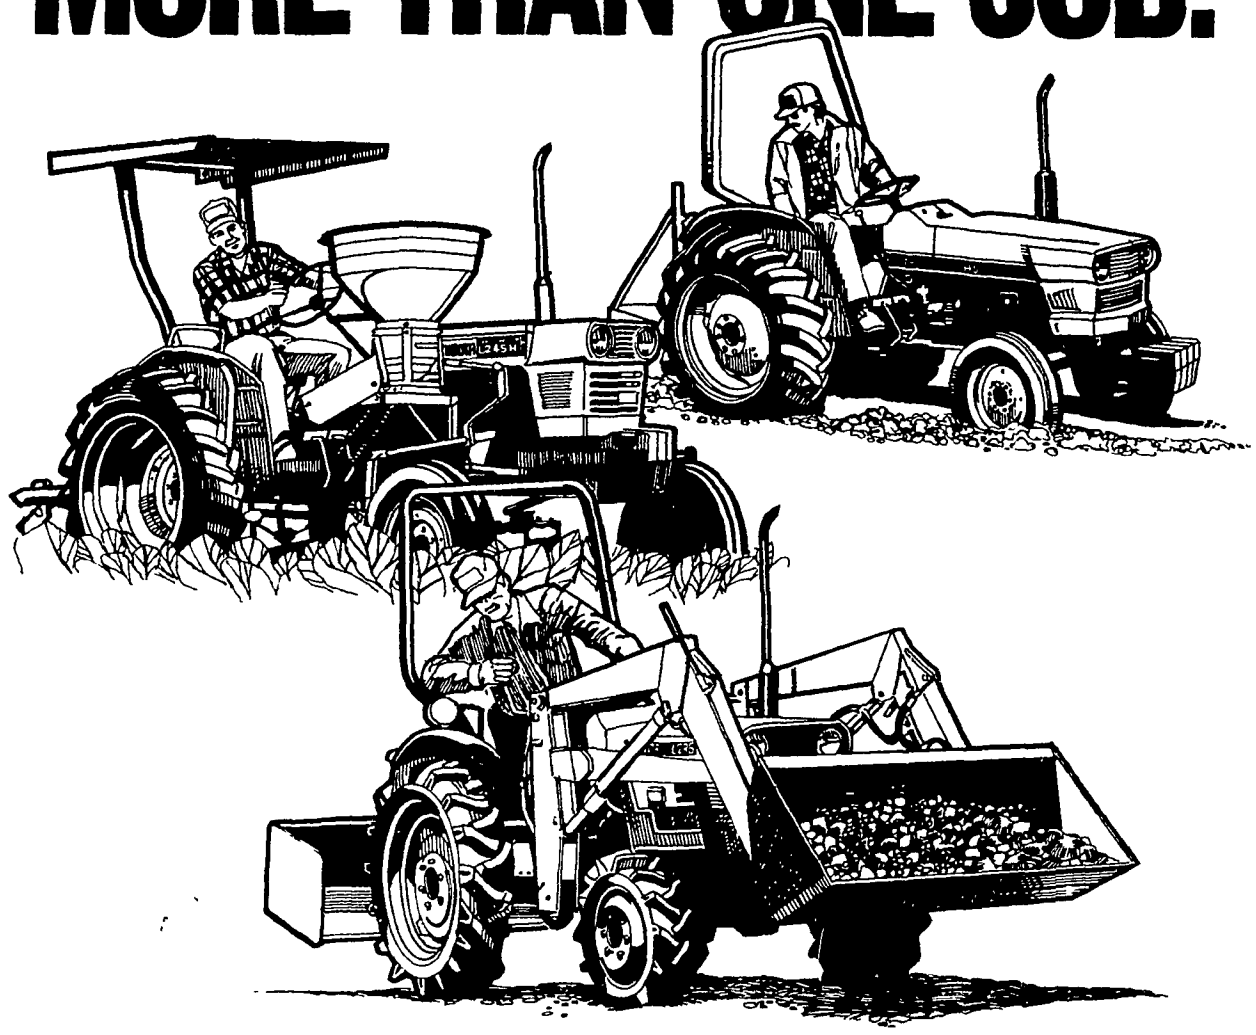
Sweet corn, field corn, and bush beans were grown on the test plots. Yields of field corn and beans were higher from the plots treated with organic materials. Sweet corn yields were about equal although the weight of stalks and leaves were greater in the organically treated plots.

Treatment of soils with organic wastes can greatly reduce erosion and nutrient runoff. Severe erosion often occurs on soils that have been intensively farmed and have lost substantial amounts of organic matter. Soil organic matter is vitally important in keeping agricultural soils in a high state of tilth and productivity, said Hornick who works for USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Composed sewage is not approved for use on all crops. Some municipal sludge contains heavy metals such as zinc, copper, cadmium, nickel, and lead. Crop plants may take these metals up thus making them unsafe for human use or animal feed.

The poor growth of vegetation occurring on mine spoils is often attributed to high acid soil and inadequate levels of nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, and magnesium, Hornick said.

THEY HOLD DOWN MORE THAN ONE JOB.



Kubota's mid-sized tractors are very versatile. You'll find them at work on farms, in parks, nurseries, estate homes and even on construction sites.

The reason is simple. Our mid-sized L-Series tractors come with features you'd expect to find only on bigger, heavier machines.

For example, sturdy 3-cylinder diesel engines. Horsepower from 12 to 29 PTO. Hydraulic shuttle-shift. 2- or 4-wheel drive. A hefty 3-point hitch. And more.

So if you're looking for a tractor that can get the job done, whatever it is, you've found it. The Kubota L Series.

Talk to the man who knows forage handling systems.

Badger has been building forage equipment for over 30 years. They know what it takes to make forage equipment that is profitably efficient. And they know what is needed to make forage farming profitable.

The Badger Mower/Conditioner

Take a $200 Test Drive!

Try One. . . You'll Buy One!

Badger Northland manufacturers a unit that even in the toughest of conditions will perform its duties like no other mower/conditioner, without over-conditioning. A machine built to cut close and clean, with built-in Badger simplicity and reliability.

Now's your chance to see just how well our machine works. Try it!

To show you just how confident we are that you'll buy a Badger Mower/Conditioner, we're going to offer you $100.00 for trying our machine, even if you purchase a competitor's mower/conditioner within a 30 day period of your demo.

However, if you like our machine the best (which we know you will) we'll make a sweet deal even sweeter. We'll send you a check for $200.00 providing you purchase our mower/conditioner within 30 days of your demonstration.

The Badger Mower/Conditioner. Try one... you'll buy one and you'll be $200.00 wiser, too!

NO SILO TOO HIGH

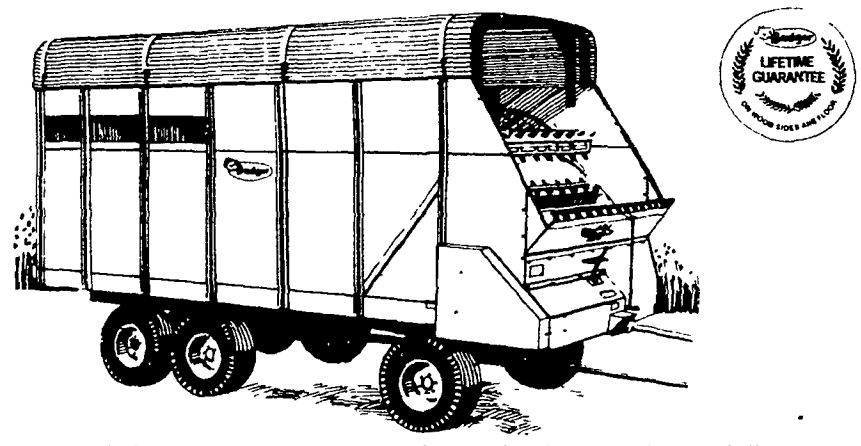
They haven't built a silo that the Badger Blower can't fill. No matter how high or how big, the Badger Blower can fill 'em all.

It's simply the smoothest running, toughest blower you can buy, outperforming other models in volume and speed.

It will take anything you give it, forage or grain. And the special Badger magnet catches tramp iron.

Get together with your Badger Dealer today and get ready to fill your big silo.

It's easy to understand why you'll never see a Badger Box in "the forage box graveyard."



You can't buy a better box than Badger's. Start with specially treated acid resistant exterior grade plywood, bolted to steel channel stakes. No nails anywhere. Add to that a tough welded and bolted undercarriage built to carry the big loads. Match all this with Badger's simple and reliable heavy roller chain drive, a beater design that delivers a smooth even discharge to the blower. And then mount it on Badger's own heavy duty single or tandem axle running gear and you've got a box that will stand up to the toughest punishment.

ADA/DC sponsors Real Seal sweepstakes

In celebration of June Dairy Month, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is promoting a $300,000 national Real Seal Sweepstakes. Prizes include a two week trip to Europe for four, six Chevrolet Cavelier station wagons, and six Hawaiian vacations.

The contest has been designed to draw attention to the Real Seal program, encouraging consumers to look for the seal when buying dairy products. Consumers enter by submitting the Real Seal logo from a carton of dairy food or by printing the words Real Seal on an index card. Further details are available in the dairy case.

The Real Seal symbol is a stylized drop of milk with the word REAL inside. According to Ralph L. Lindsey Jr., Executive Vice President of ADA/DC, "Its purpose is to help shoppers identify real dairy products and distinguish them from imitations in the dairy case." It is a trademark which can be placed only on genuine dairy foods produced in the United States such as milk, cream, yogurt, butter, ice cream and pizza.

The Real Seal program continues to grow nationwide, both in producer use and consumer identification. ADA/DC is hopeful that the Real Seal Sweepstakes will increase awareness of the Real Seal and the benefits of buying dairy products.

NIR to sample area forages

WEST CHESTER — The Penn State Near Infrared (NIR) Mobil forage van will be coming to the county on May 24th and 25th to test forage samples submitted by farmers and aid in ration balancing.

The van will be at the Owen J. Roberts High School the afternoon of May 24th to test samples. During the evening, the van will be available for dairy ration balancing, there at the school.

On May 25th, the van will be at Stoltzfus Farm Machinery, Cochranville, in the morning and will move to the Oxford High School in the afternoon to test forage samples. Also at Oxford High, during the evening, area farmers can have their dairy rations balanced.

The cost of forage sample analysis will be $8.00 and the cost of ration balancing will be $10.00.

For more information, contact the Chester County Extension Office.

Export shipping changes may reduce income says Farm Bureau

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — Proposed requirements that a large portion of U.S. farm exports move on higher-cost American vessels have the potential to reduce farm income by six billion dollars, say American Farm Bureau Federation economists.

Their study finds that, if cargo preference requirements are enacted by Congress, inflated labor costs and non-competitive features of U.S. shipping will work a significant hardship on the U.S. farm economy. Anticipating increases in shipping costs of from $40 to $80 a ton, the study concludes that farmers could expect reduced foreign trade and lower farm prices that are strongly influenced by export sales.

Current proposals before Congress would direct that five percent of U.S. farm exports be carried on American flagships in 1984—rising one percent a year until a minimum of 20 percent is reached on all shipments. Computed on the basis of the 1982/83 crop year, Farm Bureau economist Bruce J. Blanton finds that a five percent cargo preference directive would have required almost six million metric tons of grain soybeans to have been shipped in higher-cost U.S. vessels. A 20 percent cargo preference would have figured out to some 24 million metric tons of those commodities shipped under those conditions.

"Plainly, the U.S. farm economy faces serious export difficulties under such proposals," Blanton said.

The study notes substantial ripple effects of the cargo preference formula, which—in a loss of export markets—would increase farm costs closely tied to export sales, as well as increase the cost of federal farm programs programs to make up a share of income lost farm deficiencies in foreign trade. A significant disappearance of jobs in the export trade is seen.

"Certain casualties" under cargo preference requirements are the U.S. Department of Agriculture's new blended credit program for exports and the proposed export PIK program—both promising new ideas to reduce surplus stocks and government farm program costs to taxpayers.

The study concluded that, "in a competitive world market, artificially high shipping costs of cargo preference could not be passed on to foreign buyers, who would simply buy at lower world prices without paying additional transportation charges. These would be transferred back down the marketing chain to U.S. farmers in the form of reduced exports, and lower farm income."

The 106th Nat'l Guernsey Convention Sales

A group of well-fitted, strong-pedigreed Guernseys, effective pre-sale promotion and the well-attended, breeder-oriented convention activities before sale day all set the stage for two of the most successful convention auctions in history. Sixty-seven females from 13 states sold to buyers from eight different states under the gavel of Gary Estes of Ozark, Missouri. Pedigree-reader John Merryman of Sparks, Maryland ably summarized the animals' ancestry and performance data for the full house of spectators at the Delaware County Fairgrounds in Delaware, Ohio on April 18.

The National Heifer Sale

One bred heifer and two calves each broguht final bids of over $5,000 in the 13th edition of this sale series, the proceeds from which go to the national youth fund.

The highest-selling heifer of the day and top animal in this sale was an October Co Hill Farms T H Big Tex calf consigned by Truman Weaver of Goshen, Indiana. Yellow Creek Tex Louise, a strong, dairy and correct heifer with a genetic index of +1,140M +50F +$166, is out of a national top-10 living lifetime producer, Prince Hugo Lottie. This 92-point Gold Star Dam by Lyrene May Rose Prince has lifetime production credits to date of 177,240M 4.9% 8,628F, four individual lactations over 1,000 pounds of butterfat and records to 24,230M 4.8% 1,164F in 365 days at nine years, one month of age. Adding depth to the maternal side of the pedigree is a VG-82 maternal sister to the dam with over 15,000 pounds of milk and an 81-point grandam with 119,090M 4.9% 5,819F in 3,047 days. The consignment also has a Very Good maternal sister by Kellogg Minnies Choice with records to 4-0 26,840M 1,184F 365D, a son in AI and a cow performance index of #347 that makes her the 23rd high cow in the country. The new owners of this popular-pedigreed sale entry are Dr. Tye Henschen and Dr. G.W. Snyder of Goshen, Indiana.

A full-age senior heifer calf for this year's show season, Rolling Lea Tel Patsy Princess, brought the next-high bid of $5,300 from the Patsy Princess Syndicate of Rossville, Indiana. This tall, stylish and clean-cut daughter of Maurana Wis Telestar sold with a pedigree index of +1,124M +47F and a genetic index of +1,376M +58F. Her Excellent dam by Choice was the Eves Production Award winner at the 1982 NGS—Louisville and an All-American Aged Cow nominee last year. With a national class-leading record of 23,000M 988F in 305 days and a modified contemporary deviation of +6,608M +270F, she has the 69th high cow performance index of the breed. The next two dams in this pedigree are both Very Good. Rolling Lea Farms, Inc. of Thorntown, Indiana consigned this fancy calf out of a Gold Star Dam.

Selling next on a bid of $5,200 from Dorothy Hensel and Linda Halbert of Greenfield, Indiana was the two-year-old daughter of Olympic View B Maverick consigned by W. Dean Forsyth of Longmont, Colorado. This strong heifer sold springing to a service by Telestar and with good udder promise. Her dam, an Excellent, Gold Star Dam sired by Falcons Wistar Patrician, has the eighth-highest cow performance index in the breed today, over 100,000 pounds of milk to date and two national class-leading records over 27,500 pounds of milk and 1400 pounds of butterfat. The dam has also produced two other lactations over 1,000 pounds of butterfat. The consignments grandam is appraised 84 points.

The heifer with the highest genetic index of the sale at +1,508M +49F +$189 was Wagners Emory Billie, the $4,700 purchase of the Emory Syndicate of Dorr, Michigan. Sired by Wagners T H Emory, she is out of two generations of Very Good dams. The 85-point dam has a national class-leading record of 23,320M 977F at four years, four months of age, a modified contemporary deviation of +8,971M +340F and a cow performance index of +314 that makes her the 64th-high cow of the breed. The high-testing, 84-point grandam has records to 656 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. Both the dam and grandam have Very Good sisters. This good-sized, straight-lined, showy senior yearling heifer was consigned by Douglas Wagner of Marissa, Illinois.

Another popular sale entry was Laeschs D F Cher, the 1982 All-American Senior Heifer Calf consigned by Todd Laesch of Bloomington, Illinois. She brought a bid of $4,600 from Kyle Lindsey of Bismarck, Illinois. Also named Junior All-American in 1982, this tall, stretchy and very correct Housleys Dair Fayvor daughter is out of a dam with records to 680 pounds of butterfat. The dam has a VG-85 maternal sister with 764 pounds of butterfat and is from an 86-point cow with a top lactation of 7-10 14,740M 5.6% 828F 305D.

The 37 females which sold in the National Heifer Sale averaged the exceptional figure of $2,567, an average second only to the 10th edition of this sale series held in conjunction with the AGCC meeting in Rochester, Minnesota. The gross of $95,000, top consignment price of $5,600 (both all-time highs) and six head sold for more than $4,000 each made this sale a memorable one. The American Guernsey Cattle Club sponsored and managed the sale whose net proceeds annually go into the national youth fund.

The Ohio Convention Sale

The 30 cows and bred heifers which crossed the auction block during the Ohio Convention Sale commanded an average price of $3,250 for sale manager the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association. Eight consignments brought a bid of $4,000 or more during this mid-afternoon sale.

Royal Terrace Choice Elinor, the 42nd-high cow performance index cow of the breed and a solid top of the Ohio Convention Sale, was consigned by Terrell and Gene Sickels and families of Winchester, Indiana. Sired by Choice, this very dairy, quality-uddered, 87-point cow with a modified contemporary deviation of +6,337M +236F sold bred to Maverick and due in late June. She produced a senior three-year-old lactation of 18,000M 826F. The dam has records to 775 pounds of butterfat and an 83-point maternal sister with 630 pounds of butterfat as a two-year-old cow. The grandam also has over 700 pounds of butterfat. This four-year-old cow was struck off at $9,900 and Wisconsin-bound. At the request of the buyer, upon the realization after the sale that this consignment was not vaccinated and therefore could not enter the state of Wisconsin, the contending bidder agreed to purchase this Choice daughter at the next-high bid of $9,100. Peter Yost and family and the Bernard Heisner family are the new owners.

A milking two-year-old daughter of Western Glow Wistar Premier was the second high-selling animal of the day on a $6,300 bid from Spring Walk Farm of Big Prairie, Ohio. Consigned by Dawn Beiler of Bellevue, Ohio, this clean-cut, young cow is out of an 81-point dam with over 15,000 pounds of milk and over 720 pounds of butterfat. The dam's maternal sister is also appraised Very Good. This consignment is a good prospect for this year's show season as a senior two-year-old cow.

An eye-catching consignment was the next high-selling cow purchased by Homer Martin of Orrville, Ohio for $4,800. An 88-point daughter of Clovelly Top Hornet with 639 pounds of butterfat in 305 days as a three-year-old cow, this just-fresh cow was consigned by Russel and Ethel Fetter and Lee Smetzer of Big Prairie, Ohio. The dam of this big, strong cow is an Excellent Lyrene Prince Duke daughter with lactations to 738 pounds of butterfat. The maternal grandam was produced records up to 777 pounds of butterfat and has a daughter with 2-05, 17,400M 4.7% 817F 305D.

Spring Walk Farm also took home a tall, fancy-uddered four-year-old cow on a bid of $4,500. Scott Bates of Southington, Ohio was the consignor of this attractive Lone Palm Index Navajo daughter which was the 1981 Reserve Junior All-American Senior Two-Year-Old Cow and was nominated for Junior All-American honors again in 1982. With two records to date over 600 pounds of butterfat in 305 days, Spring Walk Navajos Red (VG-85) is out ov a VG-82 dam with up to 679 pounds of butterfat and has an 82-point maternal sister with 5.0 percent butterfat test. The grandam has records to 739 pounds of butterfat. This show cow was fresh in late March and sold open.

An Olympic View B Maverick daughter due in May to Co Hill Farms T H Big Tex brought a bid of $4,400 from Peter Yost and Family of London, Ohio. With well over 500 pounds of butterfat as a junior two-year-old cow, Shir Lon Mimi is out of a dam with two records over 14,000 pounds of milk in 305 days or less. The next dam has records to 562 pounds of butterfat. Phillip Pringle of Lakeville, Ohio was the consignor of this good, young cow.

The Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association Sale Committee which handled selections and other sale details was headed by Ted Renner of Dalton, William Wachtel of Big Prairie and Scott Phillips fo fredericktown, with these other people assisting: Mike Kaltenbach of Monroeville, Homer Martin of Orrville, Russell Fetter of Big

Note final planting date for insured oats

LEBANON — May 20 is the final planting date for insured oats in all Pennsylvania counties except Cameron, Delaware, Forest, Greene, Lackawanna, McKeen and Westmoreland.

Acres of oats planted by May 20, insured by FCIC (or by a private company reinsured by FCIC), must be reported by June 10 to receive full crop insurance coverage.

Acreage planted after May 20 must also be reported on the June 10 acreage report as being planted too late for insurance.

Farmers unable to plant prior to May 20 because of excess moisture conditions may sign a 20-day late planting agreement, which permits insurance coverage, but provides for a lower bushel-per acrea guarantee due to the late planting.

Farmers wishing additional information about the new late planting agreement should contact their local, authorizes crop insurance agent.

Md. farmers urged to PIK up on conservation

Maryland farmers have a golden opportunity to implement conservation work on their farms this year thanks to a triple play by the PIK program. the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) and the brand new, state funded, cost-share program for conservation practices.

Usually, farmers faced with a desire to put conservation practices on their land have had only their resources coupled with the traditional ACP cost share help and special project cost-share programs of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

Improvements possible under the various programs are diversions, waterways and terraces, all of which go a long way in making farms more productive and less prone to erosion caused by weather extremes.

But in 1983, thanks to USDA's PIK program, Maryland farmers have agreed to idle, some 192,000 acres which provides them the time and opportunity to make...and carry out...real conservation improvements aimed at controlling erosion and reducing runoff at sediment, nutrients, animal wastes and agricultural chemicals.

It's no secret in agriculture that when land is idled, farmers usually select their marginal acres and, in many cases, these are the very acres that are most in need of sound land and water conservation improvements.

It's especially important to keep these often steep, highly erodible soils, under protective vegetation.

More money to help out in paying for the improvements is going to be available in Maryland this year because there are now two statewide cost-share programs. In addition to the special SCS project area assistance. They are the regular Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) through the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service [illegible] and the new, ready to start in June, cost-share program to be administered by the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) in cooperation with the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

This state funded program has been alloted $5 million and was designed to assist in the effort to improve water quality by assisting agriculture to make much needed conservation improvements throughout Maryland.

Teaming up to help farmers make the most of the opportunity offered by PIK idled acreage and the twin cost share programs will be the state and local field offices of both ASCS and SCS, the local soil conservation districts and the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Farmers who have not yet selected their actual PIK "Conservation Use" acres are advised to consult, as soon as possible, these offices for hlep in making the most from the conservation and cost share standpoints, of their idled acres.

An example of this might be a farmer with large fields bordering waterways and wetlands. The farmer could elect to idle acres along such areas by establishing vegetative filter strips which help control runoff, reduce erosion, and create improved habitat for wildlife, particularly migratory waterfowl.

Other conservation practices such as contouring, stripcropping, diversions, grass waterways, converting steep areas to hay, and drop structures, may be needed to keep soil and nutrients out of streams. SCS can help design these practices to fit the needs of the land as well as the landowner.

Maryland's Department of Natural Resources, and numerous private wildlife agencies, are urging that habitat improvement considerations be made whatever possible in an effort to get even more benefit from the idled acreage.

There is a requirement that PIK-idled sections be at least five acres in size and one continuous parcel per field so that farmers will not be able to hop around their field layouts omitting scattered low spots, ditches, gullies and the like.

Under the normal ACP cost-share program, the farmer would work with his local ASCS and SCS offices. The new Maryland cost-share program, expected to get underway in June, will largely be funneled through the local soil conservation districts.

ARCADIAN® liquid gives a profitable boost to alfalfa after every cutting.

Give alfalfa a liquid boost after the first cutting.

That's when topdressing N-P-K, and micronutrients in an Arcadian® liquid fertilizer made with POLY-N® pays big dividends in high yielding, high quality alfalfa. You can even add insecticides if you need to.

When it's done right, a topdressing after every cutting will increase the yields. It will raise the protein content. Help the crop compete better against grasses. And improve the vigor for a long stand life.

Arcadian liquid makes it easy. Made the SLF® way. Arcadian liquid gives you uniform distribution of fertilizer ingredients from start to finish. It's truly the efficient way to turn alfalfa into green gold.

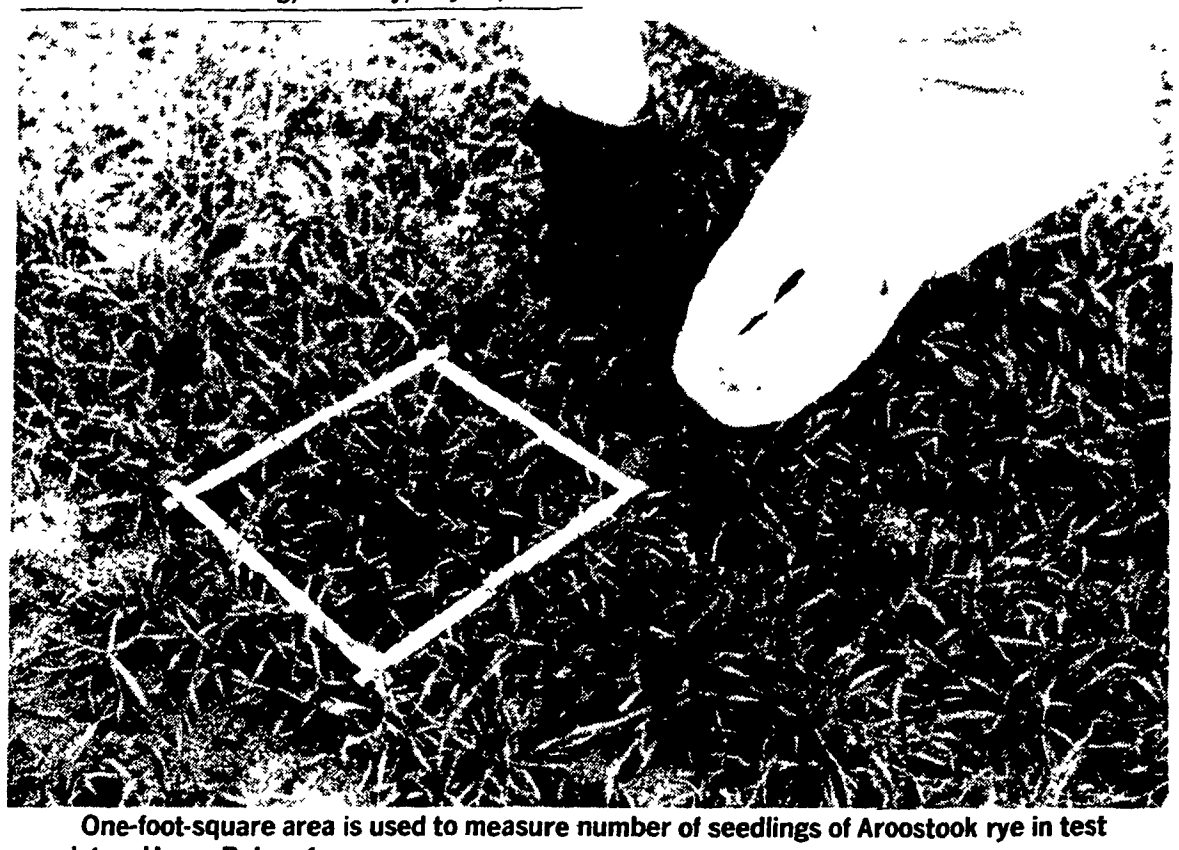
HESSTON FARM EQUIPMENT

The PRIME LINE



One-foot-square area is used to measure number of seedlings of Aroostook rye in test plot on Henry Reiner farm.

Aroostook rye plots show new winter cover crop

POTTSVILLE — Schuylkill, Armstrong, Lancaster and Northampton counties have something in common with Aroostook County, Maine. All five counties planted a new variety of rye called Aroostook.

Aroostook Rye was developed for use as a cover and green manure crop for fields that are harvested too late for other cover crops to become established before winter.

Cover crops can be an important part of erosion control systems. They can help reduce erosion two ways. First, the vegetation on the surface breaks the impact of the rain drops and second cover crops provide additional organic matter to the soil which makes the soil more erosion resistant.

The new rye was selected because it has shown good late fall and early spring growth tendencies. This is very important in the Northeast U.S. where the length of the growing season can limit the use of other cover crops. In order to develop an adequate amount of winter cover, Aroostook Rye should be planted by Oct. 15 as it needs a minimum of 260 to 350 growing degree days.

Test plot on the Henry Reiner farm, Klingerstown, shows Tetra Pektus rye (1.) growing along side Aroostook rye (2.).

Three Schuylkill County farmers - Henry J. Reiner, Klingerstown; Gene Reiner, Pitman; and Dresher Farms, of Ringtown, cooperated with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service by planting three demonstration plots. In order for a comparison to be made the Aroostook rye and the Tetra Petkus rye were planted in side-by-side plots. Readings of plant height and plant density were made in November and again in April. The following chart shows the difference between the regular rye and the Aroostook at the three test plots.

| Farmer | Soil Type | Planting Date | Freeze Date Aroostook | Hgt. T.P. | Spring Date Arstk. | Hgt. T.P. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Henry J Reiner | Basher | 9/30/82 | 11/16/82 3¾" | 4½" | 4/11/83 10¼" | 7¼" |
| Gene Reiner | Allenwood | 10/10/82 | 11/16/82 3" | 3½" | 4/11/83 7¾" | 7" |
| Dresher Farms | Leck Kill | 10/20/82 | 1/ 7/83 2¾" | 2" | 4/12/83 5¾" | 4" |

Gene Reiner explained that "back in November you couldn't tell the difference between the two, but by Mid-march the Aroostook rye was definitely outgrowing the regular rye. I had other farmers stop and ask about buying the seed."

Bob Wagner, Soil Conservation Technician explained, "when we took our fall measurements the tally showed that the regular rye was outperforming the Aroostook in two out of three cases. The Aroostook really came around in the spring outperforming the regular rye on all three farms."

When asked why the regular rye did better than the Aroostook in the fall, District Conservationist Charles Pannebaker explained: "We believe that the fall of 1982 had periods of unseasonable warm weather which allowed for better growth on the regular rye. Through the winter and spring the Aroostook rye outgrew the regular rye because cooler weather conditions were favorable for its growth."

Aroostook Rye was selected and developed by the Soil Conservation Services' Plant Materials Center at Big Flats, N.Y. The development and availability of Aroostook Rye as a winter cover crop gives farmers and conservationists another valuable tool in their fight against soil erosion.

If you are interested in finding out more about Aroostook Rye or other conservation practices, contact the Soil Conservation Service in the Davis Bldg., 450 N. Claude Lord Blvd., Pottsville.

To Washington with a manure spreader

LANCASTER — Two western Iowa farmers, making their way to the nation's capitol on a farm tractor pulling a manure spreader, stopped briefly in front of the Lancaster County Courthouse Tuesday morning. There they spoke with County Commissioners, reporters, and well-wishers. Pennsylvania Farmers Union assisted the two in their trek across the state.

Peter Brent, 44, and Tony Bos, 49, two life-long farmers, have been forced out of business by depressed markets and changing government policies. They left their homes in early April intent on sharing their distress on current government policies with other farmers, small businesspeople and unemployed workers along the way, before delivering their message in Washington.

Brent was forced to declare bankruptcy when Farmers Home Administration refused to refinance his loan. "We are not radicals, nor are we sloppy, inefficient farmers," they've informed well-wishers along the way. "We've both been just ordinary hard-working farmers all our lives. But what was done to us shouldn't be allowed to happen in America. We're angry, we're frustrated, we want to raise the consciounsness of other Americans to the injustice," the pair has said along the way. They want to report the extent of farm disaster through mid-America.

Bos, whose farm mortgage was foreclosed by Production Credit, was told that his lender was going "to sell you out, right down to your shorts!"

Brent and Bos are determined to deliver their message to Congress and the White House in graphic form. On their manure spreader is perched a White outHouse and next to it is an easy chair holding a barrel on which is printed the following greeting.

"If your debts are free and clear, you can stand right up and cheer; But if like us you've lost your rear, throw your shorts right up in here."

Some of the pair's expenses are being covered by church, labor, and farmer coalitons who have been trying to get recent government farm policies improved and interest rates lowered. The two have been meeting with leaders of these groups at each of their stops. They plan to arrive in Washington on May 9.

When they arrive in Washington they will meet with legislators from their state and hope to be able to speak with President Regan.

Horse imports from Italy restricted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Department of Agriculture officials have again imposed restrictions on the importation of horses from Italy because of contagious equine metritis, a venereal disease of horses.

John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said Italian officials reported finding the disease in three mares. Test results on these mares were confirmed March 28.

USDA had removed Italy from the list of countries affected by the disease Dec. 9, 1982, based on information that indicated that the disease did not exist in Italy.

Atwell said the restrictions will affect only mares and stallions of breeding age. To be eligible for entry into the United States, animals over two years of age must undergo specific prophylactic treatments and tests in the country of origin, at USDA import quarantine stations and on premises specifically designated for state quarantine.

Since discovery of this bacterial disease in 1977, the United States has imposed restrictions on horse imports from 11 countries. They are Australia, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Ireland, Italy, Japan, West Germany, France, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Delaware Extension

Drug problem

This may seem an unlikely place to be talking about a drug problem. But there is a serious drug problem occurring on farms in rural America. It's called marijuana. Let me hasten to add it's not the use of marijuana by farmers that's creating a problem. It's the production of this illegal plant that has law officials uptight and some farmers wondering about their own legal status and safety.

Marijuana used to be a foreign concern. It was grown in South America and other places and shipped in boats and planes and in suitcases and handbags. But all of that has changed. This popular narcotic is increasingly becoming American made. So much so, in fact, that it's now being rated as American agriculture's third largest cash crop.

A recent issue of Farm Journal magazine devotes considerable space to what it calls "the marijuana invasion," concluding that it's a 10 billion dollar annual crop that poses real dangers for legitimate farmers.

Easy to grow

Apparently marijuana is easy to grow, can and is being planted in almost every state, and is worth a small fortune to its producers. Sophisticated plant breeding has allowed American marijuana to compare very favorably with the best of the world. Some experts feel that a single marijuana plant of the right strain can yield more income than 10 acres of corn or soybeans.

With that kind of money involved, it's easy to see where lots of people not normally associated with the drug culture are in the business. And that's exactly what's happening, according to law enforcement officials. The Farm Journal article points out that many folks who you would have to consider non-criminal in every other way, are out there growing marijuana. Some of them in small patches in their back yards, others in hidden plots on people's farms. And in some cases, farmers themselves are in the business.

In Texas, narcotics agents say some farmers, hard-pressed by current economic conditions, have found a cash crop that is profitable. One Texas lawman reported a crackdown on a farm family growing an acre of marijuana worth five million dollars. "The plants were 15 to 18 feet tall, and were worth an estimated $3500 each. The field had been irrigated and well cared for. These people were farmers, having a tough time making a living." Not only were they growing marijuana, the family also operated a roadside stand where they sold their special grass over the counter, if they knew the customer.

Can you imagine a five million dollar cash crop from an acre of ground, marketed directly through a roadside stand? I know this was an isolated incident, but the potential is there. And some farmers, rather than lose the farm, are taking the chance.

In many instances, trespassers are coming in and planting the crop on someone else's land. They pose a real threat to farmers. Because of the high income potential, these poachers go to great lengths to protect their crop with guns, dogs, even booby traps to keep unwanted visitors away. In some cases, poachers have planted a crop, expecting to return and harvest it later, but then some other enterprising soul harvested it for them. And so the growers go to great lengths to develop security systems to protect their crop from these marauders and from the law, and the rightful property owners.

Farm Journal says the U.S. marijuana boom started in 1978 when Paraquat was sprayed on Mexican marijuana. This created a new market. Then came what is described as an agronomic revolution in marijuana production. All of the sophisticated technology assembled for producing legitimate crops was used by marijuana farmers to grown the very best plants. The result — a strain of high quality grass that is easier to hide from air patrols, that reaches maturity in just five months, and is even more potent for the eventual user.

One Minnesota grower described to Farm Journal how he has developed crosses suited to his climate, and an irrigation system to keep them thriving throughout the growing season. This farmer plants in several patches around his place to cut the risk. He tends it carefully during the growing period, just as he would a vegetable crop. At harvest, he cuts the crop and cures the stalks much as you would burly tobacco. With proper conditions, he expects the average plant to yield about a pound of marijuana.

Cooperation asked

This Midwest grower considers the illegal aspects of marijuana production a minor problem. After five years in the business, he worries more about thieves than about the law.

Why does he grow it? It's not just the money. He says he likes being outdoors and it's almost like being a regular farmer.

Some states are making it less of a penalty to possess or grow marijuana, and some are making it tougher. But the Farm Journal story indicates that most growers aren't that worried about the law. First offenders are usually let off and the odds of getting caught, if they're careful, are minimal.

Law enforcement officials are counting on farmers themselves to keep tabs on local traffic and know when marijuana is being grown in their out-of-the-way woods and fields. The drug inforcement officials say a couple of states—notably California and Texas—are literally overrun with marijuana production, and that some other states could be in that same shape unless farmers and law enforcement officials work together to stamp it out.

Farm Journal concludes that whatever your feelings about marijuana from a social point of view, law abiding farmers should think first about their own safety when it comes to dealing with marijuana growers.

Analyze produce marketing costs before deciding

NEWARK, Del. — Are the costs of running a pick-your-own operation really less than marketing produce through a conventional outlet?

Can producers pack their own fruits and vegetables as cheaply as a central buyer who packs large volumes of a commodity from several growers?

What are the true costs of hauling and selling produce at a city terminal such as Philadelphia or Jessup? And what volume can be moved through a certain market?

These are just some of the questions local growers should be considering now, says University of Delaware Extension Vegetable Specialist, Ed Kee, even though there are still many unknowns since some crops haven't even been planted.

In a wet spring like this, such questions are even more critical because harvests of many commodities could well coincide in several eastern states. "Thinking about your marketing costs in advance will help when quick decisions must be made during the hectic harvest season," Kee says.

Researchers at Rutgers University's Agricultural Experiment Station published a report last year on the "Economic Comparison of Direct Marketing Alternatives for Fresh Vegetables in New Jersey." They compared direct marketing methods such as roadside marketing, u-pick and farmer tailgating operations with wholesale outlets such as auctions and terminal markets.

In general, says Kee, the lowest per-pound marketing costs in their study were associated with pick-your-own and wholesale auctions.

The Rutgers economists looked at the costs fo the five alternative marketing methods by isolating costs for several vegetables and combining these to reach an average cost-per-pound for each type of outlet.

Looking only at the wholesale alternatives for two commodities — peppers and cucumbers — Kee says there was quite a difference between marketing costs at Vineland Auction and the Philadelphia Produce Center. Peppers sold at Vineland had a total marketing cost of 6 cents/lb. or $1.95/box versus 9 cents/lb. or $2.06/box in Philadelphia. Cucumbers cost 4 cents/lb. or $2.16 box to sell in Vineland versus 6 cents/lb. or $3.35/box in Philadelphia.

Of course, says Kee, these figures aren't etched in concrete. They represent an average for a given set of conditions at these locations. He says marketing costs will vary from farm to farm because of yield differences and other factors. But the New Jersey information does provide local growers with food for thought.

When figuring their own costs, Kee suggests growers consider these items: machinery, equipment and labor expenses for hauling produce from the field; machinery, equipment and labor for grading and packing; loading expenses; machinery, equipment, labor and toll costs for hauling to market; package expenses; overhead; management costs; selling charges and commissions; and handling charges at the markets. Direct marketers should also include such items as building expense, advertising, packaging and display materials, and insurance.

When these costs have been calculated and added to production expenses, it will be possible to make better marketing decisions, he says.

Pa. free of corn cyst nematode

HARRISBURG — Recent surveys conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture reveal the state remains free from the Corn Cyst Nematode, a potentially serious threat to corn production.

The Corn Cyst Nematode attacks the roots of corn and several other members of the grass family. This nematode was first detected in 1981 in Kent County, Maryland. It is now known to occur elsewhere in North America, but has reportedly caused significant corn yield losses in Egypt, India and Pakistan.

Surveys conducted by the Department were done in the eight southeastern counties of Adams, Berks, Bucks, Chester, Franklin, Lancaster, Montgomery and York. Samples taken represented nearly 4,000 acres of farmland that were in continuous corn production for at least six of the last 10 years. Plant pathologists from the Department's Bureau of Plant Industry studied the samples but did not detect the nematode.

According to plant pathologists, the nematode, or microscopic roundworm, penetrates corn roots and feeds on the root system. The mature female develops eggs within her body and then dies. Her body or cyst wall protects the eggs until they can hatch. The larvae then seek host roots.

The cyst is the major means of spread of the Corn Cyst Nematode. Cysts have been found in soil clinging to equipment moving from land infested with the nematode.

Pennsylvania is working with neighboring states and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to prevent the spread of the Corn Cyst Nematode to uninfested areas of the country. Surveys similar to Pennsylvania's are underway in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and Virginia.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Order No. 4 Class I Milk Price $15.29 for June 1983

ALEXANDRIA, VA — May 5, 1983 - Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a Class I milk price of $15.29 per hundredweight for June 1983. This price is down 2 cents from May's price but is 6 cents higher than last June's Class I price.

Order No. 4 prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, PA and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, DC or Baltimore, MD. There is also a 6-cent direct-delivery differential applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Mr. Shine announced a Class II milk price of $12.44 per hundredweight for April 1983 and a butterfat differential of 16.9 cents for the month. The April Class II price is down 6 cents from March, while the butterfat differential is unchanged.

These class prices are based on the April 1983 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.51 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for April was $1.4725 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.9396 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Soybean Assn. studies soil erosion policies

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Who should determine soil erosion policies for U.S. farmland? This was one of the major questions posed to a select group of soil erosion experts in a survey of soil erosion policy alternatives. This survey was conducted as a part of the second phase of Project 2002.

"2002: A Blueprint for Soybeans" is a joint project of Elanco Products Company, manufacturers of Treflan and Surflan herbicides, and the American Soybean Association (ASA), a national association of soybean farmers dedicated to the profitablity of U.S. soybean production. The purpose of this project is to outline alternative futures of the U.S. soybean industry.

"Soil erosion was identified by the project's Blue Ribbon Panel as one of the key long-term issues facing the U.S. soybean industry," stated project manager Dennis Sharpe. "To deal with this issue, we assembled a panel of experts who devote most of their time to studying and working on aspects of soil conservation...and government policy related to soil conservation.

The soil erosion policy survey in which these experts participated was composed of two parts. The first part probed the extent of agreement or disagreement with 17 different policy options that are a part of the current national dialogue on soil erosion.

"In the first round of the survey, it was fairly clear the experts felt soil erosion is too important to be left simply to market forces," said Sharpe. "In other words, supply and demand, and prices, of crops will not regulate soil loss. In fact, some people feel high export levels and heavy demands on the soil brought about by market forces acutally contribute to soil erosion. However, that's a debatable subject."

The main purpose of the second round of the survey was to assess the likely effectiveness and teasibility of the preferred options from round one.

"The second part of the survey clearly showed that, according to the experts, soil erosion is too important to be left strictly to the federal government to legislate and police," noted Sharpe. "The experts felt the federal government should define the broad outlines of policy direction; however, the state and local governments should implement that policy."

According to Sharpe, alternative soil erosion policies can generally be classified into two major categories: the "carrot" or positive incentives and the "stick" or negative incentives. The most favored positive incentive by the experts was providing low-interest, long-term loans to farm entities for the purpose of conservation related captial expenditures.

The most effective negative incentive according to the experts was an agricultural land use zoning system to prohibit row crop, production, on land subject to erosion, in excess of some prescribed limits.

In addition to the positive and negative incentives, there were other policy alternatives mentioned by the experts which did not fit either category.

"A clear winner in the 'others' category was the idea of a 'worst first' policy," Sharpe said. "This means federal dollars already budgeted for existing soil conservation and water programs are reallocated to specific land areas with the most severe erosion."

Sharpe pointed out the issue of soil erosion will surface again this summer on a national basis due to a USDA national and land survey. He thinks because of new methods the USDA has for measuring soil erosion, they may find the problem much worse than currently realized.

Sharpe stressed the results of this Project 2002 survey were the opinions of the soil erosion experts participating in the survey and not necessarily those of U.S. soybean farmers. He indicated the next step will be to have the Project 2002 Advisory Panel review this survey's results as part of the process for developing the "action plan" portion of the project's final report. The final report of Project 2002 will be given at Soybean EXPO, July 31-August 3, 1983 in Nashville, Tennessee.
